BRITISH INDIAN MONITOR; OR THE

ANTIJARGONIST, STRANGER'S GUIDE, ORIENTAL LINGUIST,

AND

VARIOUS OTHER WORKS, compressed into a series of portable volumes, on the

HINDOOSTANEE LANGUAGE,

IMPROPERLY CALLED MOORS;

WITH CONSIDERABLE INFORMATION RESPECTING

*EASTERN TONGUES, MANNERS, CUSTOMS, &c. &c. &c.

THAT PREVIOUS TIME, AND THE VOYAGE TO THE EAST INDIES, MAY BOTH BE RENDERED AGREEABLY SUBSERVIENT TO THE SPEEDY ACQUISITION OF MUCH USEFUL KNOWLEDGE ON INDIAN AFFAIRS, INTIMATELY CONNECTED WITH FUTURE HEALTH, FAME, HAPPINESS, AND FORTUNE, IN THAT REMOTE, BUT PROMISING PORTION OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

BY THE AUTHOR OF HINDOOSTANEE PHILOLOGY,
&c. &c.

.VOLUME I.

Edinburgh:

PRINTED BY WALKER & GREIG,

FOR MANNERS & MILLER, AND ARCH. CONSTABLE & CO. EDINBURGH; AND BLACKS & PARRY, 7. LEADENHALL STREET, LONDON.

1806.

To the Right Honourable

Sir WILLIAM FETTES, Baronet,

Lora 1 ...
WILLIAM COULTER, Esq.
ARCH. CAMPBELL, Esq.
Turnbull, Esq. JAMES GOLDIE, Esq.

John Muir, Esq. Dean of Guild; Peter Hill, Esq. Treasurer; -and the other Gentlemen, Magistrates of Edinburgh in the Year 1805.

Right Honourable Sir, & Sirs,

ON my Return from India having been favoured, by your Decree, with the Freedom of my NATIVE CITY, to which, as the Son of a Burgess, I owe all my Success in Life, permit me to inscribe to you the first Fruits of my Literary Labours, since my Residence here, as a Public Testimony of Gratitude and Respect for the Honour then so handsomely conferred upon,

GENTLEMEN,

Your most Obedient

Humble Servant,

John Borthwick Gilchrist

CONTENTS.

Dedication, · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·
Preface,ix—xciv Hindee-Roman Orthoepigraphical Alphabet, 1—62
Hindoostanee significant Particles, · · · · 36—92
Prepositives,
Adjunctives,95-102
Intermediate, 103
Simple Postpositions,103—104
Feminine,105
Compound ———,105—106
Local Adverbials, · · · · · · · · 107108
Temporal,
Miscellaneous, 109
Conjunctions and Interjections,110-113
Declension in abstract, · · · · · · · · 114-120
Conjugation,
Translation and Analysis, 124—138
Noun, Article, Declension, and Gender,139—148
Illustrations,
Adjectives, 164—168

1	Pronouns,
•	Illustrations, 179 - 183
	Verb,
	Numerals, Days, Months, Coins, &c. 203 o Dialogues,
	Exercises,
	Military Terms, &c
	Articles of War, 360 - 369
	Naval Terms,
	Derivation and Composition of Words, 393 -407
	Titles and Compellations,408 - 410
	Hindee-Arabic Prospectus,411 420
	Exercises

PREFACE.

HAVING, for several cogent reasons, come to the resolution of re-publishing all my Works, now out of print, in a more convenient portable shape than they enjoyed before, I have condensed the most useful as much as possible, that neither their bulk nor price may in future deter people, proceeding to India, from purchasing or studying the formidable and various publications that mine have been, for a number of years past, in the more conciliating form they will henceforth assume. The present Volume, which is the First of the intended series, being most essential for beginners of the oriental languages, I have thought proper to publish it before the Second, which may yet be a month or two in the Press, though I must refer to that number for the whole of the information, directions, and advice immediately connected with the future health, fame, happiness, and fortune, of young men destined to the civil, military, naval, commercial, medical, legal, clerical, and other departments in British India, which I have long been collecting for their benefit. This is a subject so important and distinct, that it will appear to more advantage by itself, than if blended here with other matters, more properly belonging to the general Preface, in a literary point of view only, of the whole subsequent Volumes.

Nothing can be so discouraging to the student of a living language in India, as the chance of being, by future proficiency therein, under the disagreeable necessity of unlearning whatever pronunciation or lessons he may have acquired at the outset of his oriental career. Few of my readers, who are in the smallest degree acquainted with Indian affairs, need now be apprized, that they will be exposed to the irksome situation I have just stated, provided they still prefer to this Volume, the inaccurate and inadequate performances of my predecessors, as their guides to the Hindoostanee tongue. To them we may apply the following lines with great propriety:

Aut inertes, aut insani, aut quibus egestas imperat, Qui sibi semitam non sapiunt, alteri monstrant viam. That it is equally easy to learn at first the polished and grammatical style of any speech, as it can be to acquire its corrupt and barbarous idiom, is a fact which will stand the test of every person's experience through all quarters of the globe, and in none more satisfactorily, than among the various nations of Hindoostan. It is true, that such a jargon as the intelligent writer quoted hereafter mentions, may be acquired very imperceptibly, though in reality the trouble is not less in doing this, than the small portion of manly exertion which is requisite, when properly directed, to attain so useful an object as the Hindoostanee language on sound principles ab initio.

The late philological performance of a Mr Lebedeff, who sojourned as a musician for some years in India, hath, by its appearance a few years ago, stamped a real value on Hadley's labours, for he may now comparatively be termed a Classic in Moorish jargon lore, by the acquisition of a second in that department, much more pernicious to learners than the principal ever could have proved, at any period of his reign. It is a melancholy reflection, that a space of thirty or forty years has rather heaped error upon error in the Hindoostanee publications from the London Press, than evinced the smallest tendency to eradicate them entirely. The presence of a Hindoostanee Monshee, even in the metropolis, has apparently produced as yet no other than the preposterous effect of prefixing to the most corrupt dialect of that useful language, a Bungalee alphabet; although we are informed in the same breath by Hadley's editors, that there is little or no affinity between these two dialects. This, however, is nothing to the discordant medley of oriental tongues, prepared by Mr Lebedeff for the instruction of his readers, who will find, by a few months residence in the East Indies, that all their previous labour and pains to acquire its languages by his aid, have proved wholly in vain. To obviate as soon as possible, to the utmost of my ability, so serious and galling a loss of time and money to my countrymen on their way to India, I have been once more induced to devote my leisure hours to their service. Having the fullest conviction, that no future stage of their progress will afford them cause to upbraid me with the charge here preferred against other authors, for that ignorance and incapacity which are still so evident in all the successive attempts at a grammar of the grand popular speech of Hindoostan, I can surely feel no hesitation to express my sentiments accordingly.

Feliciter is sapit qui periculo alieno sapit.

The experience of my friends, as well as my own observations, hath fully convinced me, that in the acquisition of oriental languages, we cannot, at starting, sufficiently shorten and smooth the road to the most useful of the whole; I have therefore submitted this abstract to the suffrages of an indulgent Public, but with no intention of entering the lists as an author against Mr Lebedeff, or any such writers, whatever I may do with more creditable opponents. That there are many very respectable individuals, whose stay is too transitory, or whose duties are too laborious and important in India, to admit of other than desultory study, is a truth which every one must allow, as well as the necessity for such persons still possessing a certain knowledge of the Hindoostanee or current tongue. For people in either of these predicaments, I may safely recommend these sheets, as they deviate very little from the grammatical rules observed in my larger Works, could they even obtain those that are every day growing out of print, which many persons cannot always refer to or employ. This advice is offered in the conviction, that the present introduction is on the whole much easier and plainer than any thing yet published on the colloquial speech of India.

Practical utility has been the great object of my labours, and this has so completely engrossed my attention and time, that no leisure has yet been afforded me to dive deep in the literature of the East. The little I have acquired, has, however, taught me to expect much less solid information from that quarter than most people, in all the great and useful sciences of life, which have in fact been cultivated with much greater avidity, taste, candour, and judgment, in our own vernacular speech, than they have ever yet experienced in the most learned languages of the eastern world; to which our western hemisphere is now as superior in the best and finest arts of peace, as it has ever proved in the more formidable energies of war.

For the tautology unavoidable in a book that is intended to supply the want of a living instructor, whose whole business is repetition, little excuse can be expected, when the reader recollects, that he may require even some more of it before he can well remember many essential points in these sheets.

To insert the oriental letters in a scheme like this, would at once defeat the very object of so small a performance, and render it nearly as discouraging, from the intricacy of its character, as a complete Hindoostanee Grammar, has hitherto been deemed tremendous by its bulk alone. When we advert to the rude state of oriental types even at this day, and to the great incorrectness from points dropping out, and letters often losing their heads or tails in the press, after the whole has been carefully adjusted from two or three revisals, we should almost prefer our own letters to all others, for the dissemination and easy acquirement of the Hindoostanee, among ourselves at least. This mode applies more especially in the grammatical department of that most useful language, the ctymology and construction of which are muc more evident and striking to us in the Roman, than in any other character. After the most ample experience in the application of the Roman alphabet, to no less than six oriental languages in the Polyglot translation of Esop's Fables, I have at last ventured to submit, what I conceive my ne plus ultra of Hindee-Roman orthography, in the following sheets, to the inspection of a candid Public, as I have greatly improved on the various ways of discriminating those letters which have the same sound under different forms; still I can hardly alter any part of the general system of orthoepy and orthography for the better in other respects. Although the Nagree alphabet, peculiar to the Hindoos, have the vowel y, as well as ourselves, in the form of a simple letter, representing a compound sound, I have been tempted at last, for the sake of perfect uniformity, to express it always by ue or ui, in sue, sui, for sy, 100; for the diphthong uo even is also as simple a Nagree This, in fact, latterly the only inconsistent part of scheme, which I have been able to cover, after the minutest care and attena to the subject. At first the writing myn, tyn, hy, myl, and other common words, muen, tuen, hue, muel, may prove a little troublesome and uncouth to the learner, but this, as we proceed in our career in the oriental languages, will be readily accounted for, as one of the unavoidable results of comparative perfection and improvement, which are not very compatible with the former inconveniency of using y, in the double capacity of a vowel and consonant. The person who can conceive that ou or uo, in sound, round, huol, muol, suo, is a diphthong, which expresses the sound of both its component vowels partially together, can be at no loss to comprehend how (huo) and why (hwue) ue is equivalent to y in (drue) dry, &c. more especially if he will, in both diphthongs, consider u as a short a, and o, e, as sounds which, in the order I have assigned them, oscillate according to particular circumstances, from u to ă, a; o, to oo, \omega; and from e to i, ee: thus, suo, sao, suoo, sum, suw, to an Indian ear, would all express very nearly the same diphthongal sound as our word for the animal called a sow. like manner, lae, lai, lue, lui, luee, luy.

le ee, paste, among them, would hardly be discriminated from our words, lie, lye, ly.

The common changes and corruptions of a,o, ja,o, ga,o, ra,o, ha,e, a,e, ue, tipa,ee, sipahee, duhee, daee, bhuoo, and many more, to ow, jow, gae, gow, cow, row, rae, py, y, roy, teapoy, seapoy, die, bhow, &c. will afford some useful information about the above diphthongs, and help, with this part of the system of oriental orthography analytically considered, to establish the accuracy of the uo and ue, now finally adopted to express such sounds. By doing this, I am aware it will be observed, that ou and y, prima facie, were self-evident to an English reader, which uo, ue, cannot of course be. In reply it may be safely alleged, that ou was in general mistaken for oo, particularly by French scholars, and y either treated like the i of imp, or as a mere consonant, by those who would not previously consult my scheme of the alphabet. To make any thing of either uo or ue, people must now refer to the system itself, in pages 3, 4, &c. which, if they will not do, their indolence and apathy necessarily exclude them from the benefit of my labours, as well as from all the reasoning I have had recourse to on the present subject.

How far I have reached perfection, in this new and last attempt to attain it, would be presumptuous in me to affirm, though I may safely allege, that if persevering diligence in the cultivation of any human art ever entitled a mortal to arrive at so enviable a height in it, few men have the claims I possess to be perfect in this branch of Hindoostanee philology at least. twenty-two years progressive improvement in this alone, crowned at last with an experiment upon no less than six oriental languages, for the express purpose of selfconviction, do not qualify me to decide with more precision on these matters than a casual critic, who may chuse to condemn my labours en passant, then indeed have I laboured, so hard and so long, in vain. Far, however, from conceiving myself infallible, among such quick-sands as the organs of hearing and speech confessedly are, I still call on those men who dissent from my opinions, to publish and speak out, in some way or other, their private sentime that we may have not only a fair her before the tribunal of our literary com wealth, but that I also may thereby, if possible, escape the severe sentences which are sometimes passed on me and my works, by very incompetent judges of oriental literature in general, and of the Hindoostanee in particular.

Let such teach others, who themselves excel, And censure freely who have written well. Some few in that, but numbers err in this; Ten censure wrong, for one who writes amiss.

On the subject of pronunciation I may notice, en passant, that the derivatives, and even the inflexions of yih, yuh, this, and worh, wuh, that, are likewise liable to fluctuate: thus, yihan, eehan, ihan, yuhan, hi an, here; wuhan, wohan, whan, hoo an, there; uesa, wuesa, so; cos, wis. One would be induced from the last example to believe, that these pronouns were originally yih, wih, with yis, wis, as their inflexions; but we cannot prosecute the matter further now, as it might insensibly mislead us into a wide field of philological speculation. The scholar will soon perceive, that those letters which I have been erto written singly, though double in the siginal, are now exhibited correct-, by ought in strict propriety to have been long ago, agreeably to my own ob+ servations then upon them. As the Sunskrit, however, drops the first aspirate of two aspirated letters coming together, [ have done the same thing also in words like uch-chha, muk-khce, thut-tha, instead of uchhchha, mukhkhee, thuththa. The hyphen now introduced in such examples, is merely to impress the scholar with the necessity of laying the requisite stress on the first letter of the two, which could not be observed in my former method of expressing them by one only, and the words were consequently very indistinct, nay frequently misunderstood by the natives. The true cause of many examples like the above, and those which will occur in my Works, seems to be the application of a general rule to reduplicated consonants, when long vowels become short, that what is lost from a vowel should so far assist its following consonant. Batee, buttee, a candle, chadur, chuddur, a sheet, chakoo, chukkoo, a knife, matee, mittee, muttee, earth, are common instances in point.

Infinitives, that in the pristine dialects had a in their first syllable, will sometime appear in modern speech with the a conve ted to u, such as rakhna, pakna, chakhna, to have, keep, place, &c. now apparently become rukhna, pukna, to ripen, chukhna, to taste. It is singular enough, that the Mosulmans generally appear in their pronunciation fully to preserve the tushdeed or doubling in ruk-kha, chuk-kha, pukka, for which there is no other way of accounting than to suppose, that both letters, agreeably to the rule just mentioned, existed in the infinitive, quasi pukkna, rukhkhna; but as the natives are not very consistent with each other on this head, it may be left for future investigation. We have endeavoured of late to exhibit the double letters at the end of Arabic radicals, that were not expressed before, in order, not only to comply with the rules in that language, but also to facilitate the acquisition of these derivatives, mudgoog, hectic; murdood, rejected: muhsoos, sensible; muhdood, bounded; hooqooq, from diqq, rudd, hiss, hud, hugg.

While the above were written simply diq, rud, &c. their conversion in the passive participle, &c. must have proved much puzzling to beginners, than it will in future; especially to those who

Table in page 413, &c. with sufficient diligence and attention. Wherever final double letters have not been expressed, this will be owing solely to inadvertency at the time, for their appearance can do no harm whatever, but may produce some good, as illustrated above by examples, which could be greatly increased were this the proper place for them.

The reversed, or Hindoostanee and English Vocabulary, in the Second Volume, will rectify all orthographical omissions or deviations in the First, that may have escaped me, while compiling it from my other publications; in which the orthoepy alone was, and still must be, a matter of more moment to the great majority of my readers, than accurate spelling ever can be in the oriental characters.

For those readers who may still observe, that my present mode of spelling even is not always uniform, it may be necessary to remark, that a careful perusal of pages 33, 34, 35, &c. ought to convince them how impossible it must be to confer stability and consistency upon subjects, where they do not really exist. It is not so much my province to determine, whether shurnardu, shurmundu, shirmundu, shirmindu, ashamed, be the most accurate, as it is my duty to give them all at times, were it for no other purpose than to demonstrate the truth of the rules I have just quoted, and to accustom learners to such varieties as they will certainly meet with in their travels over India. This observation may be extended almost ad infinitum, whenever letters are so interchangeable as they certainly are in the Hindoostanee and other oriental languages; whence, khenchna, khuenchna, kheenchna, to draw; khorshed, khorshued, khorsheed, the sun. I have at times been startled myself at the new and strange appearance of particular words, but when the Monshees quoted the authority of excellent dictionaries for them, acquiescence on my part became a matter of course, and I trust the intelligent reader will not be less reasonable

That there are many scholars in India who are deterred from studying the most useful and general language of which it can boast, from the apprehension of the difficulty they must encounter in the attempt, is a truth which few people will controvert, though every intelligent man must lament its baneful effects. When we learn, that a number of those very individuals are actually acquainted with one or more of the most classical languages of the East, our wonder is excited, that they, of all others, should neglect the Hindoostanee, after having proceeded as Orientalists half way at least, before they fairly begin this excellent tongue. Our astonishment, however, will cease, when we advert to the history of man in all ages and climes; because we shall every where perceive him so much of an imitative animal, in spite of all his boasted reason, that we can easily account for the following sentiment from the writers of antiquity.

Oscitante uno, deinde oscitat et alter. Si juxta claudum habites, subclaudicare disces.

Had the last adage not been too fatally verified, our general vitious pronunciation and ignorance of the Hindoostanee, and of many local customs at this period, in both the civil and military services, would not appear so conspicuous as they must have been to every candid enquirer. When a native teacher or Monshee strives to conceal his total incapacity to teach, or even comprehend, the rules of grammar in his vernacular speech, and is moreover uncandid enough to blame it, instead of his own pride, ignorance and stupidity, what can reasonably be expected from foreigners like us, in the acquisition and cultivation of their language? Nothing but the general neglect it has experienced, until a liberal Patron, worthy of so patriotic a task, appeared in the person of Marquis Wellesley, to give a new turn and laudable energy to useful literary pursuits in British India. His Lordship's vigorous mind and discriminating character would have effectually prevented every misrepresentation on this head, had there even been men found so fool-hardy as to make the attempt under his Government. It is saying a great deal for the candour and veracity of the community at large, that no such people did appear before his Lordship, when it is considered, that almost every gentleman, who might support the cause of the Hindoostanee, was liable to this little puzzling question-If it be really so useful in the official situation you have long filled, pray why did you not learn this fact and the language together many years ago? Few men willingly acknowledge the existence of ignorance and error for a series of years under such circumstances, as pride, prudence, and self-interest, commonly induce most people to conceal every thing of this kind as much as possible; although the truly wise and good must often perceive the force of these sentiments, and act accordingly. Even a useful truth may, like the sun itself, be suppressed or obscured for a time by the clouds of prejudice and overwhelming injustice, but the hour will come at last, as it has to the Hindoostanee, when reason and fact will break forth, as clear as noon-day, to dazzle the weak eyes of a few, who still shrink from those rays of light, which will expand in every direction through the British empire, under the auspices of a wise and liberal Government. The following sheets may go very far to extend a knowledge of the Hindoostanee among a respectable number of the King's and Company's civil and military servants, at the same time they will greatly assist the mere Hindoostanee, in his commencement of every other oriental language. Whoever shall have perseverance enough to go through this Volume, will. I am convinced, acquire some relish for the popular speech of India, and enough of it to carry him much farther in the pursuit of Eastern lore, than he at first expected.

Errare est hominis, sed non persistere, sæpe Optimus est portus, vertere consilium.

Satius est recurrere quam currere male, Dimidium facti, qui cæpit, habet, sapere aude.

Indeed this idea chiefly prevailed on me to prefer the plan I have adopted to many others which were suggested, in order to prevail on the youth destined to India to acquire at least some little knowledge of the Hindoostanee. When I once get them as far as they may go, with little or no trouble, in this publication, I shall trust to their own candour, good sense and experience to proceed some steps farther. Should the present attempt succeed, as I both wish and expect, it may induce me to publish a regular series, as already stated, of all my works.

There are not wanting some very warm advocates, even among expert Orientalists, for an exclusive adoption of the Roman letters in all Hindoostanee publications, intended expressly for beginners or for military men and others, who wish to learn the languages of the East, rather as acquisitions subservient to the due execution of their duty, than as classic accomplishments for the improvement of their minds, as men or I shall candidly admit, that my own opinion, nearly coincides with the notions of the gentlemen to whom I now allude, and of some learned men, who lately proposed to express the Greek, Hebrew, German, and other languages by the Roman letters (with certain modifications) alone. That such a project is practicable, with many advantages to the public, I have not the smallest doubt in my own mind; but how far it would be politic or prudent, in a literary point of view, to substitute the Roman toga universally, for the ancient garb of those venerable tongues, is a question that may require more consideration than I can bestow upon it at present. Many people of sound judgment may probably object, that learning, like religion, ought not to appear too destitute of those ornaments and forms, which excite that respect and admiration at first sight, so conducive afterwards to the permanent and benign influence of Christianity and literature on the minds of men. This is far from being the case, however, with the Hindoostanee, and I shall be able to judge from the result of the present trial, whether simplicity of character can always command success in literary pursuits or not. In its application to six oriental languages, the candid scholar, by consulting page 49, will have a fair opportunity of observing its advantages and defects, as a general character, nor will the adept in any of these tongues, be now at a loss to expose the inefficacy of the Hindoostanee, as an introductory acquisition to the rest, provided any of my translations into them prove very incorrect.

The Roman alphabet, that I have used, is fully adequate to express all the various oriental sounds, however defective it must naturally appear, when two or more letters are employed to denote only one sound, against which, however, I have at last proposed a remedy, in page 45, that will, in general, answer all the purposes of Hindee-Roman orthoepigraphy much better than the opposers of my system will yet allow. As an orthographical index, it certainly is more deficient in the Arabic, than in any other tongue, for this evident reason, that the Arabians, like ourselves, have cherished an orthoepy at variance with orthography, or vice versa, which the more philosophical Hindoo philologers have very sparingly done.

There are two modes of beginning to learn a language, the theoretic and practical, but in my opinion, each has its peculiar advantages. Men advanced in life who have many other pursuits, and at the same time are general grammarians, ought at once to have recourse to practice, and from it revert progressively to the theory of the language, with much less trouble than they otherwise could do. On the contrary, young people, or those who are not versed in the principles of general grammar, should invariably commence with the elementary rules, and finish with practice. Analagous to these general methods, we may also enumerate two, for the study of the oriental tongues in particular, with the greatest chance of ultimate success. When the public are in possession of good Sunskrit and Arabic grammars, the sooner a student, who is intended for the East, commences these acquisitions as classic languages, the greater progress he must afterwards make in almost every oriental tongue, when he men may be very profound in oriental learning, without having any dexterity or useful knowledge in business; by which alone they can defend the illiterate multitude from the talons of those pedantic cormorants, who will otherwise prey on the blood and vitals of the great body of the people, in all the subordinate offices of our Indian empire, and of course clamour much against any gentleman condescending to as an eastern .....

most useful part of those ornanician. I suits for a gentleman and polite scholar in the western world, because with some improvement in the mode of teaching the classics, more may be gained in two years than has hitherto been acquired in four. The improvement to which I here allude, and on which I shall enlarge in the Second Volume, is simply to begin every learner with a well grounded grammatical knowledge of his own mother-tongue, as the most rational and easy prelude to adequate proficiency in the grammar of every other. language.

With such a foundation as that proposed above, any youth of ordinary capacity must attention and perseverance on the teacher and scholars' part, for a few weeks at first, which is a small matter, when contrasted with the great advantage of speaking intelligibly to the people of India, in their vernacular tongue.

It is a curious but a real fact, that they have added three letters to our alphabet, which it does not possess, viz. the harsh d, t, r, from their inability to perceive, that these letters among us rather approximate to the soft series, which alone exists in the Persian, than to those hard consonants officers, have the acquisition of the of every description.

on real grammatical prince is foundable since such an acquisition, as now conducted, never afterwards that against the student's proficiency in the more classic principal languages.

Thomas desired at first secure men may be very profound in oriental learning, without having any dexterity or useful knowledge in business; by which alone they can defend the illiterate multitude from the talons of those pedantic cormorants, who will otherwise prey on the blood and vitals of the great body of the people, in all the subordinate offices of our Indian empire, and of course clamour much against any gentleman condescending to learn the vulgar tongue, or deigning to converse directly with the common suitors in any court of justice.

It is this colloquial information also, by which, in fact, we can with propriety exact that reverence and respect from the native officers, between us and our Indian subjects, that will effectually restrain them, by due awe and subordination to us, from plundering and oppressing their own countrymen as they have hitherto, too often with impunity, done, in spite of all our former oriental classic lore.

In the Grammatical introduction, the subject of pronunciation has been adverted. to, as one of the most formidable obstacles in acquiring the Hindoostanee language, but one also which may easily be overcome by attention and perseverance on the teacher and scholars' part, for a few weeks at first, which is a small matter, when contrasted with the great advantage of speaking intelligibly to the people of India, in their vernacular tongue.

It is a curious but a real fact, that they have added three letters to our alphabet, which it does not possess, viz. the harsh d, t, r, from their inability to perceive, that these letters among us rather approximate to the soft series, which alone exists in the Persian, than to those hard consonants in the Nagree alphabet that prove so troublesome to us in the acquisition of the Hindoostanee. As this innovation is founded upon fallacy and misconception entirely, and as it multiplies characters, not only unnecessarily, but also with a discordant effect, on words like doctor, captain, &c. when incorporated with the Hindoostance, it would be well if every scholar were to set his face against so useless, and erroneous a practice. It distorts our names, multiplies and disfigures our letters, for no one good purpose, except to prove, that hitherto our literary intercourse with the Hindoostanees has been extremely limited, otherwise they could not have persisted in this glaring error so long, which, like many more blunders of this nature, originates in that general inadvertency of the multitude to particular facts, till they are properly illustrated and explained by individual research.

That a reversed Hindoostanee Dictionary would be a valuable acquisition to oriental literature, is sufficiently apparent; but if the students of that language will duly reflect on what follows, such a work is not quite so indispensable and essential to their progress as many people suppose. the first place, I am just publishing an extensive reversed Vocabulary in the Second Volume, which may generally be of the greatest use, when such a Dictionary is required. In the second place, very few beginners will properly advert to the absolute necessity of learning a sufficient stock of words by heart, and to the inference that follows such an acquisition. With two or three thousand vocables and a competent idea of grammar, every scholar of. common industry and penetration possesses the means of increasing the amount to any number, without consulting a dictionary.

The mere exertion, on this plan, gives op. portunities of learning words that could not otherwise occur; and, what is of far greater consequence, the meaning of every word thus found out by the student becomes partly a discovery, which is accordingly cherished with greater affection in the mind, as a creature of his own. That misconceptions will at times occur, nay, that every effort to learn the true sense of the word will now and then prove abortive, I am not so fool-hardy as to deny; still, every body who fairly makes the experiment must find, that such an accident will be rare indeed, if he will form or select some easy sentences in which the vocables under discussion are used. There cannot be a great many useful words in any language, whose signification is not in general very evident from the tenor of the sentence or speech in which they appear. Let us illustrate this by two familiar examples, which every intelligent reader may extend, reverse, or modify, as he pleases. "When rushk is excited among scholars, application and proficiency will be the result." "Every man from tujussob conceives his own religion the best." Little philological acumen will be requisite at once to determine, that rushk must signify emulation, competition, ambition, &c. nor can tu ussob well be taken here for any thing but prejudice, prepossession, &c. Granting even, that habit or any other meaning strikes the learner first, he can easily put it to the test, in one or two more sentences, either of his own finding out, or if in the East, he can apply to his Monshee. Under circumstances like the above. which the learner may multiply ad libitum, let me earnestly entreat of him always to refer to the English words in my Vocabulary, that he may conceive right, and in all probability this will prove a complete confirmation of his own discoveries. have been the more earnest on this head. because the spirit of procrastination, which is so apt to fetter European energies in a warm climate, too often broods with selfcomplacency on the non-existence of a reversed Dictionary, as an excellent apology for the want of exertion, wherever that evil genius takes entire possession of our faculties, and wheedles us from the acquisitionof the Hindoostanee or any other useful pursuit. The procrastinators who fondly hope to make great progress the moment that I reverse my Dictionary, will then be as far removed from activity of mind as they are now, so they may take my word for it, that their progress in Hindoostanee will after all be very little advanced by the expected Work; which may nevertheless form an early number among my intended volumes.

The directions given in some of my late Works, for the punctuation of sentences in the oriental languages, and their division into paragraphs or sections, will, I flatter myself, pave the way for a new era, in both the chirography and typography of the East, which have hitherby remained in their pristine state of confusion and obscurity. have even gone so far as to enforce the principle, observed in our printing, which preserves words distinct from each other, by joining the letters of each as closely as possible, and interposing spaces between distinct vocables alone. Though the oriental types are not yet too well adapted to this great improvement, I have nevertheless tried it for the information of the reader, to prepare him for this excellent expedient, in all future works, which should invariably exhibit every individual word as separate and detached as these appear in the books and writings of the western world. That the lazy Indians, and their more indolent abettors, will declaim against this beneficial innovation, is very probable; but a similar outcry has been the concomitant obstruction of every discovery or reformation among the sons of Adam, since the creation of the world to the present day; I cannot therefore expect more indulgence than my predecessors in similar walks of improvement and reform, nor shall I feel less sanguine of ultimate success than the most fortunate of them have done. When the practical utility of my labours has had time to be diffused among the best judges of their merits, I despair not of converting those even, who, on a superficial view of the subject, would be the first to oppose every attempt of the kind. From one reflection I cannot avoid deriving the most heartfelt satisfaction, and it is this, that if my efforts to facilitate the acquisition of Hindoostanee, through the medium of an improved typographical system, prove successful, all the oriental languages may, and probably will, derive much advantage in the same department, which has hitherto proved the grand stumbling-block against a rapid progress in the eastern tongues, to all Europeans who have devoted their time to such pursuits. Were those who sojourn in India fully aware of the many evils which result from a very imperfect knowledge or absolute ignorance of the Hindoostanee, wewould soon perceive an immense number of adepts in this most useful speech, even in the metropolis of the British Indian empire. Many men there most absurdly conceive, that as the Calcutta Bungalees generally can chatter a barbarous species of English, there is no necessity for a European learning the country languages. mistake can be more fatal than this, because affairs of the utmost moment to the parties concerned are thus entrusted to the accidental conception of English by an apathetic native, who too often pretends to know a whole sentence in that language, when in reality he does not properly comprehend one word of it. Gentlemen who have important transactions to manage with the Indians, through the medium of Europeans, ought to weigh this matter well, before they employ any who have not at least a competent acquaintance with Hindoostanee or Bungalee, otherwise they must expect to meet with losses and crosses of the worst kind. That dangerous misconceptions, under such circumstances, do not more frequently happen to British Indians, must rather be attributed to our auspicious fortune, than our good management; or to that concealment and silence, which frequently prevent disasters of this nature from becoming public. The very discordant accounts by both ancient and modern travellers, relative to India, may doubtless originate in their too frequent ignorance of the languages current over the countries through which they travel, as historians or philosophers; and to the confidence they must, so situated, place in illiterate, stupid, or designing interpreters.

So far from wishing to pamper and confirm that mental torpor, to which our countrymen, on their arrival in India, are but too prone, from the enervating effects of a warm climate, and the still more dangerous influence of example, I have strained every nerve to obviate its baneful effects, by endeavouring to teach every youth there to think and act for himself on that important occasion. That my assertions are true, as far at least as the Hindoostance language is concerned, we may learn from the annals of literature in that country, where, strange to tell, the men whose official situations alone ought to make them proficients in the popular tongue, have been, till lately, with a very few exceptions, quite ignorant of the matter. What is still worse, their Indian monitors are doubly interested in confirming that ignorance, of which every native, but those very men, as well every person not hoodwinked by misplaced partiality, with so much reason complain. The great experience which I lately enjoyed in this department enables me to declare with confidence, that where one Monshee is to be found either inclined or qualified to teach the Hindoostanee on grammatical principles, there are ninetynine, with some ability, eager and willing to instruct us in the Persian and Arabic languages. To counteract such accumulated and growing obstacles to the diffusion of the popular speech of Hindoostan, I have had recourse to the present publication, and I hope with some success. I feel perfectly convinced, that the happiness and prosperity of the British Indian empire is more intimately connected with our general progress in the most useful languages of India, than our great erudition in their learned tongues; and that those are the only safe medium, by which we can avoid many evils and some delusive errors among us, that are founded entirely on a misconception of the native character, by people under peculiar local attachments, not less injurious to them, than to the real interests of the British empire, both in Asia and Europe. In a country so situated as Hindoostan has long been, it requires very little discernment to predict the fatal consequences which must through time ensue from the fascinating influence of native favourites of either sex, when unfortunately exerted against the justice, respect, civility, and attention, which are due on many occasions to the national rights, spirit, and character of the conquerors of India, in the persons of individuals in that distant quarter of the globe. The extremes of virtues become real vices, and in regions like those it is difficult to say, whether oppression or too much indulgence be the greatest evil; though no one can doubt of a middle path being, as in other critical cases, by far the best.

On the particular theme of eastern pedantry, I have observed so much in page 295, that it would almost prove a mere repetition to state more to the same purpose here; I cannot, however, suppress the following remarks. Although Persian writings are too often liable to the very same misplaced display of Arabic erudition, which every person will detect even in the best Hindoostanee authors, I have been credibly informed, that the present Monarch of Persia is very partial to simplicity of style in his epistolary correspondence and compositions; consequently, that the modern language of his dominions now inclines much more to the ancient Puhluwee. than ever it has yet done, since the Mosulmans subjugated that delightful country, and its fascinating original tongue. How far the present countenance, which the Hindoostanee receives from the highest authority now in India, will be equally successful in reducing its compositions in future to the level of common sense, and the comprehension of the people at large, time only can tell; and I fondly hope, that the hoary sage will not frustrate all my endeavours for so desirable an event to the natives of India, as well as ourselves.

To Persian works composed by the people of India, the very same objections may be started that actually exist against Hindoostanee compositions executed by Mmsulmans born in Bungalu. To the former, the real vernacular speech of Persia must be very imperfectly known, and that it has a considerable bias to the Puhluwee seems pretty evident from many particulars, which cannot with propriety be introduced here. Writers, under such circumstances, must conceal their want of local knowledge beneath the splendid cloak of that classic lore in which the Qoran is solely composed, and as they do not labour under the same impediments which naturally check the literati of Europe from similar incroachments, the blind even may see, that the misapplication of oriental erudition is too often the genuine offspring of real ignorance. I shall illustrate this, I trust, to every candid reader's satisfaction, by the following fact: In Hindoostan, the local dialects everywhere assimilate so much with the pronunciation of the grand popular tongue, that numberless Hinduwee words pervade the current speech or Hindoostanee in that quarter, which are freely used and well understood by the Mosulmans as well as Hindoos. In the province of Bungalu, the whole phenomena are reversed, little or no intermixture of the provincial dialect can or does take place, consequently Arabic or Persian words must supply the want of local terms in that region. Let any oriental scholar attend carefully to the Hindoostanee, spoken in the markets by the bulk of the people beyond Bhagulpoor, and to that idiom of it which is current on the Bungalu side of the boundary, for the truth of my doctrines. If he find me wrong, and will come forwards with his observations and sentiments as a gentleman and a scholar, I shall do my best to meet him on the same footing, before the public tribunal, and I promise, when confuted there, to sign my recantation in the face of all the world.

I might also venture to extend my opinion even to the Hindoostanee writings, under the same limitations and terms, were I not conscious that the itch of pedantry has long been the literary epidemic of India, which may yet, in spite of every nostrum, become more inveterately confirmed than ever, and even spread its baneful influence to the British Isles.

The persevering efforts which I have made to banish all learned lumber from the Hindoostanee, will not, at this period, I flatter myself, be misconstrued into any wish for the expulsion also of all concord, propriety, accuracy of speech, and pronunciation, by those men who, not having at first acquired the grammar of that language, wisely affect afterwards to undervalue and despise it. The absurd and risible blunders that inexperienced or foolish scholars must at first commit, in their indiscriminate essays to speak grammatically to individuals of the various tribes and nations scattered over. India, as Johnson observes on a similar occasion, " may for a time furnish folly with laughter and harden ignorance in contempt, but useful diligence will at last prevail, and there never can be wanting some who distinguish desert." Should my exposure of Hindoostanee pedantry ever be maliciously represented as a hostile attack on the learned languages of the East, let my enemies carefully peruse the Polyglot translation of Esop's Fables, and then candidly declare, how little I merit such censure, and how much those very acquisitions are esteemed by me, though I have not yet made any great progress in them. That Arabic and Sunskrit are the grand sources of real oriental literature, I never was silly enough to deny; on the contrary, I respect them in the higher regions of science, as they richly deserve. It is only when these pure fountains overflow their natural bounds and come sweeping down like a torrent on the plains of common language and ordinary discourse, that I take up arms to oppose their overwhelming career. I, perhaps absurdly, conceive that a wide diffusion of profound eastern erudition is neither very requisite for our general transactions in India, nor that it is on the whole so conducive to mental improvement, happiness, and morality, as our own, however much I may rejoice to see the British youth sufficiently initiated in the grammar, idiom, and useful works of all the languages spoken or understood in India. Whoever reflects for a moment, that the people who' speak their own general language grammatically, are invariably understood much better by the vulgar in each province, than those men can comprehend the provincial dialects, I fancy he will not hesitate to decide in favour of learning the Hindoostanee on sound principles at once. If education be essential to the character of a gentleman among us, its limits must be narrow indeed, when they do not embrace a grammatical knowledge of our own tongue; then why despise the same criterion in other languages? Some very young students have been absolutely deterred from learning the popular language of India, by assurances, that neither I nor my scholars can make ourselves understood by the natives. If those good men, who so confidently say so, could only accompany my pupils or me, by way of trial, through all the intermediate stages of society in Hindoostan, I am confident of convincing them in person, that they never were more mischievously deceived or mistaken in their lives, and that to deter others, who cannot know better, from a useful pursuit, by fabricated stories of blunders, which never existed, is a species of bull-baiting, neither very manly nor becoming in any gentleman.

The Sunskrit being the grand palladium of every Hindoo art and science, a knowledge of it is indispensible for any person who expects to be an adept in the religious and civil history of ancient India: On the other hand, the Arabic is no less advantageous in all that relates to Mohummud and his followers.

Youths of extraordinary talents might be deputed, at the expence of the state, with encouraging allowances, to acquire beneficial arts and profound knowledge abroad, in the several walks of science, for which their various capacities may prove best adapted.

Men who leave their native homes, merely in quest of fortune in foreign climes, have commonly important duties to perform, which allow them little leisure to cultivate that knowledge and information with sufficient accuracy, which might be acquired in every region of the globe, were people resident there with no other official avocations. The former class of scholars may, with great propriety, be compared to simple gleaners in the wide fields of a literary harvest, from whom the public can expect but a slender stock for the commonwealth of letters; whereas men appointed purposely to this duty, must become reapers at once, and, to preserve their own character, will naturally return loaded with an ample supply of literary materials to their patrons and employers. In one way, a few years will effect more in the service of real science and learning, than a century possibly can procure by the other, in which it must be recollected, that more than half of the subsequent time is too often fruit-lessly spent in forgetting or correcting all the mistakes, generated during the preceding period of desultory research.

To beginners, who can but ill brook any misconception by the natives, when speaking to them, I must observe, that until the voice, manner of speaking, or tone of the speaker, be a little familiar to a Hindoostanee hearer, he will not readily comprehend what has been said in his own language. This frequently affords a momentary triumph to the Jargonists of an audience, who very sapiently remark, that this is the natural consequence of preferring grammatical accuracy of speech to their usual Jargon. Let no man of sound judgment, however, be terrified by such a bug-bear, because every Jargonist, cæteris paribus, must be exposed to the very same disappointments. Independent of the natural stupidity and apathy, which too often disgrace the Hindoostanees on such occasions, there is a species of low cunning, or national policy, about many of them, which is no less vexatious in its consequences to a young scholar. He probably asks a very plain, disinterested question, which the native perfectly comprehends, and could answer immediately. His suspicious temper, or guilty conscience, takes the alarm, he fears there is something insidious in the interrogation, and, to prepare his mind for an evasive or defensive reply, he very adroitly pretends not to have understood the speech which was addressed to him. A short pause then intervenes, before the expression can well be repeated, and this generally gives the wily native leisure enough to recollect, in a guarded answer, his scattered senses, which had been beating every bush in the neighbourhood for the anguis in herba, that they constantly expect to encounter in every query. I appeal to the careful observer of Asiatic manners, who has not yet allowed his private affections entirely to mislead his judgment on their general character, for the truth of these remarks.

The learned reader will, I suspect, be surprised now to meet with oriental composition in the Roman character, unless he dispassionately considers my reasons for still persisting in that practice. I shall therefore close this long digression with a remark or two more upon that subject. Independent of the accuracy of pronunciation, and the competent idea of the inflexion and concord of words, which this plan affords to the learner of Hindoostanee, people forget, that the whole is a mere extension of the alphabetical principles, on which any foreign language is necessarily represented by our own letters individually to us, as the learners of such a tongue. If these principles be just originally, the superstructure upon them cannot be wrong, however requisite it may afterwards be to exhibit and read languages under their own appropriate symbols. Men who neglect system in these matters, at their first outset, and, in the true spirit of perverseness, affect to despise it ever after, afford very sufficient proofs of its value, by the inconsistent and ever varying modes they naturally follow, when forced to express oriental vocables in the Roman character to their readers. If the mere view of a strange character could alone convey its power to the reader's mind, and thereby confer the faculty of just pronunciation on his organs of speech, the common inconsiderate outcry against my Hindee-Roman System would be well founded; and, indeed, as it formerly stood, I must allow that one grand objection was properly started, viz. that my scholars were taught to speak accurately, sometimes at the future expence of their oriental spelling. The orthoepigraphical plan now followed obviates every thing of that nature, and rather paves the way for, than obstructs the acquisition of the oriental alphabets, as they become progressively requisite to the student, with the advantage of reconciling his mind gradually to all the difficulties he must afterwards encounter as an eastern scholar, which is an object, to most juvenile minds, of no small importance.

- In the multitude of counsellors there may be safety, when these are duly qualified to offer the advice required; every person, therefore, will do well, before he follows any relative to his own application to the languages, to ask his advisers to translate the following easy sentence in the Hindoostanee, or popular language: "Hindee zuban murboot toom seekho to seekho, pur muen ne aj tuluk yoonhee seekhee hue."

If this be readily complied with, by furnishing a translation and analysis in writing, the beginner ought implicitly to follow the plan his friends may lay down for the future prosecution of his studies, otherwise he should hesitate and advert to the fate of the blind leading the blind in any pursuit whatever. At all events, my solicitude at the very commencement of such literary labours is so far pardonable, as I honestly wish the tyro should trust neque cœcum ducem, neque amentem consultorem, in all important matters of this kind.

Were the learner to task his self every day with carefully extracting so many words regularly from this volume, into a neat book, he would soon be master of the whole by heart; and, by acquiring only those words first which occur progressively, he would very quickly lay in a stock of the utmost consequence to a beginner. When these objects have been attained, marginal spaces may be appropriated solely to encrease the original store, or to a reversed scheme of the whole, including such remarks and observations as the learner's progress may enable him occasionally to make on the subject of his studies. As he proceeds, his labour will be smoothed with the pleasing conviction, that almost every word acquired from these sheets may be brought to the profit side of his account at once, for most of the oriental tongues, without the smallest apprehension of being constrained by experience to insert many items to the score of loss, as he must inevitably do with the most of his acquisitions from Hadley, and others of that stamp.

On this theme I feel particular satisfaction in subjoining the following extract from the learned and ingenious philological lucubrations of Mr H. T. Colebrooke, in the 7th volume of the Asiatic Researches, page 923. "On the subject of the modern dialect of Upper India, I with pleasure refer to the works of Mr Gilchrist, whose labours have now made it easy to acquire the knowledge of an elegant language, which is used in every part of Hindoostan and the Dukhin; which is the common vehicle of colloquial intercourse among all well educated natives, and among the illiterate also, in many provinces of India; and which is almost every where intelligible to some among the inhabitants of every village.

"Without passing the limits of Hindoostan, it would be easy to collect a copious list of different dialects, in the various provinces which are inhabited by the ten principal Hindoo nations. The extensive region, which is nearly defined by the banks of the Suruswutee and Gunga on the north, and which is strictly limited by the shores of the eastern and western seas towards the south, contains fifty-seven provinces according to some lists, and eighty-four according to others. Each of these provinces has its peculiar dialect, which appears, however, in most instances, to be a variety only of some one among the ten principal idioms. Thus Hindoostanee, which seems to be the lineal descendant of the Kanyukoobju, comprises numerous dialects, from the Ourdoo zuban, or language of the royal camp and court, to the barbarous jargon, which reciprocal mistakes have introduced among European gentlemen and their native servants. The same tongue, under its more appropriate denomination of Hindee, comprehends many dialects strictly local and provincial. They differ in the proportion of Arabic, Persian, and Sunskrit, either pure or slightly corrupted, which they contain; and some shades of difference may be also found in the pronunciation, and even in the basis of each dialect."*

To enable the Hindoostanee student to judge and decide for his self as soon as possible, I have here also deemed it my duty to insert the very judicious and irrefragable arguments in Mr W. B. Bayley's Collegial Thesis, published a few years ago, on the importance and utility of that language.

"The language which in my proposition I have specified by the name of Hindoostanee, is also frequently denominated Hindee, Oordoo, Mosulmanee, and Rekhtu. It is compounded of the Arabic, Persian, and Spinskrit, or Bhakha, which last appears to have been in former ages the current language of Hindoostan.

* The slight orthographical deviations in a few words from Sir William Jones's plan to my own, will surely be pardoned here, as every author has the same right, on such occasions, to make free with mine.

- "Owing, in some measure, to the intercourse of the merchants of Arabia with this country, but more particularly to frequent invasions by the Mosulmans, and their ultimate settlement in it, a considerable number of Arabic and Persian words became engrafted on the original language of the natives, and out of this mixture arose a new language, the Hindoostanee, like a modern superstructure on an ancient foundation.
- "By degrees it assumed its present appearance and estimation, and the court of Dihlee made choice of it, as the medium in all affairs depending on colloquial intercourse. Hence its influence gradually spread abroad so widely, that it became universally used in the courts of the Mosulman princes. Many of the native inhabitants also grew familiarized to it, and used it in all concerns, the validity of which did not depend upon written documents.
- "As the intercourse and communication of the Mosulmans with the natives of India was greater or less, according to certain circumstances and situations, the Hindbostanee naturally varied considerably, with respect to the prevalence of one or other of the languages composing it. This circumstance will sanction a division of it into three distinct dialects: namely, the pristine, or country; the middle, or familiar; and the learned, or court dialect; each of which are respectively useful in different districts, situations, and families.

- "In the first, or pristine dialect, there is a smaller admixture of foreign words; hence this is more nearly related to the original dialects of the country.
- " In the second, or familiar dialect, the number of foreign words bears nearly an equal proportion to the original ones.
- "In the third, or court dialect, Arabic and Persian words are by far the most numerous.
- "It is unnecessary for me to explain the various moral and physical causes, which have rendered the Hindoostanee less prevalent in some parts of India than in others, since they must be evident to every reflecting mind. This circumstance, however, by no means invalidates my proposition; for, although I can grant that particular dialects are spoken by the inhabitants of several districts and provinces of India, yet I assert, that no one of them, taken individually, is so generally useful and necessary as the Hindoostanee: Nor will my assertion appear too bold when it be considered, that, however extensive a country may be, and how numerous soever the dialects spoken in it, still the language of its court and metropolis will always be most generally known and understood, and must of consequence be that most worthy of attention and cultivation by foreigners.

- "I shall now advert to a few arguments, which I trust will be convincing and satisfactory proofs of the truth of my proposition.
- "In the whole of the vast country of Hindoostan, scarce any Masulman will be found, who does not understand and speak the Hindoostanee.
- "Every Hindoo also, of any distinction, or who has the least connection either with the Mosulman or the British government, is, according to his situation, acquainted, more or less, with this language.
- "It is moreover the general medium by which many persons of various foreign nations, settled in Hindoostan, communicate their wants and ideas to each other. Of the truth of this indeed we ourselves are an evidence, as are the Portuguese, Dutch, French, Danes, Arabs, Turks, Greeks, Armenians, Georgians, Persians, Moghuls, and Chinese.

- "In almost all the armies of India this appears to be the universally used language, even though many of the individuals composing them be better acquainted with the dialects peculiar to their respective districts.
- "Nearly from Cape Comorin to Kabool, a country about 2000 miles in length, and 1400 in breadth, within the Ganges, few persons will be found in any large villages or towns, which have ever been conquered or much frequented by Mosulmans, who are not sufficiently conversant in the Hindoostanee; and in many places beyond the Ganges, this language is current and familiar.
- "An accurate knowledge of the customs and manners of a nation, depends principally on an acquaintance with its colloquial languages; and in no country, perhaps, is this knowledge more essential, or a more descrable object of attainment, than in Hindoostan, the inhabitants of which differ so widely in religion, laws, customs, and prejudices.

- "When the conquerors and rulers of a country are unacquainted with the current speech of their subjects, the natural consequences must evidently be, injustice on the one part, and disaffection on the other.
- "Although, in the popular language of any country, there may be a deficiency of books of science, still that language is the most proper and necessary for conducting the affairs of civil government and commerce, of military as well as judicial concerns. I may here observe, that many centuries have not elapsed since the learning, laws, and religion of our own country, were preserved and studied in a foreign language: that language, however, has been superseded by the English, a sufficient proof that the current language of the country was deemed most worthy of cultivation and study.
- "Although the Hindoostanee language does not boast of very many prose compositions, or works of science, yet how many elegant tales and beautiful poems have been composed in it! How universally are commercial and military concerns, and even political correspondence of the highest consequence, connected with it, and carried on

- in it! And in this place I may observe, that the instructions of the learned natives, and all their disputations and arguments on subjects of literature, are conducted in it; and that in every case, where a native of this country wishes either to compose or to dictate any thing to be written, he constantly arranges his ideas, and explains his meaning, in the Hindoostanee.
- "Lastly, a correct and general knowledge of this language greatly facilitates the acquisition of many others, and is the only mean by which we can prevent injustice and imposition.
- "If the assertions which I have here made be founded on truth, what argument can be brought to invalidate my proposition? The conclusion from the premises is this, that to the merchant, the traveller, the civil and military officer, the philosopher and physician; in short, to every one who carries on concerns of any moment in India, the Hindoostanee language is more generally necessary and advantageous than any other; and, on this account, it ought to be the most cultivated and esteemed."

Some years ago I received the following very acceptable note, from one of my juvenile friends, whose progress in all the oriental languages more than kept pace with the laudable ardour displayed here for the general diffusion of useful knowledge. As the publication of the extract which he communicated, may conduce powerfully to the speedy triumph of truth, in behalf of the Hindoostanee language at Madras, I have used the freedom to lay it before the public, in the conviction that the able Writer alluded to, never could take offence at a liberty, which may soon produce the most beneficial consequences, by communicating his judicious opinions to the gentlemen on that very valuable, extensive, and encreasing establishment.

"Wherever I go, I shall carry with me the same grateful recollection of your kindness and assistance, the same zeal for the honourable cause in which you have been so long engaged."

Soton kee neend men kurne ko khulul jajoonga, Nooto kuhta hue mera aj yih hur natio se; Ankur honth ubhee tootee ke mul jajoonga

" I send you the opinion of one of the first and best informed men at Madras, on the subject of the languages necessary for carrying on the duties at that Presidency, as far as the Hindoostanee is concerned."

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman at Madras, dated 19th June 1802.

It is scarcely necessary for me to notice the Hindoostanee dialect, the extent and force of which are sufficiently known to all persons, who have directed their attention, either to the business or to the literature of India. A copious knowledge of that dialect is, in my judgment, alone sufficient for the transaction of ordinary affairs in any part of the territories under this Government; but it will be obvious to you, that the use of it will be found more extensive and more common in those parts, which have been more immediately, and for a longer period of time, subjected to the Mahomedan voke. Throughout the territories of the Nabob of Arcot, and the Balaghaut dominions of the late Tippoo Sultan, the use of the Hindoostanee dialect is familiar to all persons employed in the public offices of Government, and to a great portion of the common people; but this observation is more extensively applicable to Mysoor, than to the Carnatic. All the officers of the Sultan's government having been Mahomedans, who are generally too proud or too ignorant to understand any but their own language, the Hindoostanee necessarily became the general channel of communication in the departments of the army, the law, and the revenue. It is long since the same causes have ceased to affect the general manners of the Carnatic under the Nabobs of Arcot. The armies nominated for its protection, have been composed of natives of every description, and exclusively commanded by European officers: few traces of a judicial establishment are discoverable: the Nabobs of Arcot have taken into their service European ministers; and those ministers have necessarily employed interpreters or dubashes, the effect of all which causes has tended to diminish the Mahomedans influence, and to revive the original manners of the Hindoo inhabitants of the different provinces. In the northern Circars, the traces of the Mahomedan conquest, in this respect, are more faint than in the Carnatic, and I believe that they are less perceptible in most of the southern provinces. In speaking therefore of the general utility of the Hindoostanee language, it may be proper to qualify it by an exception with respect to the judicial department, particularly in the northern Circars, and in the provinces south of the Coleroon; for I doubt that a person possessing a knowledge of the Hindoostanee dialect alone would be competent to discharge the duties of a judge in those districts."

The writer of the foregoing letter, Mr Webb, is since dead, and my late pupil, Mr Jonathan Henry Lovett, is, alas! no more, having died about a year ago in his passage from India, deeply regretted by all who had the happiness to know him.

If a knowledge of the languages of Europe has ever been deemed requisite for an accomplished officer, how much more so will the general language of India be to every military man in that region, where he may often command bodies of Sipahees, and always has to deal with the people at large, all of whom will pay more or less respect to the person who speaks their vernacular speech, the most or least like a gentleman among them. This consideration itself should prove an adequate stimulus to every reflecting youth, who means to try his fortune as a soldier in the East; to say nothing of the risk he constantly runs there of losing his life, by some dangerous blunder or other, when on emergencies giving the word of command to his men. war against Teepoo Sahib, conducted by the brave Cornwallis, on a very critical occasion, an officer, in ordering his men to move a little to the right, unfortunately said, huto! instead of, dubo! and the Sipahees fell back in a manner that must have exposed a whole army and their distinguished leader to inevitable destruction, had not the mistake been immediately rectified, before its ruinous effects became seriously perceptible by that contagious communication, which is generally the bane of an Indian army.

That I may not be accused of interested singularity in my notions about the current language of India, I shall subjoin an extract of a letter, which I lately read with great pleasure and satisfaction, from an old experienced brave officer in the service, to a young gentleman on his arrival there, and which I deem the most honourable testimony, though not intended as one, in my behalf, on the present occasion, and no less creditable to the writer himself, but whose name, however, I cannot use the freedom to mention.

" I advise your endeavouring to qualify yourself for the native line of the service, by attention to the common language of the country, as soon as possible. An officer going into a Sepoy battalion, as of course will be your lot, perhaps soon, without understanding the language, is not only useless to the service, but makes a very ridiculous figure; and I strongly recommend, as an amusement in your leisure hours, the study of the Persian language: you will have a good deal of spare time upon your hands, and you may be assured you cannot employ it in any manner that is likely to be so profitable to yourself: sooner or later the knowledge of it always leads a man to some advantageous situation, and, at any rate, you will feel a satisfaction in having qualified yourself, and put it in the power of your friends to serve you, should an opening present itself. You will pardon the liberty I take in giving you :-these hints--- I wish I had any thing better to give you.",

A very deserving scholar of mine, who is now rising high in the civil service at Bengal, arrived during my residence there, after he had learned the Persian pretty well at home. At first, like all Persian students, he felt no inclination to study the Hindoostanee, and kept away from my class accordingly, though his pronunciation, as an orientalist, was very incorrect, and might to this day have remained so, in spite of his rapid advancement in both Persic and Arabic lore, had he not met with a circumstance that at once made him think and act boldly for himself. One day, our Persian tyro was desired by a constable, in the streets of Calcutta, to attend as one of the jury at a coroner's inquest, then sitting on the corpse of a person who had been killed on the road by a carriage driving over him. He obeyed the summons, but was surprised to find that the witnesses spoke nothing but Hindoostanee or Bungalee; and his Persian tongue proved of so little use, that it might as well have been in his pocket as his head, for not one of the party either spoke or understood that language. This accident opened the young man's eyes most effectually; he very ingenuously stated the case to me himself, and commenced the study of the Hindoostanee forthwith. progress was rapid in it, and I have since learned, with great pleasure, that he finds his intercourse with the Hindoostanees very much facilitated, by the instructions he received from me, in the popular language of the East, without a real knowledge of which he would now be often puzzled to transact business of the first importance with the natives of India. This gentleman's case, and some others, have been produced by people who differ from me on this head, to show that the Arabic and Persian languages ought to be acquired first, as a necessary prelude to the Hindoostanee; but the very same effects would follow, were proficients in the Hindoostanee to prosecute the study of those tongues; with this difference in their favour, that in the mean time they could converse with the natives on all subjects in their vernacular speech, which alone is an object of great consequence to nineteen of twenty that proceed to the East Indies.

Nothing will accelerate the student's real progress so much as an early discrimination of words into Hinduwee, Farsee, and Urubee, which can in general be done by adverting properly to the alphabet of each language separately, when studying them in the Orthoepigraphical Ultimatum lately published, and noticed in page 50 of this Work. All words that have bh, kh, &c. dtr, must be exclusively Hinduwee; those wherein ch p zh g e o occur, cannot be Urubee, while such as have s s h kh z z z z h t a u i co f q never are Hinduwee. Certain letters, as well as particular forms, like tufseel, katib, zarib, &c. in page 413, commonly show that a word is Urubee, instead of Farsee or Hinduwee.

There is one difficulty in acquiring all languages, and particularly those of the East, against which the scholar ought early to be put on his guard, namely, the want of coincidence in many instances between his own and the Hindoostanee, contrasted with its actual existence in a number of others. Thus, uch-chha, good, in both, applies to men, things, and abstracts, as a good man, a good house, and a good notion, these can therefore bear the same adjective in Hindoostanee; bareek, fine, on the contrary, are as much at variance as possible, unless when we restrict it to good alone. We say, a correct man, book, &c.; the natives of India would, on the contrary, use a very different word for each to express the idea intended. We talk of strong tea, meaning astringent, bitter, &c. while by a strong horse, bodily strength is clearly implied; but in Hindoostanee, were a person to call for muzboot cha, merely because he can say muzboot ghora, a strong horse, he would be considered a perfect ignoramus by his servants, who generally say kurwa cha, i. e. bitter or strong tea, taking the leading quality denoted in most things by our general word strong. These observations may be extended amazingly, but must now be left to the learner's own sagacity.

The ludicrous, dangerous, and obscene blunders that must be daily committed, by bad and careless pronouncers of the Hindoostanee, is certainly one of the principal reasons for its being so long neglected and superseded by the Persian, in our diplomatic viva voce intercourse with the Indian courts, where that language is colloquially as much foreign as French is now at St James's; and I will hazard the assertion, that for one Hindoostanee who thinks in Persian, there are millions to whom it is quite unknown.

Among a thousand proofs on the intricacy of pronunciation, the following may suffice: bhaee, a brother; baee, a lady, courtezan, pox, rheumatism, &c.; bhuee, friend! buhee, she floated, also a ledger; bahee, she pleased; bihee, a fruit; buyi, selling; bayi, a seller. In treaties with the Rajas, the word basec, meaning a lady of rank, may be met with distorted to bliv, probably from some misconception of the Persian diplomatist employed in the negociation, on the true import and pronunciation of the word base in question, though it seems clearly the feminine form, by elongation of ba, often bee, whence beebee, so well known in the East Indies.

While Hadley lived, there might have been some charity in permitting him to levy a small contribution on his countrymen destined for the East; but since his death, it is consistent neither with reason nor justice, to suffer in silence a continuance of the imposition, in every sense of the word, any longer. How any person can be yet found fool-hardy enough to risk successive editions of an erroneous and pernicious performance is wonderful; but it is still more so to find a single abettor of Hadley's jargonic labours, after so much has been done for these some years past by Marquis Wellesley in the cause of oriental literature, on sound principles, the very reverse of every thing yet published in Hadley's name. I feel no hesitation in here warning my readers against his catchpenny performance, unless they wish to purchase it for the sole purpose of exposing and detecting the string of errors and absurdities, of which it is composed, from one end to the other, by way of amusement during the passage to India, while contrasting the whole with this Essay of mine.

To vindicate the severity of my animadversions, I shall here insert my Hindoostanee translation of Hadley's famous story; but, in justice to me, no attempt will I hope be made to read it to a native, until my orthography has been acquired, by giving every letter of the story the very individual sound it possesses in my Hindee-Roman system. The reader will also be pleased to recollect, that the English of this tale will be found in the late Captain Hadley's book, for the style of which no body can justly hold me responsible, though I certainly have made the Hindoostanee agree with it as much as possible. As the subjunctive or conditional mood and its tenses to beginners are more formidable in appearance than reality, I would advise them to compare my mode of expressing these here with others, and to recollect the great use of the present participle or tense, without its auxiliary signs, on all occasions of this kind. Few people will conceive this sentence, " Had I then been in Europe, I would not have allowed my brother to come to India," so very simple as it in fact is. Suppose the reader tries his own skill in Hindoostanee, before he looks at my version of it-Jo much cos wuqt wilayut men hota to upne bhace ko Hindoostan men nu ane deta. An adept will at one glance tell why the conditional jo is used and cos inflected, the utility of the illative or consequential to, and the reasons for upne being preferred to mere, as well as the use and nature of the permissive compound ane deta. It is by such phrases as the above, that the natives can in a moment discover, whether the person speaking to them is well versed in their language or not. Several instances of the same nature occur in the story as I have given it, which the reader may put to the test of experience whenever he pleases, as I have not the smallest idea of flinching from any ordeal that may be proposed on this subject.

Urubee qissu Hindoostanee zuban men.

os Padshah kee Peţee uor om Shahzadon ka jo os ke ishq ke mare sufur ko guye the.

Teen suo burus hoo e ki ek bura duolutmund Padshah Man Singh nam, Bungale men tha; coske lakh suwar, nuo suo oont, pundruh suo hathee ruhen, ooskee ek buree khoob-soorut betee thee, jis kee khoob-soortee kee dhoom buhoot mælkon men puhomehee. Teen bha ee Shahzade buhæt uch-chheoospur ashiq hooje, uor ooske bap se oskee shadee kee durkhwast dee-Padshah ne upnec lurkee se kuha-In teenon Shahzadon men se ek upne byah ke waste pusund kuro,---Shahzadec ne bap ko juwab diya, we sub mojhe burabur huen jis se ap kee murzee ho; ooshee se muen shadee kuroongee,-Tud Padshah ne upnee uql se yih munsoobu thuhraya.—Shahzadon se kuha, toom to merce betee ko chahte ho; pur cosne upnee pusund hum pur muoqoof rukhee hue; merå hækm sæno-Tæmhen teen muheene ka sufur kurna hoga; is men jo ko ee oske waste buhot uch-chha tohfu lawega, uor woh tohfu os lurkee ke liye fajidu rukhe, sojec oosse shadee kurega.—Khuer teenon juwan Padshah ko mojra kurke bahur nikle; kisee surae men jake apoos men yih qurar kiya; jub muheena tumam ho to isce sura e men awen upna upna tohfu apos men dekhlawen.-Jo kuha so kiya, phir ooshee surae men ek jugih hoo,e, bure bha ee ne ck doorbeen upnce ankh pur rukhke kuha, jo muen upnee pyarce ko dekh sukta tuo kya khoosh hota etne men uchanuk pokar ootha, hue! hue! kya boora nuseeb hue humara, jis Shahzadee pur hum ne mohubbut se dil lugaya tha so wonh to isee dum murtee hue-Tis pur munjhla bhaee bola dekho yih sheeshee is men imrut hue yuune abi huyat, jo is wuqt men wuhan puhonch sukta to ose muen bhula kurta---Phir chhote bhace ne khoshee se kuha lo dekho yih ghalcechu hue is pur jo hum buethen uor juhan kuhcen jaya chahen, ugur lakh kos ho tuo bhee ja suken.—Teenon Shahzade qa-leeche pur buethkur pul marte cos ke khilwut khane men apuhonche; Shahzade ko to imrut ka ghont peetchee aram hoo a, charpa ee pur ooth buethee—Tub yih teenon apos men jhugurne luge uor Padshah ke roo bu roo guye—Upne sufur ka uhwal uor pichhlee huqeequt sub kuh sona ee. Padshah ko ee dum choop ruha, phir sochkur kuha—such hue juese tomhare tohfe wuesee hee tomharee khoobiyan huen, kyoon ke doorbeen wala jo meree betee ko nu dekhta tuo coske hal kee khubur kycon kur tom eehan miltee, ugur ghaleeche ka malik toom ko eehan nu lata, to 'kis turih ate: uor imrut bina tomhara ana bhce eehan koochh kam ka nu hota;—is liye tomhen pansa dalna hoo a Shahzadee ke waste.

The English version may be taken from Hadley, or the scholar can hereafter try his own hand upon this story, as advised in page 453, and on the plan proposed in xxxvii and 112.

While I shall consider it as a most laudable effort to compile a naval vocabulary, as recommended in page 392, the learner must recollect, that any thing of this sort will be very far beyond his strength in the language for two or three years, as a great deal of explanatory circumlocution must take place between the Lushkurees (Lascars) and himself, before any thing can be put down as certain in such a work. Both parties must be liable to innumerable misconceptions, that nothing but great skill in the Hindgostanee can avoid and rectify completely, which can be accomplished by an experienced linguist alone, who has sojourned some years at least in the East Indies. All questions or observations, abruptly introduced to the natives there, puzzle them amazingly, though the same remarks, cautiously made, and progressively unfolded to their view, often appear easy in the extreme, and lead to a mutual understanding immediately. So many materials have been collected in these sheets, to form a rational etymologist, that every acute mind will insensibly become one during his career in the Hindoostanee alone, more especially as most words in that significant speech may be traced very satisfactorily to their origin or root in the Sunskrit and other languages. This process will be quickly attained by considering the initial, medial, and final portious of words attentively, and at the same time adverting to the euphonic mutability of letters, in the various and ever varying forms they assume in all languages. I am not very certain that the words disease in English, and chapeau in French, will strike every eye at the first glance as compounds of dis, without, and ease; of chat, a cat, and peau, skin; but I may safely take it for granted, that my more intelligent readers will hardly dispute the point, when reminded, that we call a hat, a beaver, on similar grounds. In such etymologies, supposing even that they are false, the bare exercise of the juvenile mind upon them is productive of much benefit, giving to words a sort of local habitation and a name in the memory, which otherwise they cannot possess, and consequently too often pass away without leaving a vestige behind. Puhar signifies a hill, but when we analyse it as puh, the dawn, and a:, concealing, covering, into the dawn-hider, which, in a flat country, it might be called, there is very little chance of our ever forgetting the word puhar again, whether the deduction here be right or wrong. On similar principles puhul-wan, a champion, or the first man who comes out to brave the enemy to combat; even puhul, puhla, first, may be deduced from puh, since the dawn of day would very naturally present itself to the mind of man, as a primary point of time to reckon from. I am aware that etymological deductions have been laughed to scorn, from the frequent abuse of this rational exercise of our mental powers, but where is the art or science that has escaped gross perversion and misuse any more than etymology, which will, at no distant period, break through the gloom of prejudice and misconception, and, with the never-failing light of truth, and reason, carry conviction to every thinking breast. The want of thought in most schools, is owing to the great stress which is very absurdly laid there upon memory only; the mind and judgment are consequently as little improved, after some years of memorial drudgery, as if they really required no care or cultivation whatever; the consequence naturally is, that few people retain, after five or six years, any more of their classical lore than barely enough to constitute them tolerable etymologists in their own tongue, though probably not a little defective in its grammar. Were youths very early taught English grammar and arithmetic; were they often obliged to complete sentences, taken progressively from different authors, in which a few of the leading words were purposely omitted, they would much sooner reason and think seriously on their studies than people are aware of; and their real proficiency would, in general, so far surpass our most sanguine expectations, that I would stake every thing on the successful issue of an experiment founded on such grounds. See the Second Volume when published, also pages xxxvii. 111, 112, and 137, of the present or First.

The references from one part of the Work to another, are often made with the view to impress the subject more completely on the mind, and, in some cases, to let the scholar reap the fruits of his own diligence, by discovering a few omissions, which he cannot possibly find out, unless he reads and weighs every part with more than ordinary assiduity. In this event he certainly will catch me apparently tripping, and be thereby enabled to correct some errors purposely left for the due exercise of youthful reflection upon them. It would answer a very good end, were the letter a in rat, night, pat, a leaf, written in pencil upon every beginner's thumb nail thus, awe, that he may not make a little animal in English out of the first, and an Irishman from the second monosyllable, by not calling them raut, paut, with the long awe, but rat, pat, like a true Englishman, which will never do in the Hindoostanee, where a broad spoken. Caledonian Sawney is much more at home, and cannot fail soon to acquire a just pronunciation. I would also recommend my e to be nailed on the memory from the first, in the same manner as ai, that to, oil, bed, a cane, may be read as tail, bade, not as tell, bed. The short " that I express by u, should be put down likewise, to prevent its ever becoming you or  $\omega$ , which otherwise it will be very apt to prove in most mouths, till fairly broken in to this letter's common sound in sun, run, must, up, under, &c. In this manner the reader may have every troublesome letter in my Hindee-Roman scheme, literally at his finger-ends, before he leaves the alphabet, that they may never afterwards puzzle him in their application to the words of the language; and as this is half the battle in acquiring the Hindoostanee, as a useful living tongue, I hope the hint will not be lost on those pupils who are resolved to learn it well, by studying the subject from page 2 to 50, as it deserves. The inspirated series in page 3 should be acquired by heart, till perfectly easy and familiar to the learner, who ought at once to call every letter by the simple names they bear in my scheme.

In acquiring the Hindoostanee, through the medium of these sheets, the learner will find it his interest to go entirely through them in a cursory manner, that he may immediately possess a tolerably accurate idea of their contents in general, previous to that particular, reiterated perusal, which alone is calculated to stimulate thought and reflection to an adequate comprehension of every essential part, which ought to be indelibly imprinted on the memory, rather as the produce of intellectual exertion, than of mere parrot-like efforts by a thoughtless school-boy.

During the first six months residence in India, I have seldom known the attendance of a native teacher or Monshee upon a scholar produce much benefit; on the contrary, except in the mere pronunciation of a few letters, such interference generally does a great deal of harm. To those readers who will so far confide in my judgment, as to follow my advice, I shall candidly impart it by desiring them in the above period, or previous to their departure from home, to acquire, if possible, the difficult sounds from some of their well informed European friends, and at the same time to make their selves complete masters of every word and rule in this Volume at least, before they sit regularly down to study the language with any Monshee. Indeed if they can prevail on their selves to include the Second Volume in this counsel, they never will have cause to repent such precaution, as it may save them much vexation, trouble, disgust, a great deal of time, and even some cash, on the score of native instructors, of whom not one in a thousand has sufficient ability and sagacity combined to conduct the studies of a student with propriety and effect in the Hindoostanee, or any other oriental tongue. If the assistance, however, of such men be in the beginning unavailing and tormenting, the aid of the vulgar among them, who have a smattering of English, is still more pernicious and delusive; every scholar, therefore, who intends ultimately to make his self a proficient in Hindoostanee, will find it his interest in many respects to believe, that I expect no adequate advantages which can instigate me to mislead and deceive him in any pursuit of this kind, by communicating my undisguised sentiments of these people, on the present occasion, and by deprecating all such premature equivocal aid accordingly.

I may now conclude with the Advertisement, which has long been published with a list of my books, as a perusal of it may still remove some prejudices against the Hindoostanee, as the most useful language in the East.

That gentlemen going to India, under the auspices of the Honourable East India Company, may not plead ignorance of existing regulations concerning their servants' acquirement of the oriental languages, the following extracts from the public orders of the Governor-General in Council at Bengal, are now laid before them.

Fort-William, Public Department, December 11. 1798.

"The Right Honourable the Governor-General in Council, considering that the due administration of the internal government and affairs of the Company in Bengal, requires that no civil servant should be nominated to certain offices of trust and responsibility, until it shall have been ascertained that he is sufficiently acquainted with the laws and regulations enacted by the Governor-General in Council, and the several languages, the knowledge of which that from and after the 1st of January 1801, no servant will be deemed eligible to any of the aforementioned offices, until he shall have passed an examination (the nature of which will be hereafter determined) in the laws and regulations, and in the languages, a knowledge of which is hereby declared to be an indispensable qualification for such respective offices.

"The languages, a knowledge of which will be considered requisite in the several offices in the judicial, revenue, and commercial departments, are—

" For the office of judge, or register, of any court of justice, in the provinces of Bengal, Behar, Orissa, or Benares, the Hindoostance and the Persian languages.

" For the office of collector of revenue, or of customs, or commercial resident, or salt agent, in the provinces of Bengal or Orissa, the Bengal language. *

* It has been generally allowed, that a judge in Bengal should also know the local dialect of that province; nor can

" For the office of collector of revenue, or of customs, or commercial resident, or agent, for the provision of opium, in the provinces of Behar or Benares, the Hindoostanee language.

G. H. BARLOW, Secretary to Government."

To British Officers, and Gentlemen of every description, proceeding to India.

Since the above orders were published, a more regular System of Oriental Education has been adopted by the Bengal government for the civil and military establishments at Bengal, Madras, and Bombay; in all of which, the Hindoostanee (or Moors) has been justly considered an object of primary acquisition and importance, and taught accordingly to all writers and cadets on their arrival in India.

A knowledge of the Hindoostanee is not only essential for every stranger in British India, who must have a personal communication with the natives at large, but, moreover, paves the way for the speedy acquirement of the Persian and other oriental tongues, in that country, where alone they can be generally learned, as local classic languages, through the medium of the Hindoostanee, which is the vernacular speech of the people, and necessarily of all the Monshees, or native teachers, in Hindoostan.

it be denied, that the collectors, &c. there, would be greatly benefited by adding the Hindoostanee and Persian to the Bengal tongue.

In the armies, maritime, and domestic affairs of India, no other language than the Hindoostanee is universally spoken or understood; nor is any other required from the cadets now studying it and tactics at the military academies, lately established in the three presidencies of Bengal, Madras, and Bombay.

As several modern and ancient tongues may be deemed both useful and ornamental to men of liberal education in Europe, the Sunskrit, Persian, Arabic, &c. will prove equally so in India; but it should always be recollected, that to every person there, the Hindoostanee is no less indispensable, than a knowledge of English evidently is to the inhabitants of the United Kingdom; and consequently should be treated as the most requisite qualification for gentlemen bound to the East Indies; because they will sooner or later find, that, comparatively, the learned languages are secondary considerations, which may be afterwards acquired in India, with greater facility, less expence, and much more effectually, than they can yet be attained in this country.

If the above reasoning be founded in facts, well known and established for some years past both at home and abroad, the public may reasonably hope, that the oriental departments of the civil and military colleges at Hertford and Marlow, will speedily embrace the Hindoostanee as an object of the first consideration to the students destined for India; since we must admit, that however learned our British judges, civil and military officers, might otherwise be, they would all prove now-adays wholly unfit for their respective offices in our country, without an adequate knowledge of their mother tongue; and the Hindoostanee being exactly to India, what the English language is colloquially to the United Kingdom, or what the Turkish is to that empire, the inference is so very plain, that he who runs may read.

To students who wisely commence their oriental career with the grand popular speech of India, which has hitherto been very undeservedly superseded by the Persian, while degraded and misrepresented under the absurd term of Moorish Jargon, or Moors, all the Works enumerated in the Catalogue will necessarily prove of the highest utility and importance, either at their outset or progress through the most useful, to beginners, of all the Eastern tongues.

Those Publications most essential are inserted first, that should circumstances render economy unavoidable, even in such purchases, three, four, or five only may suffice, till the student can in India more conveniently supply his self with the rest, also procureable there, as they become requisite in the course of his more advanced studies, at his own expence, when not less willing, and probably more able, to defray every progressive charge of this sort.

ORIENTAL LITERATURE.

BLACKS AND PARRY,

BOOKSELLERS TO THE HONOURABLE THE EAST-INDIA COMPANY,

No. 7. Leadenhall-Street,

Have remaining a few Copies of the following Works,

By JOHN BORTHWICK GILCHRIST, Esq. LL.D.

late Professor of the Hindoostanee Language, at the College, Fort William, Calcutta. The whole are particularly useful for Writers, Cadets, and Gentlemen going to the East Indies; being the Books, by which alone the Grand Popular Speech of India (commonly, but erroneously, called the Moors) can be acquired, on the Grammatical Principles now-adopted in the Hindoostanee Department of the College.

£. s. d.

The British Indian Monitor, Vol.I. 2 0 0 Dialogues, English and Hindoostanee, on Domestic, Military, and Medi-

HINDOOSTANEE

	đ	). S.	đ
cal Subjects, including Jennerian 1	11-
structions for the general diffusion	of Vaccination among the Natives	of
India,	0	10	0
The Hindee-Roman Orthoepigraph	ical Ultimatum, exemplified in the Po	)- pular Story of Sukoontula Natuk, wit	h
a Discriminative View of Oriental an	d
Occidental Symbols and Sounds,	0	4	0
<ol> <li>Oriental Fabulist, or Polyglot Fable</li> </ol>	es.
in English, Hindoostanee, Persian, Ara	l-
bic, BrijBḥakḥa, Bongla, and Sunskri	t, all in the Roman Character, -	1	0	0
u. The Hindee Story Teller, or Enter	rtaining Expositor of the Roman, Per sian, and Nagree Characters, in the Application to the Hindoostanee Lan	1-
guage, 2 vols.	1	10	()
5 The Hindee Directory, or Student Introductor to the Roman Orthocp	• and Orthography of the Hindoostane Language, with the first and genera
Principles of its Grammar,		15	0
The Hindee Moral Preceptor, or Per sian Scholar's shortest Road to th	e

PUBLICATIONS.

ò	£.	s.	d.
Hindoostanee Language, and vice versa; being a Translation of Suudee's celebrated Pundnamu, in Hindoostance, with an English Version in Prose and Verse. This Work also contains a
•
9	Į	0	0
The Hindee-Arabic Mirror, or improved Tabular View of Arabic Words in the Hindoostanee Language, - (	)	5	0 0 0
· •	1	o	0
The Rose Garden of Hindoostan; a Translation of Suudee's celebrated Goo-
· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·
• •
	1	10	0
Godi Bukawulee, a celebrated East-
	)	16	0
•
	)	10	0
•
1	)	2	6
	Hindoostanee Language, and vice versu; being a Translation of Suudee's celebrated Pundnamu, in Hindoostanee, with an English Version in Prose and Verse. This Work also contains a Comparative View of Persian and Hindoostanee Grammar, with Dialogues, Letters, &c. in both Tongues,  The Hindee-Arabic Mirror, or improved Tabular View of Arabic Words in the Hindoostanee Language,  Bagho Buhar, or the entertaining Story of the Four Friars, in Hindoostanee Prose,  The Rose Garden of Hindoostan; a Translation of Suudee's celebrated Goolistan, in the Grand Popular Speech of India, erroneously called the Moors, 2 vols.  Gooli Bukawulee, a celebrated Eastern Romance,  Tota Kuhance, or Tales of a Parrot, in Hindoostanee,  Hindee-Roman Alphabetical Pros-	Hindoostanee Language, and vice versu; being a Translation of Suudee's celebrated Pundnamu, in Hindoostanee, with an English Version in Prose and Verse. This Work also contains a Comparative View of Persian and Hindoostanee Grammar, with Dialogues, Letters, &c. in both Tongues,  1 The Hindee-Arabic Mirror, or improved Tabular View of Arabic Words in the Hindoostanee Language,  Bagho Buhar, or the entertaining Story of the Four Friars, in Hindoostanee Prose,  The Rose Garden of Hindoostan; a Translation of Suudee's celebrated Goolistan, in the Grand Popular Speech of India, erroneously called the Moors,  vols.  Gooli Bukawulee, a celebrated Eastern Romance,  Tota Kuhance, or Tales of a Parrot, in Hindoostanee,  Hindee-Roman Alphabetical Pros-	sa; being a Translation of Suudee's celebrated Pundnamu, in Hindoostanee, with an English Version in Prose and Verse. This Work also contains a Comparative View of Persian and Hindoostanee Grammar, with Dialogues, Letters, &c. in both Tongues, 10 The Hindee-Arabic Mirror, or improved Tabular View of Arabic Words in the Hindoostanee Language, 05 Bagho Buhar, or the entertaining Story of the Four Friars, in Hindoostanee Prose, 10 The Rose Garden of Hindoostan; a Translation of Suudee's celebrated Gcolistan, in the Grand Popular Speech of India, erroneously called the Moors, 2 vols. 10 Gooli Bukawulee, a celebrated Eastern Romance, 10 16 Tota Kuhanee, or Tales of a Parrot, in Hindoostanee, 10 10 Hindee-Roman Alphabetical Pros-

HINDOOSTANEE PUBLICATIONS.

	•	£	S. s.	d
ტ	Indian Ethics; a Hindoostanee Tran	-
•	siation of Hitoopudes, from a Persian	1
	Version of that far-famed Work,	0	16	0
14	Nusri Benuzeer, an enchanting Fairy	,
	Tale, in Hindoostance Prose, from the	:
	Original, by Mcer Husun, in Verse,	0	16	0
15	Hidayut col Islam, in Hindoostanee
•	and Arabic, or the Mosulman's Com-			ŧ
	mon Prayer Book, in 2 vols.—vol. I.	0	15	0
j,	, The Hindee Manual, or Casket of
•	India; a Miscellaneous Hindoostanee
	Compilation in the Persian and Nagree
	Characters,	1	0	0
3	A New Theory of Persian Verbs, with
•	their Hindoostance Synonimes,	)	12	0

RUDIMENTS

OF

HINDOOSTANEE GRAMMAR.

THE present performance being expressly intended for the two-fold purpose of teaching any student to acquire an accurate idea of the grand popular language of Hindoostan, by solitary study himself, and of qualifying him also to instruct others, during a passage of some months to India; it is my intention to be as expicit and intelligible on the subject of pronunciation as the nature of the work will admit. place it becomes my particular duty to warn the learner against the very common practice of neglecting to read the preface; because a perusal of it alone can obviate some difficulties, which may otherwise occur in these sheets, and should be considered as the indispensable preliminary step to a due knowledge of the nature, itility, application, and extent, of their contents. After this warning, the scholar who shall despise it, must rather blame Himself than Me, for the obstacles he may yet encounter in the acquisition of a most useful tongue; which, I am convinced, may be attained with great accuracy from a work like the present, if due attention be given to the following rules or first principles of Hindoostance pronunciation, elucidated and explained by the Roman Letters, so modified as to discriminate and express, not only the orthocpy, but the orthography of each word in the original character.

The Hindoostanee alphabet, like the excellent abecedarian system of the Hindoos, as far as the mere sounds of the letters are concerned, may be here arranged, as nearly as possible in their natural order of enunciation, organic affinity, and consequent interchangeability, for every purpose of pronouncing the language in India, with the utmost precision and effect; but without servilely following the Sunskrit alphabet in every part.

Vowels.

3	cull u	k	ill i	wo	$\int_{0}^{1} \int_{0}^{1} dx$	pro sho sou	ogressively the ortest possible ands of—
5	call a	there e	keel ee		-		all very long.
2			yle e	co u	wl	}	diphthongs.
3	hull hu		ung yu		ord vu	}	semivowels.
13

by which the whole of the foregoing vowels may be thus expirated, hu hi hoo ha he hee ho hoo hue huo inspirated, uh ih ooh ah eh eeh oh ooh ueh uoh yu yi yoo ya ye yee yo yoo yue yuo wu wu woo wa we wee wo woo wue wuo

REMARKS.

The Roman letters, in the present scheme of writing the Hindoostanee, preserve almost the same powers they actually possess in the Latin language, agreeably to the Scotish pronunciation, and in the most common unexceptionable combinations and sounds in our own tongue.

No mute nor superfluous characters ever occur at the end, nor in any other portion of a word, and two Roman letters are never used to express a sound which can be conveniently effected by one. There are in all forty-nine useful combinations, letters or sounds in this language, agreeably to the foregoing and following sub-division of the whole, in which, for the conveniency of the learner, all the vowels are illustrated by examples; the consonants are in general self-evident; but, where this is not the case, the subsequent prospectus will remove every doubt on the subject.

u is invariably the short a or u in up, fun, sun, never sounded like oo; purdu or parda, a curtain, therefore, cannot be purdoo, nor can monshee, a teacher, goolistan, mosulman, become, with any propriety, gullistan, mussulman, as they are generally pronounced by persons who have not learned those words correctly from my works, or in India.

In no instance can u have the sound of our pronoun you, because such a word in this work would be written as in page 3, yoo; the scholar must therefore never call u (my very short ă) either you or oo, yoo being in fact the name of the letter which has with us, very absurdly, the various powers of  $\infty$  oo you, while in this work its name u, and sound ă, are alike consistent throughout.

- i & ∞ being respectively the shorts of e ee, and o oo, is the reason of only three short to five long vowels above.
  - a must, at first, be prolated like the word awe, until the learner's own car can discriminate when and where the medial sound, between the extreme long ā and short ă or u, will be most proper.
  - e resembles ai in hair, pair, fair, pain, rain, &c.; but the medial shades of this letter, and ee, till they fall into the short i, must be acquired by practice only; I have, therefore, as in u a, marked in my system merely the extremes of short and long vowels.
  - ce as in bee, see, lee, fee, heel, feel, keel.
- o always very long.
  oo the longer the better.

  As e and ce are to i, so are o and oo to co in the Oriental tongues.
- ue composed of a and e, sounded like the organ of sight, eye, or as ui in guide, guise.

uo reversed by us in our, how, &c.; which, formed agreeably to the order of the component parts of this diphthong, ought to be uor, huo; thus when ought clearly, on similar principles, to be written hwen, or hooen, as Dr Lowth expresses it.

h the perfect aspirate, either before the vowel or after it, as ha ah, in both situations to be as distinctly expressed with the expiration ha, and the inspiration ah, as b is in ba ab both fully sounded and heard.

When h follows any consonant so bharce, a brother, it should always have the full expiration, unless denoted by the subservient h of which we shall treat among the consonants, page 9.

y like h and w, rather a consonant than a vowel, though i e and ce before each other, or a, &c. are very apt to become y in most languages, and vice versa.

w as y and i e ee are to each other, so is w to o oo uo; the series yu yi yω ya, &c. wu wi wω wa, &c. may therefore be also represented as iu eca ooa, &c. recollecting that the hiatus is generally prevented by the change to yu ya wa, &c.

CONSONANTS.

bu bhu phu fu pu labials. ť bh þ  $\mathbf{ph}$ lu nu mu liquids and 1 nkngn n m thu du dhu rhu) ru palatials. th  $\mathbf{d} = \mathbf{d}\mathbf{h}$ r Ļ thu du dhu dentals. th d dhshu zu zhu sibilants. sh Z. zh tshu tshhu dzhu dzhhu chh ku khu khu gu ghu ghu qu  $\chi$ gutturals. kh kh g gh gh q 5

distinct sounds in the Hintowels &c. | doostance alphabet, the name | being in all | and power of which individugletters with | ally are as much alike as possible; our letter h or aitch, as it is most absurdly called, being simply termed hu, a breathing, du also standing for delta, gu for gama, &c.
though the particle kar may be subjoined to the whole; so ukar, ikar, akar, &c. bukar, hukar &c. as in the Hinduwee alphabets.

From the foregoing paragraph the reader will now perceive, that the series bu bhu pu phu, &c. ngu nu mu lu ru, &c. exhibits the name of each letter unconnectedly as such, while b bh p ph ng n m l r shows their sound or power connectedly, in the formation of words. Among the vowels the name and power may always be alike, but with the consonants it must, for obvious reasons, be otherwise, as here illustrated from the Oriental alphabets, which, like our own, require one vowel at least to give utterance to the consonants, as their name implies.

The consonants might be named by any of the vowels as auxiliaries, as well as by u, were not this the shortest sound of a, invariably inherent in the whole of the Nagree or Hindoostanee consonants. The vowel might also stand on either side subserviently, as bu, ub; da, ad; fi, if; pee, eep, with sufficient effect in any uniform system. Our alphabet partakes of both principles, as bee, dee, ef, cl, perhaps to distinguish the mutes from the liquids, among which ess might be included, were this at the best, either a very consistent or convenient arrangement in any alphabet.

The ten expirated letters, bh ph th dh th dh chh jh kh gh, seem peculiar to the Hindoos, of which we can form no other idea, than by frequently repeating the following, and such words as I have exhibited them, in this place: viz. a-bhor, a-dhere, u-phill, chur-chhill, nu-thook, mil-khouse, do-ghouse, or by contracting them thus, bhor, dheer, thook, chhill, khuos, ghuos, &c. and ringing the changes with this aspirated pronunciation, until it become quite familiar to the scholar, which it must be in the course of two or three days devoted to this essential exercise, in the very threshhold of Oriental orthoepy, to prevent the most dangerous mistakes.

The expirates kh gh above must be most carefully distinguished from the gutturals kh gh explained below, because the h in these last and sh zh ch is a mere subservient to express a sound for which we have no character in our alphabet, not less defective in ch sh zh, though possessing the simple character j to denote the compound sound of dzh.

n as a nasal before j k g and t or d, requires no particular mark, sounding exactly like our own letters nj ng nk nt, &c. in change, rung, sunk, want, &c. but elsewhere it is the French nasal when marked n. Preceding the labials it becomes, as in most languages, m.

- r should be every where expressed by a perfect vibration of the tip of the tongue on the upper teeth, as in the word l'amour, which few Englishmen can express well, though the Scotish and Irish find no difficulty whatever.
- t&d are formed by carrying the tongue forcibly against the roof of the mouth, while articulating the common dentals t and d of our own alphabet, which are as much softer than t d, as these are harder than the oriental t d, formed with a slight protrusion of the tongue between the teeth. Tub, duck, do; tube, duke, dew, due, will convey a tolerable idea of the difference between palatials and dentals in the eastern tongues; the t d of the four last, even with us, being much softer than in the three first: for in fact some people seem to soften the liquified d and t with us, so far as to say, tshube, jook, jew for due, &c. The lisp of children, and others, will convey a tolerable notion of the very soft dentals d t in question, as essential sounds in the Oriental tongues, which require the utmost assi-

- duity and practice before the learner can perfectly comprehend or express them in the Persian and Hindoostanee languages:
- d frequently becomes a very harsh palatial r; thus ghora, a horse, properly ghoda, though very seldom so pronounced.
- th in thin and thine does not occur in the alphabets of India, though the Arabs appear to possess similar sounds among their letters; the is therefore uniformly as in hothouse, quasi ho-thuos, according to my system in page 9, already explained.
- s sh z zh are to each other as they stand in sin, shin, seize, seizure or seezhyoor, the h here being a mere subservient letter, as in gh kh ch, with no aspiration whatever.
- ch j called dento sibilants to shew their component parts as dentals and sibilants, which might be denoted by tsh dzh, were these not more complex than our own soft ch in church (tshurtsh), j in judge (dzhudzh), to which, if due attention be paid now, the reader will never hereafter frenchify the j of just (dzhust) to zhust, as he will probably do at first, until frequently apprised that our j in jam (dzham) is composed of the dental d and sibilant zh, stated above.

kh is the rough guttural k pronounced in the very act of hawking up phlegm from the throat, which becomes tremulous and ruffled, while the root of the tongue is with it forming the sound required. This letter is familiar enough to the Scotish and other northern nations, but very trouble-some to the English, who should first try it in mukh, lukh, nukh, &c. before attempting it in khum, khul, and so on.

gh is to g gh, what kh is to k kh; consequently, the guttural Northumberland r, heard in the act of gargling the throat with water, as ghu, ghu, ghu; mugh, lugh, rugh, are much easier than ghum, ghul, &c. which learners will confound with gum, gul, &c. until the burr in the throat, as it is called, be duly acquired from some person who has this peculiarity, and who would call the word roolam, ghoolam, a slave, very properly, instead of goolam, as those do who have not acquired the gh accurately.

q or our k articulated by raising the root of the tongue simply towards the throat, which must not be in the smallest degree ruffled, as in forming kh, or gh. The q may consequently be styled a deep but liquid lingual letter, produced by clinking the root of the tongue against the throat, so as to cause a sort of nausea. The same sound will be recognized when pouring water in a particular manner from a long necked guglet, as the liquid decanting may represent the lower part of the tongue acting upon the throat or neck of the vessel in question, unruffled by the water gushing from it. A few efforts will soon fix the q in the memory and on the organs of speech, perhaps at the expence of a slight nausea at first.

The vowels, particularly such as are homogeneous, either in quantity or quality, are very interchangeable; and this holds good among the consonants also, even sometimes where affinity is not very striking, as in  $\hat{y}$  j and g, l n and s, m b and w.

The learner should recollect that c is never used but as a subservient in the combination tsh ch already explained.

To prevent letters coalescing, the is often inserted between them, that ee oo nk ng sh zh may be distinctly articulated, when necessary, as two separate sounds; so, e,e o,o n,k n,g s,h z,h.

The number of syllables in a word is commonly regulated by the number of vowels. When two consonants intervene, they should be divided, ad-mee, a person; but if one only, it goes to the last, pa-nee, water, ba-hur, out, sa-yu, shade. This holds good likewise when the consonant is expirated, whence du-khun, the south, not duk-hun, unless to teach a beginner to sound the h in this word, that he also may not miscall it deccan! as is generally done. Sometimes two consonants meet as in English, gurm, warm, fusl, season, swamee, lord, pran, life, though among the illiterate pronounced rather as gurum, fusul, puran, &c.

The Prospectus of such letters and combinations, agreeably to their invariable power in the Hindoostanee language, as can be farther illustrated by English examples, and which the reader might still otherwise mistake, may have its uses in this introduction. I have therefore exhibited it, in so obvious a manner, that no one acquainted with the English language can possibly misconceive the particular sound adopted from that tongue.

Prospectus. yawn, yoke, your, &c. shin, ship, rush. sh the French pleasure, i. e. pleazhure. iorg church, rich. tsh ch jugular, judge, (juj). dzh ; uphold, uphill. ph jugular. g hard nk sink, brink, rung, sung. ng sans, bon, in French. ņ hot house, nut hook, as t.h the th of thin and thine are not used in Hindoostance, see page 11.

For the vowels and diphthongs consult page 3, and always consider u, short a; a, long a; i short, and ec long, in every situation; while the two diphthongs, ue and uo, are ever to be treated as the ui or y and ou in guide, gued; dry, drue; our, uor. Sans and bon will shew the sound of the nasal n, which is so common in the Hindoostance.

U in purdu, a curtain; a in rat, night; e in bed, (baid) scripture; ue in uesa, so; i in mila, found; the hard g in gunge, o ganges! and perhaps a few others, are very liable to be misconceived by a mere English reader, who does not seriously attend to the fixed invariable power of such letters in pages 3, &c. q. v. before he attempts to derive any real benefit from the present plan; I am therefore under the necessity of inculcating again and again the present unavoidable retrospection to the letters and their sounds, to prevent all future disappointment on that head, if possible, before the student can commence the reading of sentences or dialogues, with any satisfaction to himself or advantage to those who may hear him.

Recapitulation, or General Rules for the Accurate Pronunciation of the Letters, intended chiefly for the guidance of those Scholars who may wisely confirm their own Knowledge, by generously instructing others in the grand Colloquial Language of the East, previous to, or during the Passage to India.

1. Every short vowel must be constantly sounded as short as possible.

- 2. All the long vowels in every situation ought, especially at first, to be pronounced as full, long and broad, as the learner can well sound them.
- 3. The soft d t r cannot be softened too much, and the harsh d t r can hardly appear enough so, till their opposite natures be sufficiently understood from practice, and a sedulous retrospection to page 10, where the nature of these letters is more fully discussed.
- 4. Those, viz. d t r are formed by bringing the tip of the tongue forwards, almost between the teeth, as in due, tube, rue, while these, d t r, require that organ to be curved backwards and then struck against the roof of the mouth, as in dull, tub, rub. The first are much softer and the last a great deal harsher than our English d t r.
- 5. The expirated bh chh dh, &c. must all be very distinctly heard, with a full breathing of the h, as b-ha, ch-ha, to prevent innumerable mistakes of the most offensive nature. Whoever shall rapidly pronounce our words, abhor, adhere, for some time, and during reiterated efforts all at once, shall drop the initial a, he will readily say bhor, dhere, with the requisite expirate, in its proper place. This one effort is alone applicable to all the other aspirable consonants, noted in page 8, and with the most certain effect, throughout the Hindoostanee tongue; but the student should cautiously shun the common error of converting these monosyllabic expirates, bha chha, &c. to such dissyllables as buha chuha, &c. lest he frequently confound one thing with another, and be often vexed, disappointed, or abashed by his own blunders, from bad pronunciation entirely. Phun, a snake's crest, has the expirated h as clear and as immediately after the p, as r is in prune: phun, therefore, by an intelligent scholar, cannot possibly be confounded with fun, art, or pun, because, added to the remark just made, he will recollect, that in page 4, it is said, two letters are never used to express a sound which can be done by one.

6. The above aspirated letters have been called expirates, to distinguish them from the inspirates buh, chuh, duh, and a thousand others. The aspirate here closes the syllable, and is consequently formed by a sort of inspirated catching of the breath, much more difficult to learners than those described in Rule 5. Unless this final aspirate or inspirate be carefully attended to, in words like shah, a king, mah, month, no scholar can readily put such nouns in the Hindoostanee oblique plural, shahon, mahon, with the h, now in its expirated form. The inspirate under discussion may be acquired and retained, by saying aha aha aha, suddenly dropping the final a, but preserving the h as forcibly as inspiration can express it in ah oh eh, &c. without giving the h an Irish or Scotish twist to the guttural kh, which many are apt to do in uhmuq, a fool, by calling this ukhmuq, instead of uh-muq, with a smooth, distinct, in spirated h, which alone never can have the smallest guttural rough sound, though as a subservient it certainly makes k and g so, in mukh-mul, velvet, rugh-but, desire.

7. The gutturals kh and gh are best acquired by saying ku, khu, khu, (the last as it were with an effort to hawk up tough phlegm from the throat) gu, ghu, ghu, (the last in an effort to gargle the throat forms the Northumberland r) because as ghu is to gu, so is khu to ku. The difficulty must now be much decreased to every person who possesses sagacity enough to discriminate the sounds produced in hawking up viscid phlegm from the throat, and in gargling it with water, or in an attempt to do so, by imitating what is termed the rattle in the throat of a dying man. The true discriminative articulation of kh and gh depends on ruffling the throat in a particular manner, while prolating. k and g respectively. Experience has taught me, that kh and gh closing a syllable, of which the initial is one of the liquids or nasals, are more readily pronounced by beginners than vice versa; thus, rukh is easy, compared to khur, and rugh to ghur, mukh to khum, or mugh to ghum, and so on. If the proper vibration be given to r irr before ugh, the gh very naturally becomes the Northumberland r in rugh rogh, &c. as any onemay try (who has not the burr naturally, and who can pronounce the r as directed in page 10, before the gh explained in page 12.) with the greatest success, though it may still be some time before ghur can be enounced otherwise than gur. Rugh rugh rugh, ghur ghur ghur, often repeated, may remedy the defect soon.

8. Though q be called a guttural, I would rather name it, a linqual letter, because its formation is almost entirely owing to the root of the tongue being raised to the roof of the palate or throat, which last is preserved perfectly unruffled in this operation, whence the real difference between q and the other gutturals already enumerated. Water poured in a particular manner from a long necked guglet, or the hiccup of a man more than half seas over, will, I believe, yield a sound very near the q, which, when duly articulated, has the peculiar property of exciting a nausea in the learner. When followed by u the scholar must never, as in English, change u to w, but call words like qulum, a pen, qazee, a judge, kulum, kazee, never qwulum, quazee, &c. nor qeer, pitch, queer, but keer, or rather qeer, qulum, &c. with the lingual q above described alone.

9. An anxiety to pronounce certain letters remarkably well, is very apt in beginners, not only to have an opposite effect, but also to make them aspirate letters which are not aspirated, such as ch sh zh d t, or to change our common gutturals k g to the rough kh gh and q, more especially when the organs of speech have been just employed in the formation of the q, &c. as in the words, gazee ka ghoolam ghur men hue, the judge's slave is at home. It is ten to one but ka ghur will become qa ghur, if the learner have by this time a perfect idea of the foregoing q and gh, as distinct sounds from k and gh. This tendency, and a trick of reading words like nisbut, relation, qismut, fortune, as if written nizbut, qizmut, should be carefully guarded against and corrected immediately, otherwise these bad habits will be confirmed with the most pernicious consequences, in spite of all my observations on the consistent uniformity of the Hindee-Roman Alphabet, in which s never can express the power of z, though constantly doing so in our own absurd system of orthography, disgraced with sounds for which there are no characters, and with letters that possess no fixed sounds, whence a species of polygraphic orthoepy has arisen, more like the Babylonic confusion of tongues than a regular scheme, well calculated for the comprehension of juvenile minds during their first efforts on the very rudiments of vernacular speech and grammar.

10. Beginners must necessarily pronounce with great difficulty and harshness at their outset, but their own ears soon become the best correctors of such an evanescent fault, which has its uses even, and need not give the smallest real uneasiness to the learner, though it may for a time furnish fools with something to laugh at, instead of themselves, when the tables are turned completely upon them, in conversing with the natives, who, to a bad pronouncer, might bring keera, a worm or snake, for kheera, a cucumber; or gora, a European servant, instead of ghora, a horse.

- 11. In strict orthoepic propriety, the diphthongs ue (y) uo (ou) should be expressed by ui, uo, did not this mode militate considerably against Oriental orthography, with which, from an enlarged and progressive knowledge of the languages, we are strongly induced to conform, for reasons that need not be stated in this place.
- 12. The letters r, rh, are rather nominal deviations from d, dh, than formal characters in the Nagree system, still there is sufficient cause to preserve them, as distinct symbols, in a scheme of this kind.
- 13. Whoever recollects, that y, though called a semivowel, is now always treated as a consonant in my system, can meet with no trouble in pronouncing kiya, paya, beebiyon, as ki-ya, pa-ya, beebi-yon, nor in reconciling these with kee,a, pa,e,a, beebee,on, especially if he will at the same time consult the rules on the mutation of letters, in pages 6, 33, and 35.
- 14. In this work our English u in up, sup, cup, is, for cogent motives, still preserved to denote the shortest sound of a in America, (Umuriku) Calcutta, (Kulkuttu), I must consequently beseech the learner to observe, once for all, that in my mode, position does not alter the power of a letter, therefore purdu, (părdă) a that perverseness and irregularity, which disgrace almost all the alphabets in the world: a censure from which the most philosophical of the whole, the Sunskrit even, is not altogether exempt.

- 15. The name of every letter comes as near its actual power as possible, whence a, bu, pu, lu, hu, are much more consistent and definite, than our be, pe, ell, aitch, or the Greek alpha, beta, &c. When consonants unite to form words, or appear as finals, the short inherent vowel is dropt before other vowels, whence bd in the Oriental characters is simply bud, not budu, and bad is neither bu-ad nor bu-adu, which it must be, were the names of separate letters in any language ignorantly confounded with their mere power, in the composition of words.
- 16. The number of syllables in a word, for the most part, depends on the number of vowels, as a o come! ja o, go! When two consonants occur between two vowels, they generally are divided, but when one is found, it is most convenient to give it to the last syllable, as bur-tun, a vessel, pa-nee, water, a-ya, came, pa-ya, found. The Arabic and Persian often have final consonants without an intermediate short vowel, as well as the Hindoos and ourselves, who admit of this in the beginning of words also, although no such coincidence as the last can occur in Arabic or Persian. Gurm, usl, hurn, buzm, rusm, are instances of the first species, swamee, kripa, of the last, all to be treated, as we would such combinations in our own language.

17. Those learners who content themselves with dialogues are not very likely to have much aid from Monshees, or native teachers, in acquiring the true pronunciation; they will therefore do well to read the sentences aloud to themselves, after being thoroughly versed in the rules now delivered, as it may be thus in their power to acquire a very correct, distinct, and pleasing enunciation, during their progress through this work. Scholars who commence reading the language in the Oriental characters, will do well to persevere in acquiring a just pronunciation from my Roman Orthography, as I have seen some instances of a relapse to very great inaccuracy in good pronouncers, by a premature and ill judged preference of the Persian character.

When the foregoing principles and observations are well understood by the reader, he can meet with no obstacle in learning the sounds of the Hindoostanee alphabet; and after acquiring them completely, he should commence reading aloud every day, for one month, a few paragraphs of English, according to the plan laid down here for the Oriental tongues; supposing his own language a piece of Persian or Hindoostanee, in which he must forget of course, in many words, the English orthoepy entirely. It will very soon be discovered, that where our letters and sounds follow any fixed general principle, they will commonly coincide exactly with my scheme, and vice versa. Mushroom, British, just, church, such, king, sung, sink, see, boor, fling, swim, war, " and thousands more, would be so written and pronounced in the Eastern tongues; but to enable the scholar to read this last sentence according to the system proposed, I would be under the necessity at first of writing it in our character thus:"

Aund thō usaunds mōrai wō uld bai sō writtain aund prōnō unsaid in thai ai austairn tōnggu ais (or -guiss, -gys) but tō ainaublai thai stshōlaur tō raiaud this laust saintainsai akkōrding tō thai syustaim prōpōsaid, i wō uld bai undair thai naisaissityu aut furst of writing it in uor tshaurauktairs thus.

Such an exercise, for the period mentioned above, would confirm the learner's pronunciation more than any thing I know, and his own ears would, in a few days, teach him to call a invariably awe, never ai; e not ee but ai; u short ă, in no instance oo nor yoo; ch always tsh, and j dzh, &c. In the same manner he would acquire a habit of pronouncing the very soft dentals of due, duke, tube properly, as none of the very harsh sort d t can occur in any English paragraph, provided he at the same time apply closely to the Hindoostanee alphabet, as illustrated and explained in this section of the work. To the man who can forget his own language so far as to bend its sounds accurately to my scheme of letters, we may safely submit the following Hindoostanee story, first in my way, and then in that which many other people would at once adopt, without having studied the subject so long and deliberately as I have done.

Ek badshah ne upne wuzeer se poochha, ki sub se bihtur mere huqq * men kya hue, urz kee, ki udl kurna uor ru ueyut ka palna.

* The final duplicate here and in hudd, limit, kiss, sen-

Aick baudshauh nai apnai vizier sai puchhau, ke sub sai behtur mairai huck maing kea hy, arz kee, ke adl kurnau our riot kau paulnau.

If these two, and the English sentence in page 26, read as it would be pronounced in Hindoostanee, do not convey my meaning to the reader, I shall be at a loss how to make it more obvious to him by any written instructions; he should therefore study this part well before he condemns it either as obscure or unintelligible, and he will assuredly perceive that each perusal of the whole will render it more and more familiar to himself, and to the capacity of any person whom he may thus wish to instruct in the accurate pronunciation or vital portion of a living tongue, without which, profound Oriental learning, for all the useful purposes of life in India, will prove nought but vanity and vexation of spirit. In the belief that the subsequent extract on this theme, from the Antijargonist, may still render the subject more evident, it is herewith submitted to the reader.

The following English words attending to their true pronunciation, would, agreeably to my orthography, be written thus:

sation, with a few more, is preserved agreeably to the Arabic orthography, but one only of these finals can be pronounced.

. 4	gore, I would write, gor age ej	ore or
bile buel	sage sej
hall hal	useful yoosfcol

The above words the learner should frequently repeat over, to accustom his eyes and his ears to the orthography of the Hindoostanee; and to the fixed sounds given to the English symbols, used here to express the words of that language.

For his further exercise and amusement, I shall here add an example of Addison's well known simile of the Angel,—first, according to our current English orthography,—secondly, according to the Hindoostanee orthography used here,—thirdly, according to that of the late Sir William Jones,—and, lastly, like the sentence in page 26, to confirm the practice there recommended, as the best I can devise for impressing on the reader's memory my mode of reading English, as so much Hindoostanee in the Hindee-Roman alphabet.

&quot; So when some Angel, by divine command,

&quot; With rising tempests shakes a guilty land,

&quot; Such as of late o'er pale Britannia past,

&quot; Calm and serene he drives the furious blast,

- " And, pleas'd th' Almighty's orders to perform,
- "Rides in the whirlwind and directs the storm?"

This, according to my orthography, would be written as follows:

So hwen sum enjel, bue divuen kumand,
With ruezing tempests sheks a gilti land,
Such az uv let or pel Britanyu past,
Kam and sireen hee druevz thi fyooryus blast,
And, pleezd th' almuetiz ordurz too purform,
Ruedz in the hwurlwind and duerekts thi storm.

But the learner will please to observe the sounds expressed above by a e, and th, not being found in the Hindoostanee system, do not properly belong to mine, though necessarily inserted in this specimen.

The following example of the late Sir William Jones's orthographical system is exhibited in the Asiatic Researches, Vol. I. page 33.

So hwen sm enjel, bai divain cămánd,
Widh raisin tempests shécs a gilti land,
Sch az ăv lét or pel Britanya pást,
Cálm and sirín hi draivz dhi fyúras blást,
And, plíz'd dh' ālmaitiz arderz zu perform,
Raids in dhi hwerlwind and dairects dhi stārm.

As in page 26,

Sō hwain sōmai aung-gel, byu divinai kōmmaund, With rising taimpaists shaukais au gueltyu laund, Such auss ōf lautai ōair paulai Britaunniau paust, Kaulm aund sairainai hai drivais thai furious blaust, &c. A tolerably correct pronunciation of the under-mentioned Hindoostanee words might perhaps by many be acquired, if written agreeably to the uncertain orthography of the last column here:

bare (well) thus, baurey gor (agrave) thus, goar age (before) - augey or (a side) - - oar buel (a bull) - biel sej (a bed) - saidge hal (state) - haul

But how should we find symbols to express, agreeably to the analogy of English pronunciation, such words as the following: aya, came, sayu, shade, se ahee, ink, or how distinguish gunge, ganges, from gunj, a market?

Certainly no two people would agree in regard to their pronunciation. The first three words would prove difficult in the extreme, and if the g were ever allowed the soft sound of j, it would often prove equivocal. Hence the necessity for a fixed system, adapted as nearly as possible to the existing sounds of the Hindoostanee language. By a little attention to the scale of letters in pages 3 and 7; by noting that the power of each letter in the Hindoostanee, is in all cases the same; by recollecting they never admit of a deviation in sound, however various the combination, (excepting in the instances of ee oo coichigh kh sh zh, provided for in the scheme already noticed); and by remembering that no letter is useless or mute, (saving the few orthographic examples by the note in page 27, for which an adequate reason will be assigned hereafter, when we treat of Arabic forms);—the pronunciation will come perfectly easy in a short time, thus, aya, sa yu, sé āhee, and gungé with the hard g in both instances, as if written gung-gé. But a, being in the Hindoostanee invariably broad, as in hall, e long as in vérité, and u short as in sun, the prosodial marks, (-) broad, (^) long, and ( o ) short, for those letters are unnecessary; and the diæresis, or division mark (.), is more frequently used here to facilitate the progress of a mere beginner, than from any necessity for it in a.o, ja.o, ao jao, as these, by a person conversant in my system of orthography, would be pronounced exactly the same in both cases, though so o, sleep, bo o, sow, muz hub, religion, and some others, require it as marked in page 13, that o o z h may not become oo zh.

General Rules for the Mutation of Letters.

- 1. The short vowels are all more or less liable to convertibility, not only with each other, but with long vowels and diphthongs also, especially when these are homogeneous. The long vowels are in like manner convertible among theirselves.
- 2. Diphthongs on similar principles are interchangeable together, and with long vowels also; nay, they occasionally are permutable with the shorts, as already stated.
- 3. When e ee o or oo is followed by another vowel, a considerable change generally occurs, by the two first becoming y iy, and the last w w v, or, in other words, these letters often become in ordinary discourse e ee o oo.
- 4. The vowels and semivowels, nay, some of the consonants, are met with interchangeable, particularly o oo for the labials b w, &c. yu and j.
- 5. Independent of the permutability of semivowels and liquids among theirselves, h 1 become s; m changes more rarely to b w.
- 6. The consonants are more subject to change in their own immediate series, and a few even go beyond this, as j and g, ch and k, w and yu, t and r, d j and z, s and kh.

- 7. W reduplicated, or followed by i ee, is very often expressed as v; a sound which the illiterate in India seldom acquire.
- 8. One curious vowel consonant, viz. uen, is generally lost in the diacritical point or vowel on, before, or after it, among those who speak Hindoostance without adverting to the power of this most equivocal letter, which we and the Hindoos, from the nature of our abecedarian system, must regard as a vowel, though the Arabs consider it always as a consonant.
- 9. Such changes as do not fall under the above rules must be treated rather as anamolies, to be acquired by extensive practice hereafter, than as objects worthy of much attention now; some of them, in fact, depending on the ignorance, affectation, or presumption of the natives, who frequently are desirous of appearing very profound adepts in the Hindoostanee, by introducing the nasal n, or giving the common letters k g w j s the more learned sound of kh gh v z sh, where these do not exist.

Examples of the above Rules.

- 1. Hurn, hirn, a deer; nimuk, numuk, salt; sur, sir, head; moojh, mijh, me; jul, jol, water; buttee, batce, a candle; tup, tap, a fever; phir, pher, again; idhur, eedhur, hither; chukhna, cheekhna, to taste; puhla, puhla, puhla, puhla, first; buhlana, buhilana, buehlana, to amuse; kheenchna, khenchna, khuenchna, to pull; bar, ber, a time; rikabee, rikebee, a dish; burabur, burobur, equal; thasna, thoosna, to cram; age, agoo, before; peechhe, pachhe, behind; ko, koo, for; kyoon, kyon, why. Innumerable other instances might be produced here, and after all the examples, were that now requisite in these pages.
- 2. Bhue, bhuo, fear; suo, sue, a hundred; luo, lue, love; khuemu, khemu, kheemu, a tent; uor, ar, more; foolad, folad, fuolad, steel; biluor, biloor, bilor, crystal; kuon, kon, who? muel, mul, filth.
- 3. Ke,a, kya, what; kee,a, kiya, made, did; a,e,a, aya, came; ke,on, kyon, why; sa,e,u, sayu, shade; Hindoo,ee, Hinduwee, Hindvee, Indian; tuloo,a, sole of the foot; joo,a, jowa, dice, a game, hazard, &c.

- 4. Yumna, jumna, the river so called; yog, jog, junction; mapna, napna, to measure; neela, leela, blue; deewar, deewal, a wall; seb, se,o, an apple; de,o, deb, dew, a demon, god; suro, surv, surw, the cypress, &c. bundu, burdu, a slare; puhinna, puhirna, to put on.
- 5. Deemuk, deewuk, a white ant; mah, mas, a month; l'umbu ee, Mumbu ee, Bombay; nikulna, nikusna, to issue.
- 6. Sunskrit, shunskrit; khidmut, khizmut, kismut, duty; qumees, kumeez, a shirt; zumeen, jumeen, land; bheegna, bheejna, to wet; chhima, khima, pardon; bhasha, bhakha, speech; dokhna, dosna, to blame; duhez, juhez, a dowry; khurj, khurch, expence; mushuulchee, musaljee, link boy; bawurchee, baburchee, baburjee, a cook; duuwa, daya, a claim; badshah, padshah, a king; peel, feel, an elephant; huwelee, huvelee, hubelee, a mansion; huwaldar, havildar, a serjeant; butuk, butukh, a duck; ubtuk, ubtug, yet; deg, degh, a pot; aqa, agha, master; nuqshu, nukhshu, a plan; fikr, fiqr, thought; bed, bet, a cane; baroot, barood, powder; katta, cuts; buethta, sits, and such verbs often become karta, buerhta, &c. ghora, ghoda, a horse. In fact, there would be no end of the examples which might be collected under this rule, as the learner may see by consulting the large Grammar.

- 7. Nuwwab, nuvab, nabob! fidwee, fidvee, liege; huwelee, huvelee, mansion; nuwees, nuvees, writer; wis, vis, that.
- 8. This can be illustrated by practice only, among the endless instances which must every where occur of the extraordinary letter uen, when represented by u, just before or after any vowel. It is for the most part in Hindoostanee so entirely mute, as not to be distinguished from its accompanying long or short vowel, and following u as in buud, after; luul, red; ruuna, beautiful; tuureef, praise; mushuul, torch; the coalescence of the two shorts u and u naturally produces the long sound awe, as bad, lal, rana, tareef, mushal, in the Hindoostanee mode of pronouncing these words, less accurate however than the uu now adopted. See pages 43, 44.
- 9. Among these we may enumerate guo, gae, a cow; nuo, nue, a, new; yuk, yek, ek, one; uf-yoon, ufeem, opium; mueyoor, mor, a peacock; nam, na, on, name; roothna, roosna, to fret; kumul, kunwul, the lotes; bhejna, bezna, to send, and some of those under 6 above.

When the foregoing rules, with their examples, are well understood, and when the scholar can extend them as far as they will go, he must also advert to those changes which depend upon the expansion, contraction and inversion of words in most languages, and in none more frequently than in the Hindoostanee. To assist him in this necessary exercise, the following instances may suffice. Tegha, tegh, a sword; umma, ma, mother; farigh khutee, farkhutee, a release; dustkhut, duskhut, signature; suwar, uswar, à trooper; wabustu, awabust, dependents; puhonchna, chuhonpna, to arrive; moulluq, umulluq, suspended; fuscel, sufeel, a rampart; durukht, durkut, a tree; insaf, nisaf, justice; qooful, qoluf, a lock; fulcetu, futeelu, a match or wick; hawun, humam, a mortar; and others too numerous for insertion. The scholar cannot pay sufficient attention to the great tendency which words in the Hindoostanee have to assume or drop short vowels, that occur or should be omitted between two consonants, such as usul, nugul, Urbee, wastu, for Urubee, wasitu, usl, nugl, &c. &c. but particular instances would be endless.

General rules for speaking to the Natives of India, with the greatest chance of understanding them and of being understood, after the learner has acquired an accurate idea of the sounds of their letters, as well as the various mutations or corruptions, to which these are subject.

1. An order or sentence should never be given or commenced abruptly, without prefacing it with some such expression as soono, hear! lest one half of the words be spoken before the Native has been fairly put on his guard to hear them. Kyoon, why, how, well; kuho, say; bhuee, friend; with many others, are prefixed by the natives to sentences, and may in general be considered not only ornamental expletives, but also preparative words like attention, &c. among us, by which the hearer cocks his ears or makes ready for what is to follow. From our seldom or ever using this necessary precaution, it often happens, that before a native is put sufficiently on his guard, the half of an order is already communicated, of which he probably has not distinctly heard one single word, consequently either a repetition must take place or the execution of it will prove very unsatisfactory indeed.

- 2. The Hindoostanee being naturally very concise on many occasions, as few words as possible should be used at first, to prevent bad pronunciation or worse construction from confounding the hearer, and thereby defeating the speaker's wishes entirely. Thus, "give me a plate," and many such orders, will be perfectly plain by simply saying, "basun," a plate, with that emphasis and look, which in all countries and tongues, denote the want of a thing.
- 3. A stock of the most necessary nouns and verbs, with a small number of words of place and time, will soon enable a learner, who attends to the last rule, to get what he wants from the people, if he will only recollect, that by simply changing the na of every infinitive to o, he forms their imperative plural at once. This part, of all others, is the most useful to new comers in India, and ought to be acquired accordingly.
- 4. A slow, easy, distinct, and rather broad manner of speaking will sooner be comprehended by the Hindoostanees, than the reverse, which is moreover deemed a sign of vulgarity or culpable impetuosity, that the better sort of people among them carefully avoid: Their men of rank and genteel manners are commonly much more readily understood, by a novice in the language, than those are who call themselves Monshees, but who in reality know little or nothing of the very tongue they pretend to teach, while they endeavour to build their importance on a pedantic style and flippancy of speech, that must puzzle every beginner.

- 5. The Native who receives an order should always be made to repeat what he conceives is to be done, as in this way the chance of misconception is not only obviated, but the learner has often moreover a good opportunity of correcting his own sentences, thus repeated in the true idiom of the Hindoostanee, by the very people who know it best.
- 6. When the Natives speak English, they commonly give a very instructive lesson on the nature and idiom of their vernacular tongue, of which no scholar of any penetration will fail to avail himself, when he clothes his English ideas in the speech of Hindoostan.
- 7. There is something rather perplexing in the pronunciation of n before g and k, to those who are not aware, that it then has, even in our own tongue, the power of ng in hunger, hungger; anger, ang-ger; sinking, sing-king; thinking, thing-king: On this principle ng nk must be supposed always to imply the sound of ngk or ngg, unless when thus divided, n,k n,g, whence Gunge, the Ganges; nunga, naked; kunkur, gravel; and all such words, should be spoken as if written so, Gung-ge, nung-ga, kung-kur, by those who are resolved to pronounce so as to be always understood.

- 8. When ch or k precedes chh and kh, as in uch-chha, good, muk-khee, a fly, it is more with a view of shewing how the originals are written, than with any solicitude to have them very accurately pronounced utsh-tshha, &c. as this is almost impossible, but in dekhkur, having seen; rukhkur, having placed; and all such words, the h must be very distinctly heard before and after the k, thus, dekh-kur, rukh-kur, &c. though this at first will be rather difficult.
- 9. After the consonants, y may prove at first troublesome in kya, what? pyar, love, &c. till the scholar adverts to its power as the consonant yu in young, yawn, &c. which, with k or p before them, I would write pyung, kyan; y never being a diphthongal vowel here as in our words dry, drue, by, bue, &c. The soft d and t will become dh th if the reader be not constantly on his guard against this deviation, proceeding from a strong desire to soften these letters as far as he can. If the word Jupiter come from deus pater, instead of juvans pater, as some suppose, it will prove that d was so mollified to j by the ancients, as well as by the moderns. See page 10, also 36, for duhez juhez, a dowry, recollecting at the same time, that d t are neither dzh nor tsh, but mere dentals, formed by protruding the tip of the tongue between the teeth while pronouncing them.

- 10. In cases of moment, when we have to converse with, or interrogate a Native, this should always be prefaced with some trivial discourse, not only to enable the person to overcome his apprehension, but to comprehend the address of a total stranger, whose tone of voice and manner of expression may seem at first so uncommon or indistinct, as to be, for a few minutes, almost unintelligible.
- 11. Sometimes this dulness of comprehension may be affected to gain time for an evasive or studied reply, as every Hindoostanee is too apt to conceive the most innocent of our queries only so many traps set to catch him in some villany or other. Should this occur to a man conscious of his abilities as a linguist, instead of being disconcerted, he will boldly proceed and convince the Native, that he is not to be put out of his way by any such subterfuges.

India intelligibly, without a previous know-ledge of the scheme of the Letters, can ever be expected to succeed, by those who do not conceive there exists some infallible spell in the very form of a strange character, or in the mere use of dialogues; (without either the proper sound or emphasis, which letters, words, and sentences require,) a property that I have never yet been able to discover in any alphabet or language, which was not previously illustrated and explained in my own, both respecting the individual power of letters, and the grammatical order and construction of sentences.

In drawing a comparison between the Roman alphabet, as applicable to the languages of Europe, and the Oriental, as it regards those of Asia, we may fairly say of both, that in the first, the powers of the letters are very absurdly ever varying; while, in the Eastern alphabets, their forms are not less liable to change, circumstances vexatious enough in each system to beginners. We have too few letters to express all our sounds, while the Hindoostances, on the other hand, possess such a superabundance of characters, that one sound has often three letters, though one of ours have, rather unfortunately, at times four or five sounds in 'the English tongue.

Having premised every thing most essential for the just comprehension and pronunciation, or orthoepy, of the Hindoostanee, when spoken to or by us in India, we must now proceed to its orthography, that a similarity of sound may never hereafter mislead us, when we wish to transpose our knowledge from the Roman character, adopted here, to the Oriental alphabets, contrasted with the letters of our own tongue, which all agree well enough till we come to the—u and this, while pronounced as u before explained, merely reminds the learner of its representing the curious vowel consonant, that the Arabians call uen, for which, however, neither we nor the Hindoos have any corresponding letter: u final, after a vowel, is almost mute, as in shoroou, beginning, while in shumu, a candle, it rather has the sound of a in water, and in the Hindoostanee the word is rendered shuma, like those examples produced in page 37, q. v. though, on the whole, it is best to preserve the orthoepigraphical plan as much as we can, particularly when the sounds either way differ very little from each other, as any person will perceive who compares tu-ureef, rapidly sounded tuureef, with the common mode tareef, praise, in which last the uen is less obvious than in tuureef.

expressing still the same sound of u in up, cup, only denote particular Arabic combinations, to be acquired hereafter.

- a shows that uen precedes, but is almost lost in the sound of its following a; this, therefore, differs in the Hindoostanee very little from the broad sound awe in call, &c.
- in sound as above, but expressive of a peculiar form or combination in the Arabic, the knowledge of which may be at present dispensed with by the mere student of Hindoostanee.
- a ditto.
- i is to i exactly what u is to u above.
- i no difference in the sound, though it certainly denotes rather e than i in the original.
- ee fare to ee and oo, respectively, just what a oo is to a.
  - o see u and i.

original.

w ditto.

h rather a harsher aspirate than h formerly described, and peculiar to the Arabic alphabet, but in Hindoostan pronounced just as the simple breathing hu.

discriminate aspirates in the Sunskrit alphabet from h and each other, though the sound as such does not differ from h in the smallest degree.

n have been detailed in pages 9, 17, and 23, which the learner may now consult.

the first is peculiar to the Hindoos, the second to the Arabs, still both are pronounced like the common n in run, nurse, &c.

r | | letters peculiar to the Hindoos in form, but | | exactly of the same power as r l.

t d noticed in page 10.

varieties of similar sounds by different letters, like our council, counsel, jilt, gin, &c. s in Arabic resembles our th in thin, but in the Hindoostanee it is merely s of sin, sun. like the above, mere formal varieties of the self-same sound; we write has (haz) haze, expressing the z by s in has, and by z in haze, while the sound is the same in both. is to t, precisely what s is to s, and like it in Arabic, has the power of th in thine, but in Hindoostanee is pronounced like t in tin, tune.

As the Hindoostanee student may often meet with my former publications, in which either the Hindee-Roman system was not so correctly and ultimately fixed as it is now, or the orthography in the Oriental tongues was not deemed of so much consequence as the pronunciation, it is but just to submit the following prospectus to his consideration, to guide him through the present or any other of my Oriental works, in which he will nevertheless find very few deviations from my original plan, that do not entirely depend on the great progress we have made in the learning of the East, since I commenced my large Grammar and Dictionary of the Hindoostanee language. Among these, the words panw, the foot, ganw, a village, and a few others, were long expressed by gaon, paon, in which the inflexion plural was not half so distinct as it is now in panwon, ganwon, &c. though panw come as near the true pronunciation, if not more so, than pa on formerly used.

```
and other Italic vowels, or Roman, when the word was in Italics.
ue uo yoo
                    w with over it.
                h h with the figure ' over it.
                     n with or oditto.
               t or t with ditto.
ţ
ţ.
                   t with the * over it.
                    d ditto ~.
                     r ditto ".
                     or s with figures over them.
S z ditto, all much more troublesome and less consistent than the z z z, &c. of this Work.
7.
Z
```

In the whole of the foregoing, the letters 1 d r alone represent sounds that are not quite familiar to ourselves; for 2 2 are merely three forms of z for its one sound, as stated in pages 45—47.

Students, who may wisely resolve to proceed as far in the Oriental characters and tongues in this country as they possibly can, will receive every information on the above subject of redundant letters, to express the same sounds, by consulting my Hindee-Roman Orthoepigraphical Ultimatum, lately published for this purpose. That it may prove as extensively useful as possible to those who may henceforth teach, or wish; to be taught, a language, so prevalent and indispensable in India as the Hindoostanee is to gentlemen of every description in that distant region, on sound principles, I shall here strongly recommend a reference to the above publication, more especially after the reader has made adequate progress in the present work. In the mean time, by way of specimen, the following quotation from the popular story of Sukcontula, given in the Ultimatum, is presented to the reader with a translation, in this place.

"Ub age dastan ka yoon buyan hue, ki os jungul men siwa Khooda ke, ofska ko ee khubur lenewala nu tha, pur ek pukheroo os pur upne puron ka sayu kiye tha, is se oska nam Sukontula hoo a. Wuhan puree hoo ee woh rotee thee, ansowon ke motee pulkon men pirotee thee; doodh ke liye monh pusar ruhee thee; hath panw upne, mar ruhee thee: ki Purwurdugari alum ne, upna fuzi kiya, jo Kunn Monce kuheen nuhane ko chule the, jon os turf se ho nikle, dekha, ki yih kya qodruti ilahee hue, jo is soorut se nuzur atee hue!

sos nuo gode chumun ko godistan se door dekh, hueran bu rungi bodbodi tusweer ho gu e.

Ghultan doore yuteem see thee, lek khak pur, Ghultan oskee dekh, we dilgeer ho gue.

hak pur se oʻthaya, godee men lekur kuhne luge, yih Puree, Jinn, ya kisee quom kee uesee khoob soorut lurkee hue, ki dekhee nu soonee, koochir kuha nuheen jata, uor koochir sumujh men nuheen ata; kis ne is jungul men lakur khak ke oopur is chand ke tookre ko dal diya tha, oose chhatee se luga e hoo e, ye dil men soch bichar kurte, ghur ko phire.

Mukan men puhonchte hee upnee buhun Guotumee ko, ooskee soorut dikhakur, pyar se kuha, ki "jee lugakur buhoot uch-chhee turh purwurish kurtee ruhiyo, uesa nu ho, ki kisee tuor se kotahee ho."

Lurkee kee jo woh soorut osne dekhee;

* The Italic e here and elsewhere, denotes i made long, for the sake of the verse, and i shows that ee has been shortened by the same poetic licence, for which we have no other expedient left than these Italics, applicable to u for a, &c. or vice versa.

uor bhaee kee, ooske huq men yih mihrbanee kee baten soneen, puhle ooskee bulaen leen, phir god se lekur, upne gule luga, palne lugee; din rat chhatee pur oose lootatee thee; mihr of muhubbut se doodh pilwatee thee.

Wosh is soorut se pultee thee; uor jitne os jungul ke tupushwee the, sub os ko pyar kurte the; sub kee wosh pyaree thee; on subhon men mushhoor tha, ki yih Kunn kee betee hue. Din budin wosh buree hotee thee, uor tookhrai muhubbut hur dil men botee thee.

Uor bhee do lurkiyan wuhan theen, ek ka nam Unosooya tha, doosree ka nam Pruyumvuda; teenon purwurish pakur jub buree hoo iyan ath puhur sath khelne lugiyan; con subhon ko apus men uese pyar ikhlas tha, goya con kee ek jan uor jooda jooda qalib tha.

Hur ek on men thee zohru o mihr o mah, Jinhen dekhkur howe Yoosoof ko chah. Ugur chahe sha ir kure sha iree, Buyan oon kee howe nu khoobee zuree.

Khooda ne upne dusti qoodrut se, oon teenon ka surapa men surapa khoobiyan bhur dee theen.

Bhuwen jub ki ghosse men theen tanteen, Jigur teeri mizhgan se theen chhanteen. Tulut toof se jis dum ki we hunstiyan, To zahid ko bhee soojhteen mustiyan.

Hur ek ka wooh puree sa chihru jo nuzur ta, ko ee to ghush khata, uor ko ee deewanu hojata.

Jo zolfen theen zunjeeri pae joonoon, Kufe pae rungeen thee surgurmi khoon.

Ugurchi zahir men we subhee sir se panw tuluk tumam hosn o jumal, uor naz o uda theen, lekin huqeequt men wooh shooulu bhubhooka, ki jis ka nam Sukontula tha, upne ek julwe se, dil o jan donon juhan ka phoonk detee thee; shoohru ooskee gurm bazaree ka, dhoom ooske hosni alum soz kee, uesee thee, ki aftabi alumtab ko ek zurru oos ke age tujullee nu thee.

Kuhan tuk buyan oskee hon khoobiyan, Surapa theen os men khosh osloobiyan.

Ulqişşu, Kunn Monee ne, ek din os nazneen se yih bat kuhee, ki "ub muen teeruth kurne ko jata hoon, thore se dinon men nuhakur phir ata moon, tub tuluk too chuen uor aram se yuhan khosh ruhiyo; jo kochh, mutloob ho, Guotumee se kuha kuriyo, woh teree khatir hazir kiya kuregee, uor jan o dil se şudqe qoorban hokur, sir se panw tuluk teree bulaen liya kuregee. Pur jo ko ee Tupushwee yuhan awe, adur kur panw puriyo, uor oskee khidmut keejiyo, juhantuk toojh se ho suke, kotahee mut keejo." Is is turn wooh ose sumjha, nuseenut dilasa de, ruwanu hoo,a.

"The story thus proceeds: In that wilder ness she had no real protector but the Almighty, though an eagle shaded her with its wings, whence her name of Sukcontula. There he babe lay weeping and crying, while the pearly tears were flowing from her eyes; rolling and tossing on the ground, in vain did she continue opening her little mouth for milk, till the Omnipotent was graciously pleased to conduct the holy saint Kunn to his ablutions that way, and no sooner did he approach the place, than he saw and admired the goodness of divine Providence manifested in the scene that appeared before him.

Seeing this rose-bud lying torn far from the parent bush, he stood motionless with wonder, like a fascinated nightingule. The child seemed a lost pearl cast on the ground, for whose forlorn state he felt grieved to the heart.

Kunn, moved with compassion, ran and raised the infant from the dust, and, taking it in his bosom, thus said to himself. "I cannot comprehend nor say what this angel, fairy, or some body's lovely babe, whose beauty surpasses every thing seen or described, can possibly be: Who can have abandoned a form fairer than Diana, on the cold earth in this desert!" Pressing the child to his breast, and filled with such thoughts, he returned home.

On reaching his dwelling, he showed his sister Guotumee, the baby's face, and observed affectionately, "Pray continue to cherish it with the utmost care and attention; never let me hear of any thing like the smallest neglect."

When she beheld the little cherub's countenance, and heard the kind injunctions of her brother respecting it, she first blessed the babe, and then embracing it, set about nourishing her tender charge, which was constantly afterwards dandled on her knee, and suckled with fondness and delight.

In this manner Sukcontula was reared, and the hermits or holy men of the wilderness were all very much attached to her; she was, in short, the darling of the whole, and passed for Kunn's daughter. She grew up apace, and sowed the seeds of affection in every heart.

There were also two other girls, one named Unosooya, and the other Pruyumvuda. When the three so fostered, increased in strength, they used to play together the livelong day, and were as cordial and fond of each other as if one soul had animated their separate!bodics.

Each of them was a Venus, a Juno, of a Cynthia, whom, had even the chaste Joseph seen, he must have loved.

Should the muse attempt their praises in verse, her strains would fall far short of their excellence.

The plastic hand of the Creator had forthed them in the image of loveliness itself.

When they shot angry glances at beholders, they pierced their hearts with the arrows of scorn; but while arrayed in the blandishment of smiles, even anchorites themselves felt the fervour of love. The angelic faces of those charmers were no sooner beheld by any one, than he either fainted with delight, or became distracted with passion. Their jetty ringlets formed the chains of frantic lovers, whose blood seemed to tinge the glowing soles of those damsels snow-white feet.

Though the whole were apparently a constellation of the graces, still, in reality, that brilliant star named Sukcontula, with a single spark of her beauty, so inflamed the hearts of both worlds as a universal toast, that the ra-thant sun himself grew dim with envying her lustre. How shall I describe those charms, which concentrated in her all that is lovely, personlified?

At length, the hermit Kunn one day thus addressed that beauty: "I am now going on a pilgrimage, and, having performed my devotions, will in a few days return; till then, do thou stay contented here at rest and ease; whatever may be wanted, be sure to inform Guotumee, for she will not fail to please you, and, as a person devoted entirely to you, she will continue to bless and protect you. any saint sojourn this way, fall respectfully prostrate at his feet, and perform every office of hospitality to him, without omitting the smallest duty, to the utmost of your power." -In this manner having explained his wishes to Sukcontula, he bade her farewell, and departed."

Before closing this section, the scholar must, for the last time, be reminded of its real utility and importance to him as an Orientalist; he should therefore study it again and again, more especially those portions which warn him to shun bad pronunciation, or point out the road to that which is right.

Much thought and constant practice will do more for the solitary student than he will all at once credit; and if he fortunately meet with a companion more diligent and acute than himself, the road will daily prove smoother and smoother, as they proceed together towards that stage of perfection, which is indispensable to every gentleman who desires to be useful to his employers, and comfortable within himself in British India. To speak and behave in that country as such on all occasions, is of more moment to every civil or military officer in particular, and to the state in general, than superficial observers can readily admit: Hence the subject has never, till lately, obtained that attention which its importance demands, and will yet command, either among the French or us.

The learner who may heedlessly proceed through these sheets, will run the risk of imperceptibly acquiring a pronunciation, which he must afterwards be forced to unearn; whereas he who shall weigh every letter, syllable, and word well, before he quits this key to the current living speech of India, may yet feel, after his arrival in that country, some gratitude and respect for the only author who has paid unwearied attention, during a space of twenty years, to this subject alone, and who may certainly enable every real student, if he chooses, to speak the Hindoostanee well, long before he sets a foot on our Eastern territories.

To profound erudition as an Orientalist, I make no pretensions; but the point of accurate pronunciation in British India, as far as the Hindoostanee and Persian languages, now spoken there, are concerned, I cannot readily concede to any man, however learned he may otherwise be, or whatever opportunities he may have enjoyed of hearing the latter spoken in its local purity by the Persians themselves, who undoubtedly are apt to change the u of India to a sound like the English e, the Hindoostanee e to ee, a to oo, and some others, which need not be stated in this place.

That this portion of the Monitor is remarkable for repetitions cannot be denied; still the learner, who means really to profit by this apparent blemish, may yet confess, that he required them all, before the various objects connected with much and speedy proficiency in the Hindee-Roman alphabet could arrest that attention, which the accurate pronunciation of living tongues, at our first outset, imperiously requires from every scholar.

Notwithstanding every thing said in page 20 on the gutturals kh and gh, I fear, that mughroor, proud, murghoob, delightful, mukhzun, a magazine, mukhṣooṣ, special, and such words, may still try the reader's skill, and teach him, that retrospective patience and perseverance only can insure perfection. Even is, as, rusm, will, in spite of the caveat in page 21, become again in his mouth iz, az, ruzm, rather than the iss, auss, russm, intended. If my pupil have escaped the snare laid for him in the above instances, let him call me a tautologist with impunity, otherwise I beg leave to observe, that useful truths are not the worse recollected by being frequently repeated.

Words wherein two or more difficulties suddenly catch the tyro's eye, will generally create so much anxiety to pronounce well, that one only will be overcome, while the others escape correction entirely. He must syllable all long vocables before he can possibly blo them ample justice as such; and the final h in koochh, &c. should not be allowed to mislead him so far as to say khooch, to which his tongue at first will be too prone, unless he every moment almost think, or say to himself—Take care! no expirate! long vowel! a short! a soft dental! a diphthongal vowel! the consonant yu! no French œu or u, as in awore, perdu! &c. this sound cannot therefore exist here. One's own ears will in a few days prove excellent correctors, provided the mind is stedfastly fixed upon the object in pursuit; and where there happens to be no better instructor, I see no other resource for the solitary scholar than a pertinacious trial of the above and similar expedients.

As I mean to take every favourable opportunity of communicating gratuitously my orthoepical knowledge to those who may wish to instruct others, students hereafter will probably have it in their power to obtain correct viva voce information on this essential, but arduous portion of their Oriental studies, and when attainable, it should never be neglected; for no perusal of a work can possibly supply the place of a living intelligent monitor.

The present, in default of a better, will answer every useful purpose, more especially where there are two or three studying it together, or where due attention is unremittingly paid to the context, and great assiduity evinced in reading much aloud, with a full manly voice, that the organs of hearing, more intellectually alert, may constantly regulate and correct those of sight and speech.

In this way, the memory, so requisite in the acquisition of languages, is progressively brought to a high degree of perfection, as experience daily confirms that influence which the eyes, ears, and tongue conjoined, evidently possess over the faculty of recollection. He who reads, hears, sees, and writes a word all at once, may be said to have four strings, instead of one, to the bow of his mind, which, properly bent on the objects of its pursuit, must eventually hit the mark in view, with the well-directed arrow of perception, to leave a vestige behind, which no length of time can obliterate.

Hindoostanee Significant Particles.

Long experience in teaching the Hindoostanee has convinced me, that the shortest road to a very great proficiency in that and other Oriental tongues, is a previous acquaintance with their significant letters, syllables, and particles. I shall consequently exhibit the most common in the subsequent pages, leaving it entirely to the learner's option whether he shall try to acquire the Hindoostanee in this new way, or prefer the old beaten path of regular declensions, conjugation, &c.

These will be found in their proper place, together with the usual rules of syntax; the whole being illustrated and confirmed by the dialogues, exercises, &c. in the present performance, collected into one focus here from a great variety of my other publications, in every part of which the scholar will prove more or less expert, in proportion to the pains he may now take with the following etymological view of the Significant Particles, as initial, medial, or final, throughout the Hindoostanee language.

The letters u and a, being merely homogeneous short and long vowels, may be classed together as significant particles or terminations, as far as they will go, in this etymological department of the Oriental tongues: a or u in the nom. sing, becomes e in the inflexion sing. and nom. plur. and in the infl. plur. on; gol-a, a ball; infl. gole, a ball; nom. plur. gole, balls; infl. plur. golon; bund-u, bunde, a slave; bunde, bundon, slaves; sheeshu, sheeshe, a glass; sheeshe, sheeshon, glasses. They are both masculine terminations, which, particularly a, become ee in the feminine and diminutive form; beta, a son: beiee, a daughter; ghora, a horse; ghoree, a mare; bhera, a ram; bheree, a ewe; gora, a fair man; goree, a fair woman; golee, a butlet; sheeshee, a vial; chooha, a rat; choohee, a mouse, bandee, a female slave, from bundu, below and above.

In words like gol, round; moord, dead; bund, bound; huft, seven; punj, five; gurm, warm; a and u appear as adjuncts thus: gol-a, a ball; moord-u, a corpse; bund-u, a slave; huft-u, a week; punj-u, a hand; gurm-a, warm weather, summer.

In verbs these terminations greatly resemble our perfect sign ed or d, en, &c.; chah, love; chah-a, loved; mar, beat; mar-a, beaten, a victim; purh-a, dan-a, learn-ed; azmood-u, experienced.

Compounds become adjectives like ours in ed, al, &c. so; doodil-a, distracted; doosal-u, triennial; chuogosh-u, quadrangular; and many are thus formed from nouns, piyas, thirst; piyas-a, thirsty; muel, fith; muel-a, fithy; bhookh, hunger; bhookh-a, hungry.

Sometimes a is a definite sign, bher, a sheep; bher-a, the ram; gung, a river; gung-a, the river, which we have miscalled ganges; khood, self; khood-a, self-existent, i. e. God; doomb, a tail; doomb-a, the sheep with a large tail; putun, a city; Putn-a, the city we call Patna; a, as a word, means come, in Persian and Hindoostance, whence perhaps its use as a vocative sign in both languages occasionally; yar-a, O friend; jan-a, O beloved; buhin-a, O sister.

Terminating words, a resembles our adverbial ly; zahira, apparently; uṣl-a, truly; moṇtluq-a, entirely;—often zahir-un, uṣl-un, &c. u (or un) is a common privative prefix, and sometimes a feminine sign; u-par, shore-less; u-phul, fruit-less; u-mur, im-mortal; u-chook, in-fallible; u-lug, dis-joined; u-mol, in-estimable; u-han, no, from han, yes; shair-u, a poet-ess; mulik-u, a prince-ss;—a may be met with medially, as in bur a bur, breast to breast, equal; lub a lub, lip to lip, brimful; sur a pa, cap-a-pee; runga rung, various; sur a sur, end to end, entirely, &c.

Before na of neuter, and other verbs, a makes them active, or causal, thus; buchna, to escape; buchana, to save, preserve, &c.; busna, to dwell; busana, to people; sconna, to hear; sconana, to tell, or cause hear; or when substituted for u so, murna, to die; marna, to kill, or cause die; kutna, to cut, v. n. kaṭna, v. a. buhukna, to stray; buhkana, to mislead; sumujhna, to comprehend; sumjhana, to explain;—a and u are frequently dropt, more especially u, when it would be as troublesome as our e in words like tigress, hungry, angry, &c. never tigeress, hungery, &c.; kumeen, kumeenu, mean; unaj, naj, grain; dal, dala, a branch; eent, eenta, a brick; sumujhna, sumijhana, not sumujhana; putna; as already stated, not putuna.

The nasal n after a does not prevent its inflective and plural e, nor the feminine ee in words like duswan, duswen, dusween, the tenth boy, girl, &c.—an forms the nominative plural of all feminines in ee, which last then becomes iy; golee, a bullet; goliyan, bullets; choohee, a mouse; choohiyan, mice; and of some Persian masculines, as sagee, a cup-bearer; sagiyan, cup-bearers;—a or o, followed by a, generally requires an intermediate y or w to prevent the hiatus of such homogeneous sounds, whence verbs, in ana, ona, have their perfect tense rather in aya, oya, than in a,a, o,a, and such plural inflexions, as ma-yon, mothers, duwa-yon, medicines, for ma-on, duwa-on, &c.; gana, guwana, to sing, &c. chhana, chhuwana, to shade, overcast, are formed on this principle, as ga ana, chha ana, would be troublesome.

Almost every tense of the verb has a in the singular number, for all the persons masculine, ee for the feminine singular, e for the masculine plural, and iyan, or een, for the feminine; conjugation therefore is little more than a mere repetition of the declension of nouns, as now illustrated under this letter, or rather significant particle a or u, which are so often interchangeable as to be almost one and the same; whence bandee, for bundee, a female slave, with hundreds more.

The learner will do well to acquire a habit of ringing the changes of a e ee iyan on, till they become perfectly familiar to his ear, adverting at the same time to their various uses in grammar; viz. a is almost always a masculine, singular, uninflected sign; e is both a masculine singular inflexion and a nominative plural; ee is a feminine singular, iyan, or een, its nominative plural; on the plural inflexion of most nouns, in a or u, as formerly stated on the principles of substitution; but on is rather an adjunct to all the rest.

By inflexion is meant that part of a noun or pronoun, which, with the aid of prepositions, or postpositions, forms what are called the various cases of nouns:

I, infl. me, cases, of me, to me, &c. We, infl. us, cases, of us, to us, &c.

Gola, a ball; gole ka, ke, kee, of a ball; gole ko, to a ball, a ball, &c.

Gole, balls; golon ka, ke, kee, of balls; golon ko, to balls, balls, &c. golon se, from, with, or by balls.

The postposition ka itself, coming under the inflective rule of a e ee, should always in the genitive be repeated so, gole-ka, ke, kee, of a ball, a ball's; which last translation is, for many reasons, by far the best, and ought alone to be used at first for of.

Gole and golon, from gola, are as much inflections from it, as me and us, him and her, are from I, we, he, she, and as such are governed by postpositions in the cases accordingly.

i is the genitive sign of Persian words, as hookm i hakim, the order of a judge; but, after a vowel, it becomes e, mooe sur, the hair of the head.

When the natural order of adjective and noun is inverted, i or e is thus used, murd i nek, a virtuous man; gomashtu e chalak, a clever agent; otherwise nek murd, chalak gomashtu, as in our language.

Neuter verbs, having i as a radical letter in the active or other forms, change it to e or ee.

Phirna, v. n. pherna, v. a. to turn; veer.

chhilna, v. n. chheelna, v. a. to rub, scrape, &c. sumitna, v. n. sumetna, v. a. to contract.

e is the masculine inflexion singular and nominative plural of a or u, to such an extent, that almost every final e may be treated by the learner as an inflexion of a or u, so—Kinaru, a side, edge, &c. kinare, aside, apart; aga, front, fore part; age, before; mara, beaten, driven, &c. mare, through, from, by; neecha, low; neeche, below, &c. In Persian, e or ee restricts the noun to one, either definite or indefinite, as goole, a flower individually; durukhte, the particular tree, &c.

e may be met with as a vocative sign, e sahib, O sir! a singular postposition among the pronouns, oos-e, to him, him; and as the singular affix of the 2d and 3d persons of the aorist or subjunctive, mar-e, if thou or he beat, &c.; nor must we forget its use already noticed, as a genitive sign, lolee e fuluk, the courtezan of the sky, viz. Venus, or the star so called. A retrospective glance at i will show how e is used as an active sign among verbs, whence mitna, to be erazed; metna, to obliterate; mitwana, to cause eraze, &c.

As the final radical of a verb, it is apt to be dropt before another vowel, which will account for de o, give you; le o, take you; becoming simply do, lo, from de, give thou; le, take thou.

Sometimes e disappears in the aorist and future also, for similar reasons, ho, if thou or he be; ja, if thou or he go; hoga, he or it will be, instead of hoe, ja,e, hoega. At other times the hiatus here is obviated by the intervention of w, thus, howe, jawe, howega, and elsewhere by y, or rather the change of ee before vowels to iy, agreeably to pages 23, &c. which contain observations of extensive use in all the Oriental tongues, and peculiarly applicable to Hindoostance verbs.

By adding n to e, so en, the nominative plural of all feminines, which do not terminate in ee; is formed; bat-en, word-s; kitab-en, book-s; ubroo-en, eye brow-s; in this way also the pronominal dative, and accusative signs plural, oon-en, to them, them; besides the aorist plural, mar-en, if we or they beat; jawen, if we or they go; howen, if they or we be; sometimes hon hoen, for the reasons stated above.

ee has just been treated as the feminine and diminutive sign, naturally flowing from the masculine and augmentative a; lurka, a boy; lurkee, a girl; russa, a rope; russee, a string; lurka gata, a boy sings; lurkee gatee, a girl sings; lurke gate, boys sing; lurkiyan gatiyan, (or gateen) girls sing.

ee is a feminine termination, when the word is not by nature masculine: panee, water; motee, a pearl; ghee, melted butter; jee, life; duhee, curds—excepted, which are all masculine; as also such words, sipah-ee, a soldier; malee, a gardener, &c. for the reason now assigned.

Adjectives become nouns, or vice versa, by assuming ee; khoob-ee, good-ness; bhula-ee, well-fare; bura-ee, great-ness; beemar-ee, sickness; wuzn-ee, weight-y; puhar-ee, a mountain-eer; Khooda-ee, God-head; murd-ee, man-hood; dost-ee, friend-ship; hath-ee, hand-y; (whence, an elephant, as hath means the hand.*)

* This and similar words, with a final inspirate, are uncommonly troublesome to beginners, though the h be often a very essential discriminative letter as in sath, with; bagh, a tiger; doodh, milk; gurh, a fort; koochh, some; thus distinguished from sat, seven; bag, a bridle rein; dood, smoke; ghur, a house; kooch, the breast; and kooch, a march. In koochh, with a few such, the h is scarcely perceptible to the ear, and in all the rest, in fact, it is by no means a full very distinct aspirate; sath must not therefore be made sathu nor satuh, but merely sath, Rusm-ee, custom-ary; kitab-ee, oblong, i. e. book-like; Hind-ee, India-n; azar-ee, disease-d; occasionally with an intervenient w a or g, eesu-wee, Christ-ian; doonya-wee, world-ly; chuoksa ee, alertness; chuokus, alert; bundugee, slave-ry; deewanu-gee, madness; udhika ee, over-plus; sewuk-a ee, service.

As an emphatic, ee and hee are thus used, yih-ee, this very; wooh-ee, that very; muenhee, myself; malik-hee, the owner's self; something like the e formerly explained, which the Persians call ee.

When final a of infinitives or participles becomes ee, they express instrumental, local, or abstract nouns; kuturnee, scissars; koorelnee, a poker; orhnee, a covering; bustee, a village; gintee, an account; dhurtee, the world; bolee, speech, from kuturna, to clip, &c.

The second person singular of every tense of the Persian verbs ends in ee; and as an affix to infinitives, in that tongue, it denotes propriety, fitness, &c. kooshtun-ee, worthy of death; with a smooth gentle inspiration, as close after the t as l is to r in curl, purl, &c. in our language. khordun-ee, eatable, from the verbs to kill, to eat.

When one ee follows another, it is naturally dropt as troublesome, whence kee, dee, pee, lee, see, for kee, ee, dee, ee, &c. the regular feminine perfects of verbs with radical e, or ee.

Generally speaking, ee may be treated as a significant affix in the Hindoostanee, of such extensive use, that practice only can ascertain it; thus, after the a of many active imperatives, it forms a species of abstracts or participials, like our own, and applicable to season, price, &c. kuṭa-ee, cutting; boˌa-ee, sowing; dho-la-ee, washing; luṛa-ee, battle, fighting, &c.

Followed by the particles an, on, it becomes iy in the nominative and inflexion plural, choohiyan, mice (unless when the a is omitted, as in choohiyan kheltiyan, or khelteen, mice play) choohiyon ko, to mice.

O, though sometimes a vocative prefix like e, is generally, substituted for the nom. signs a or u, but affixed to every other letter to form the vocative plural of all nouns; beto, O sons; bundo, O slaves; lurkiyo, O girls; kitabo, O books;—on has been already discussed as the plural inflexion by substitution, and by addition it must be evident enough in kitabon-ka;

ke, kee, of books; ubroo-on se, from eye-brows; murdon ke age, before men.

O forms the second person of the aorist and imperative plural mar-o, if you beat, beat you, and after numerals seems definite; teen-o, the three; char-o, the four; but intermediately it has a conjunctive or adverbial influence, din o rat, day and night; hath o hath, from hand to hand; rat o rat, the whole night.

In Persian o is the conjunction, and also the pronoun he, o-ra, to him.

oo an instrumental or adjective affix, mar-oo, hilling, fatal; jhar-oo, a broom; dekha-oo seemly; deedar-oo, sight-ly.

co-jarna, to extirpate, eradicate; oo-gulna, to reject, chew the cud; oo-tarna, to dismount, &c. Followed by the nasal n, it denotes the first person sing. of the aorist, mar-oon, if I beat, and the indicative of hona, to be, hoon, I am. Sometimes it looks like a privative oo-hoon, no, from hoon or han, yes.

boy; ue dost, O friend; constituting also the second and third person singular of hoon; hue, thow art, he is, made plural by n huen, we or they are. As hona, to be, was probably at first hu-na, to breaths, or be, we can thus account for the seeming irregularity of this verb, by supposing the ancient regular aorist has now become the present of the indicative hu oon, hu,e, hu,o, hu,en, omitting the u in hoon, ho, as the verb stands at present, a hypothesis confirmed by the future huega, of which hereafter. This diphthong is very conspicuous also among the pronouns, muen, I, tuen, thou.

uo, like o, is a conjunction, probably contracted from uor, and; as pu is sometimes from pur, on; it is a prominent letter in kuon, who; juon, who; tuon, that; and being often interchangeable with o and oo, the scholar should get a habit of treating all three, as one only and the same sound.

hu—appears to be the root of the verb huna, to be, now hona, as I have just explained. This letter is peculiar to the third personal pronouns, yih, wooh, he, she, it, but among these and the rest, it is frequently suppressed, whence conen for conhen, them, to them; toomh, toom, you: han or an, means place in composition; wuhan, there, that place; ha, like y, keera, a worm; keeruha, wormy.

ah, a sigh, is, I think, more expressive than our word, as it must be expressed by a full inspiration after a, and being feminine, the nom. pl. is ah-en, the infl. ah-on; hae, alas! doohae, tihae, help, help, alas! alas! ho, be; hue, is, art; hoon, am; han, yes; hee, very, self; he, the vocative sign, O.

Yu, a useful intervenient consonant between homogeneous vowels, aya, came, instead of a,a; kiya, for kee,a, did; and kya, for ke,a, what? to prevent the hiatus, as formerly illustrated.

Ya, means or and  $O_i$  ya khooda, ya eesa, O God! O Jesus! also or God, or Jesus; ye, these; yo, thus; yoon, thus.

When y e i ee or ue, is the prefix of pronominals, it commonly conveys the idea of proximity, expressed in English by this, thus; itna, tantus; kitna, quantus; uesa, talis; kuesa, qualis; idhur, hither; kidhur, whither? yuhan, here; kuhan, where? yoon, thus; kyoon, which way? how? why? uela, this side; wuela, that side; puela, farthest off, &c.

wu, an intervenient like yu, homogeneous with o and oo, as y is with e and ee; it frequently expresses and, wu-ghueru, et cætera; and occurs as a subservient in ordinals, duswan the tenth; panchwan, the fifth; omitted ad litium, as chuothan, fourth; this an may therefore be deemed equivalent to our thin eleventh, egarhan, &c. and so on.

Every verb having a radical final vowel, assumes and drops w in the aorist and future at pleasure, but the others do not, whence bowe, boe, he may sow; bowenge, beenge, they will sow; chule, (never chulwe) he may walk or go. If the radical (i. e. the letter before the infinitive na) be ee, the effect is thus, seewe, siye, he may sew; seewe ga, siye ga, he will sew; partly explained in a former section.

wa, means a man, &c.; pesh-wa, a foreman, or leader, also open; wan, wen, ween, noted above as th: wa, e, alas! wa, e wuela, lack-a-days wah, bravo! wah wah, admirable!

wooh, wuh, (formerly wa) he, that, it, she. we, they, wooh bolta, he speaks; wooh boltee, she speaks; we boltee, they speak; we boltiyan, they (females) speak.

bu bur or ba, a preposition or adverbial prefix, ba-hoormut, with honour, honourably; bu-shid-dut, with violence, violently; bu-ja, in place, a-propos, right, properly; bur-wuqt, in time, seasonably; dur bu dur, from door to door; ja bu ja, from place to place; roo bu roo, tete-a-tete; roz bu roz, day after day, daily; ba insaf, with justice, justly; dust bu qubzu, sword in hand; dust but sure respectfully, i. e. with hand at head, viz. cap in hand; ba, father, son, generally reduplicated baba, (like ma, mother, mama,) whence bee, baee, and beebee, a lady, matron; baboo, nobleman, with ube, sirrah, in contempt.

be, without, also a useful privative, be-ja, malapropos, out of place, unseasonably; be-aram, restless, be-dum, breathless; be-hoormut, dishonoured; intermediately, ja-be-ja, here and there.

. As b is not only interchangeable with the other labials, but o oo also, the student will not be surprised to meet with seb, seo, an apple; talab, talao, a pond; tub, tuo, then; jublug, juolug, until, &c. often tud, jud.—Bi, dis, &c. bi-lugna, to dis-join; bi-lug, a part; desee, native; bi-desee, foreign; bi-chulna, to retire.

This letter, being an expletive prefix to Persian imperatives, as bu, bi, boo, be, &c. is much used, boogo, speak; bidih, give; bya, come, &c. probably meaning, do speak, pray give, come along.

In Arabic it is met with so, bil-lah, by God, bu Ulee, by Ulee, &c.

Bee, the feminine of ba, must not be confounded with blue, also; bulie, she floated, also a ledger; bluee, friend, brother, &c.

Bo, boo, smell, scent; likewise sow, from bona, to sow.

bu, I suspect, is a root denoting stability, time, eternity, whence ub, now, this time; kub, when? jub, when; tub, then; bul, strength; bar, ber, time.

It is curious enough, that in some of the Indian tongues, b is a prominent letter in the future tense, as in abo, ibo, of the Latin; and not less so, that boo, ba, in both Persian and old Hindee differs little from our own verb be.

In every numerical series of two, b is the leading letter, baruh, twelve; bees, twenty; baees, twenty-two; butees, thirty-two, &c. whence one would suppose, that do, doo, two, was formerly ba; bis, biped, biennial, &c. confirm the supposition.

pu, as a contraction of pur, means on, at, &c. whence oopur, upon, above, &c.

phu seems a radical, denoting the blowing with the breath, and the blooming of a flower, or the expansion of any thing; phoonkna, to blow, breathe; phool, a flower; phul, a fruit; phoolna, to swell; phulna, to bear fruit; phun, a snake's hood or crest; phen, foam, froth; phootna, to burst; phutna, to crack; phoolka, light; phaha, a flake:—pa, pa e, the foot, paw; occasioni-ally ness, mota-pa, fat-ness; doobla-pa, leanness, &c.; sur a pa, from head to foot; pa-bund, foot-bound, rivetted; pa, e mal, trodden, destroyed; pa-een, helow, under; ap, self, your honour, &c.

pee, a lover, the root of pee-na, to drink, whence, piy-as, thirst, viz. a desire to drink; puh, a root connected with primary objects, perhaps from its meaning the dawn of day.

pue, payu, the same as pa, pue-zar, a shoe or slipper; pue dur pue, successively, foot after foot.

pa,o, puo, a quarter, whence puone, a quarter less, as puone teen, 2½, viz. a quarter less three.

op, lustre; op-na, to polish; op-chee, clad in armour.

fee, fi, equivalent to in, at, per, &c. fil-hal, at present; fee guz, per ell, &c.

vu is not used, except as wu, for a significant particle, though useful enough to express the reduplicated w in nuwwab, nuvab, whence our corruption nabob.

n has before been noticed as a plural final in an, and en, een, on.

russiyan, ropes; raten, nights; bol-en, we or they may speak; inh-en, to these; bol-een, they, you, or we (females) spoke; ah-on, sighs; but in bol-oon, I may speak, muen, tuen, it is rather a singular sign, and the same among the ordinals, tees-wan-wen-ween, the thirtieth.

n is also a very conspicuous letter among adverbs of place, as yuhan, wuhan, &c. already enumerated. This n is often redundant, and at times omitted.

n occurs in the genitive of ap, like ka, ke, kee, upna, upne, upnee; and as the infinitive sign it is liable to the very same inflexion, na, ne, nee, as a verbal noun or adjective, according to the concord or government of the sentence. In one verb it is used for the sake of the sound, an ke, ake, having come.

Some adjectives, &c. are formed by na, doo-na, double: bhoot, a ghost; bhoot-na, an imp.

Under various forms of un, na, ni, nir, this radical may be met with as the paramount sign of negation, privation, &c. na tumam, imperfect; ni kumma, use-less; nir-as, hope-less; nir-mul, limped; nirala, uncommon.

Among the pronouns, the plural is marked by n instead of n, thus: in, these; con, those; jin, whom; kin, whom; for the very obvious reason, that mere nasals would make such words seem too insignificant.

Persian and other infinitives are apt to end in this letter, also many pronouns; nul, nue, a tube, pipe, &c. evince the prominent inanity of this sound, corroberated by words in most languages, as nemo, nihil, ninny.

Variously modified n marks feminines and diminutives, malee, gardener; malin, his wife; dhobee, a washerman; dhobin, a washerwoman; joolaha, a weaver; joolahin, joolahun, his wife; sher-nee, a tigress. Peer-un, Meer-un, diminutives from Meer-and Peer, proper names.

The affix un resembles our ly, ittifaq-un, ac-cidental-ly, quid-un, purpose-ly.

nuh, the nail; nakhoon in Persian.

nuo, nuya, new, likewise nine.

nue, a tube, reed, cane, pipe.

ne, an expletive before active verbs in the perfect tenses, muen ne diya, I gave, muen ne nuheen, I did not give, or I gave not.

nu, though in general a simple negative, occasionally expresses or; koochh nu koochh, something or other; kubhee nu kubhee; sometime or other; kuheen nu kuheen, somewhere or other.

The negative nu, in verse, may be made long, and pronounced ne.

nee, the fem. of na, also an affix to denote that gender, mor-nee, a pea-hen.

m belonging to the pronoun of the first person in several tongues, and in Arabic applicable by a peculiar inflexion to place, instrument, &c.; muqsud, destination; muhkumu, judgment-seat; muqtul, place of execution; mistur, a rule; or reciprocity, as, mooqatulu, carnage; moobahusu, argumentation.

As an affix in beg, khan, a lord, m denotes the feminine begum, khanum, a lady.

ma, man, mother; mah, a month.

moo, hair; moh, pity; muya, sympathy.

moonh, face, mouth.

mue, wine; mui, with; bu mui, along with.

muen, I.

men, in, at, on, &c.; menh, rain.

mu resembles the nu in khwah, mukhwah; nolens volens, expressed also by huq na huq, the hocknock of jargonists. Before the imperative this negation commonly assumes t, as mut, dont.

muo, some places or towns are so called in India.

lu, ru, differently modified with the vowels, as al, el, r, ar, &c. appear as radicals denoting possession, agency, existence, &c. which will be found in some measure, to pervade our own and other tongues, puh-la, first, doos-ra, second, tees-ra, third, the s of these seems merely for the sound.

Sometimes these letters occur as mere subservients, in nir-as, hopeless, dholana for dho ana, to cause wash, &c.

ra, re, ree, is to the first and second personal pronouns, &c. what ka, ke, kee, is to every other word in the genitive; mera, mere, meree, of me, my, mine; tera, tere, teree, of thee, thy, thine; huma-ra, re, ree, our, our's; toomha-ra, &c. your, your's. In Persian, ra is equivalent to ko, to, for, o-ra, to him.

re, o, bap re, O father; ma ree, O mother. reh, a sort of fuller's earth.

rah, a road; rah-ee, a traveller, wayfarer.

roo, the face; roo bu roo, face to face; ab-roo, reputation; ub-roo, eye-brow.

rooh, the soul.
rue, rate, ratio.
ruee, bran.
raee, mustard.
rae, opinion.

These, and others like them, prove the absolute necessity of great accuracy in pronunciation, as thousands such are met with in the Hindoostanee.

The palatials t d, with their aspirates th dh, are little if ever used as significant or even expletive particles, nor am I yet aware of their application as Sunskrit radicals.

d very often becomes a harsh r, and t sometimes the soft r; as such they will occasionally be met with affixed to other words: thus, chumra, leather; chumree, cuticle; cham, hide; pugra, a large turban; pugree, a small one; pug, one very large; and though this application of ra, ree, ur, ar, do not always hold good, they may nevertheless be traced as subservient affixes of some sort or other, in many words terminating as above.

tho will often be heard in counting so, ek tho, one (knife, &c.); panch tho, five (chairs, &c.); and must be carefully discriminated from to, the mere expletive, hue to, he is I believe.

t seems a leading letter in the second personal pronoun, too, tuen, thou; toom, you; tera, thy, &c. the correlatives, tuon, tuhan, tuesa, &c. It is moreover the paramount sign of the present tense, immediately after the root of the verb, and before the a, e; ee, een, of masculines and feminines in both numbers; marta, I, thou, he, (males) beat; marte, we, you, they, (males) beat; marteen, or martiyan, we, you, they, (females) beat.

In the old verbs the use of t was even more obvious as a present sign, murun, to die; murut, he dies, &c.

te, the old word for se, from, sometimes sitee.

ta, that, to, till; affixed, ness, sum-ta, sameness; komul-ta, soft-ness.

tha, was, had, did; the, thee, theen, &c. thah, a bottom, ford; u-thah, bottom-less. tuh, fold, doubling, down, below.

to, that, also, &c. in Persian, thou, and often contracted and affixed as ut or simply t.

too, toon, tuen, thou.

tuo, then, yes, well; like tub, then.

This letter takes the lead in every series of three, under the various forms of tee, ti, tree, tir, te, and in many compounds from this number; thus, doo haee, twice alas! ti haee, thrice alas! ti-paee, a tripod; tri-sool, trident.

ut or iyut, like the affix ta, will be found in many words; thus, admiyut, humanity, shukh-siyut, self-importance, and padshah-ut, king-dom.

at, Arabic plural sign, warid-at, accident-s; monfrid-at, simple-s.

at, the custard apple, affixed like ta booht-at, abundance, from buhoot, much, sometimes a et, puncha et, an assembly, a jury of five.

ath, eight (in composition); uth, ur, us, as. ot, shelter, cover; uti, very in Sunskrit. tue, a fold, ply, correlatively, as many, so many. after kue, jue, how many, so many.

tue, passing over; tue-kurna, to cross.

tu een, like ko; but a compound postposition requiring ke, murd ke tu een, to the man, or simply the man.

The other dentals are seldom of much use etymologically, except d, very conspicuous in the third persons of Persian verbs.

De, give, let; de o, do, the plural; ane de, let come; do, doo, two, used in several compounds, as doosra, a second; doona, doogna, double.

donon, both; doodila, distracted; lit, two-hearted; doo ha,ee, ti ha,ee, twice and thrice alas! help! help! justice! justice!

s being convertible with h, in duh, dus, ten, mah, mas, a month, &c. we can so far account for it as the pronominal inflexion in yih, is; woth, cos; though more difficult to trace it in jo, jis; kuon, kis; tuon, tis, &c.

su, denotes association, su-kha, su-khee, a comrade; suhna, to put up with, bear; sujjun, a lover.

sa, se, see, son, like; a particle of similitude discernible in uesa, wuesa, juesa, tuesa, kuesa; from yih, wooh, jo, tuon, kuon, or kya, meaning like this, that, which, &c. it means also ish, as kala-sa, black-ish, hura-sa, green-ish.

se, from, with, by, to, &c. sometimes sitee, and formerly son, te, &c.

sa, sometimes is used discriminatively, as kuonsa, juonsa, tuonsa, koeesa, whichever, which of two, or many, &c.; it often requires ka after the noun, huewan ka sa, brutal; lurke ka sa, boyish; ungoor ka sa, like a single grape.

sah, a banker; si, three; si puhur, 3 o'clock; sitara, a three-stringed instrument; sisalu, triennial; si goshu, triangular.

so, the same, so, he; so, sleep thou; so,o, sleep you.

soo, as a prefix, expresses any thing good, soor, angel; soochal, good conduct, &c. whence perhaps sona, to sleep, also gold, both of which the Asiatics are very fond of; sohna, to fit, become, evidently from soo and hona contracted to sohna.

suo, sue, 100.

sayu, saye, shade.

sa, ee, zealous; sa, ee, earnest to bind a bargain; sa, een, master, lord.

sahee, a porcupine.

su ee, exertion, endeavour.

sh, of little use except in ish, at the end of Persian roots, or imperatives, as posh-ish, clothing, saz-ish, collusion. In Persian, sh sometimes expresses the third personal pronoun.

sho, a washer, in composition; dog-sho, a scullion; moordu sho, a corpse cleaner.

z and zh, unless as a contraction of uz, from, &c. in the Persian, have no significant power.

za, from zadu, born, means a son; mir-za, a knight, being literally meer-za, the son of a lord.

jun, juna, have the same import in Hindoostanee, muha-jun, high-born; soowur ka juna, a pig, or hog's son.

zee and zoo, as prefixes, mean possessed of, &c.; zee-rooh, possessed of life, living; zoo-foonoon, artful.

chu, chee, eechu, sundooq-chu or-chee, a box; deg-chu, or -chee, a pot; bagheechu, a small garden, from sundooq, a chest, deg, a large pot.

*cha, or chae, tea; chah, desire.

chi, what? chhee, fy! chhee chhee, fy for shame!

chee, a particle both of diminution and agency, bundooq-chee, musquet-eer; tumboor-chee, a drum-mer.

* Many words with final a assume e in this manner, to which the learner must constantly advert in his progress among the Oriental tongues.

chhu, six, in comp. s, chhi chhe; soluh, sixteen, is a change and contraction of chhu uor duh, six-and ten.

chuo, 'in comp. four; chuo-duh, fourteen; chuo-goshu, quadrangular; chuo-gird, around; chuo-kunna, circumspect; lit, four-eared.

j denotes the relative state of pronominals and adverbials, jo, who; juonsa, whichever; jo ee, whoever; jub, when; juhan, where; juesa, so, like which; jitna, so many; jita, so much; jue, as many; jyoon, just as; jidhur, whither; joheen, as soon as.

k is generally interrogative, kuon, who? kya, what? kub, when? kuonsa, which? kuhan, where? kuesa, how? kitna, kita, kue, how much, many? kyoon, why? kidhur, whither?—k. contraction for kurna, as h. d. a. r. &c. is respectively for hona, dena, ana, rukhna, &c.

ka, ke, kee, a genitive, possessive, or adjective sign, to be always translated by 's, and treated as an adjective affix; ubka sal, now's year, viz. the present year; ubke sal ka khurch, this year's expence; ubke sal ke khurch ko, this year's expence for; oos ka bap, his or her father; oos kee ma, his or her mother; oos ke bap se, from his or her father; oos kee ma ko, to his or her mother; oos ke do bhaee, his or her two brothers; oos kee do buhinen, his or her two sisters.

kee is often the fem. of kiya, done, made, &c.; urz kee, he said, as stated in page 73.

ko, to, for, at, or simply the accusative sign; ghore ko do, give (to) the horse; ghore ko mut maro, dont beat the horse.

uk, ak, k, the agent, &c. puer-ak, a swimmer; sewu-k, a servant; mend-uk, a frog; ghuo-k, ditto, from swim, service, a ditch, and ghuo ghuo, the cry of a frog, the largest of which are the best teachers I know of the burr, or Northumberland r, expressed by gh in my system, in this hoarse gluo gluo of the Indian frogs, which certainly articulate the sound required with great precision in their responsive salutes from one brink of a water to the other, during the rainy season in Bengal. If cats occasionally converse by a modulation of their voices not unlike the human speech, the frogs and crows of the East are not behind them in these gutturals of speech kha, qa, gha; and I have often heard the Indian starling, or muena, pronounce the word sahib, master, more correctly than most of our countrymen in the Eastern hemisphere, who generally say sab, instead of sauding that full, manly, distinct sound of the control is a and the expirated hib.

ke, kur, as, having, ly; mar-ke, mar-kur, was beaten; sometimes mar-kurke, mar-kur, jan-kur, knowing-ly.

ki, that, who, which, saying.

koo, bad, opposed to soo, koo-chal, misconduct, koo-dhung, un-mannerly.

kue, how many? ku ee, several. que, reaching, vomiting.

g applies to the future tense of verbs, affixed to the aorist terminations oon e en o, and pre-fixed to the masc. sing. and plural are, or the feminine ee, een, iyan; ja oonga, ja ega, ja enge, ja oge, ja oongee, ja egee, ja engeen, ja ogeen, &c. I will go, and so on.

The foregoing significant particles will prove so truly convenient for the analytic and synthetic process with Oriental vocables, on which very great proficiency in the Hindoostanee must ultimately depend, that I cannot now resist the impulse to furnish every facility of this sort to the inquisitive scholar, by way of exercise to his memory, before he applies his judgment progressively in the derivation and composition of words, as they pass in review before him, through the whole of the examples. Under this impression, I have collected below, the most common prepositive, adjunctive, and intermediate inseparable particles, (or words used as such) which could not appear before as mere letters, that they also may be learned completely by heart with the postpositions, &c. which follow in pages 103, 104, &c.

Prepositives.

ghuer, other,
khilaf, opposite,
kum, less,
udum, without,
bud, bad,
zisht, ill,
pustdoontung, narrow,
goom, lost,
door, bad,

ghuer suhceh, in-correct.
khilaf uql, un-reasonable.
kum zor, pith-less.
udum foorsut, leisure-less.
bud soorut, ill-favoured.
zizht roo, ditto, ugly.
pustdoontung dil, narrow minded, goom hosh, insensible.
door mut, un-wise.

which have all a privative, negative, or defective tendency, in a variety of compounds, such as the instances here produced, merely for the learner's future guidance through innumerable derivatives of the same species in this and all languages.

The particle la has been omitted in its proper place, though like na of great use as a privative: la-char, help*less*; la-ghurz, dis-interested; la-hul, in-explicable.

khoob, good, khoobsoorut, well-favoured.

nek, virtuous, nek mizaj, good-natured.
shuh, ra,e, royal, &c.
raj, grand, royal, &c.
express good in their compounds; the three last often apply to the vegetable and animal kingdom, importing bulk, excellence, &c.

qabil, able, qabil ilaj, remediable.
laiq, proper, laiq suza, punishable.
sometimes the order of the words is inverted in these and other examples.

saḥib, lord, master, saḥib uql, a wise man.
meer, &c. like præ- meer mujlis, a president.
uhl, ditus. uhli kar, a tradesman.

ziyadu tulub, exorbitant;
ziyadu, denote foozool, excess, lain denote foozool, lain den

Adjunctives.

hut, wut,
wut,
gee,
tazu gee, freshness.
pun, puna,
puna,
ana,
anu,
anu,
bewa puna, widowhood.
ghur ana, household.
nuzur anu, a present, &c. zunanu, womens appartments.

cenu, sal eenu, yearlyroz eenu, dailychob eenu, wooden.

the three last denote, fees, fines, places, adjectives, &c. as above.

wala, doodh wala, a milk-man.

wal, kot wal, police officer.

wuya, nuchwuya, a dancer.

iya man, mukhun iya, a butter-man.

waha, &c. hul waha, a ploughman.

duor aha, a runner.

hara, lukur hara, a wood-monger.

war, commedwar, a candidate, hopeful.

The whole of the foregoing assume various forms in composition, such as al, el, eela, uela, har, uha, era, which are used as adjectives, agents, &c. thus, rus eela, juicy, luscious; ghuruela, domestic; pa,el, sure-footed, a good pacer; sump era, a snake-catcher, with many more.

In the feminine with many nouns they occur so:

walee, woman, doodh walee, a milk-woman, cheere walee, a virgin, ruseelee ankh, a luscious eye.

kar, bud kar, an evil-doer, kisht kar, a planter. gar, khidmut gar, a waiting servant, goonuhgar, a sinner.

gur, suoda gur, a trader, saboon gur, a soapboiler.

dar, dookan dar, a shop-keeper, zumeen dar, a landholder, farmer.

The whole of the above, and a number below, imply maker, doer, holder, keeper, &c. as agents in er or adjectives of our language.

burdar, bearer, hooqqu burdar, a pipe man, nishan burdar, standard bearer.

bur, carrier, pueghum bur, a messenger, prophet, ruh bur, a conductor.

ban, keeper, bagh ban, a gardener, durban, a door-keeper.

'wan, —— garee wan, a carter, kishteewan, a boat-man.

man, —— goon man, an artist, boodh man, a wise man.

baz, player, shutrunj baz, a chess player, rindee baz, a wencher, dumbaz, a puffer.

kush, drawer, tar kush, a wire drawer, hooqqu kush, a smoker.

saz, maker, zumanu-saz, a time-server, sookhn-saz, an orator.

geer, taker, rah geer, awayjarer, dust geer, a patron, goolgeer, snuffers.

furosh, seller, mue furosh, a wine merchant, puneer furosh, a cheese-monger.

khor, eater, khoon khor, khoon khwar, a murderer, blood-thirsty.

sho, washer,

khwar, drinker, shurab-khwar, or khor, a winebibber, sood khor, a usurer. khan, Jeller, qissu khan, a story-teller, Farsee khan, a Persian scholar. go, speaker, durogh go, a liar, rast go, a teller of truth, candid. undaz, thrower, gol undaz, a gunner, teer undaz, an archer, burq undaz. a musqueteer. gol chula, a cannoneer. chula, --sookhn cheen, acarper at words, cheen, seizer, gool cheen, a florist. rez, shedder. khoon rez, a shedder of blood, a murderer, rung rez, a dyer. kun, digger, gor kun, a grave-digger, moohur kun, a seal-engraver. rug zun, a phlebotomist, rahzun, butmar, a robber, highzun, way-man, foot-pad, &c. chiree mar, mar, a bird-catcher. mahee shikar,, a fish-catcher, shikar, catcher, ahoo shikar, a deer-catcher. rikabee les, a plate-licker, a syles, licker, cophant, a toad-eater. khuemudoz, a tent-maker. doz, sewer, deg sho, a pot-washer, a scullion, moordu sho, a corpse-washer.

dan, knower, hisab dan, an accountant.

indu, — nuwees indu, a writer.

bos, kissing, pa bos, kissing the foot, dust kissing the hand.

jo, searcher, ueb jo, a fault seeker, a crit shunas, knower, qudur shunas, a discerner of merit, a patron, kuj fuhm, perverse.

suwar, mounted, &c. shuh suwar, a swift rider.
nusheen, sitting, tukht nusheen, seated on a throne.

bukhsh, giver, khuṭa bukhsh, a pardoner of sins.

posh, hider, purdu posh, a concealer or winker at faults.

purust, adorer, shikum-purust, a belly-worshipper, an epicure.

purwur, protector, shureeb purwur, protect-ing the poor, yuteem nu-waz, &c. waz, the orphan's friend.

bund, binder, jild bund, a book-binder, nuul bund, a farrier.

amoz, taught, nuo amoz, a novice, tyro, &c. purdaz, manager, kar purdaz, managing business, a factor.

ncoma, shewer, rah ncoma, a conductor. ashob, inflaming, dil ashob, inflaming the heart.

fureb, stealer, dil fureb, a heart-stealer, a mistress.

ungez, exciter, atush ungez, an incendiary, fit-ungez, exciter, atush ungez, an incendiary, fit nu ungez, a mutineer.

azar, disturber, murdoom-azar, a tyrant.

kosha, opener, moshkil kosha, a solver of difficulties.

godaz, melter, dil godaz, heart-melting, affecting, tun godaz, melting the body, enervating.

ruo, walking, tez ruo, swift-footed.
been, seeing, pesh been, foreseeing, provident.
khwah, wisher, khuer khwah, a well-wisher.
undesh, thinktulub, er, &c. rishwut tulub, wanting a bribe, corrupt.

soz, burner, alum soz, burning the world, a great beauty, a tyrant.

mohun, attractor, dil roba. heart-al-luring. heart-al-luring.

zadu, zad, zadu, king's son, a prir khanu zad, domestic.
wilayut za, born abroad.

bhur, full, all, &c. { pet bhur, a belly-full. rat bhur, all night din bhur, the whole day. kumur bhur, up to the waist. jog, able, khane jog, eatable, peene jog, drinkable. wur, mal, dilawur, brave. mund, fayudu mund, profitable, beneficial. bul wunt, powerful, strong. wunt, huol nak, fearful, timid. nak, geen, ghum geen, sorrow/ul. een, chob een, wooden. shurm sar, full of shame, ashamed.

aloodu, gurd aloodu, dusty, khoon aloodu, bloody.

amez, mukur amez, deceitful. neel goon, blue coloured. goon, gool fam, rose-coloured. fam, subzee mail, greenish. mail, sar,

the last ten or twelve adjunctives apply to possession of quality, colour, &c.

nas dan, a snuff-box, numuk dan, a dan, salt-cellar.

khanu, bawurchee khanu, the cook-room, kitchen.

ghura, bhoom ghura, a ground floor or cellar.

nuhul, chor muhul, a seraglio.

sura,e, hurum sura,e, ditto.

sala, sal, tuk sal, the mint, ga o sala, a cowhouse.

gah, aram gah, a sleeping room.

stan, Hindoo-stan, India.

istan, gool-istan, a rose-garden.

usthan, dew usthan, a temple, house of God.

shun, gool shun, a rose bed. zar, lalu zar, a tulip bed.

baree, goolab baree, a rose garden.

waree, phool waree, a flower garden.

gunj, nuwwab gunj, viceroy-market.

gola, lon gola, the salt-market.

tola, tolee, muchhlee tola, fish-street, &c.

abad, ukbur abad, the city of Ukbur, viz.

Agra.

nugur, chundur nugur, moon-town, our Chandernagore!

poor, ghazee poor, hero-town.

shuhr, unoop shuhr, the incomparable city.

alias Anopshire!

gurh, futih gurh, Fort Victoria.

SIMPLE POSTPOSITIONS.

bhoom, beer bhoom, warrior-land.
bazar, qasim bazar, the market of Qa are khund, rohil khund, the Rohila country.
ganw, chut ganw, lamp-town.
mala, rag mala, a song or tune book.
namu, shah namu, the book of kings.
the whole from dan might be termed local adjunctives, as they all seem to imply some place, repository, town, &c.

The intermediate particles have been almost all discussed among the significant letters or syllables, in pages 65, and 77, pur, on, dur, in, and ka, of, excepted; dugha pur dugha, tit for tat, afut pur afut, calamity on calamity, pue dur pue, successively, khet ka khet, the whole field, are examples enow to show the nature of such compounds.

Simple Postpositions.

ka, ke, kee, like—ra, re, ree, na, ne, nee, of, 's, to, &c.

ko, to, for, at, in, &c. pur, on, at, after, by, &c. se, sitee, with, from, by, to, &c. men, in, on, after, at, &c. tuk, tuluk, lug, toree, le, to, up to, &c. hokur, through, by.

have been termed simple, from their governing the mere inflexion of the noun, seldom or never with it requiring ke, kee, &c. though the compounds often drop these, and rest satisfied with the simple inflected word, particularly pas, oopur, and a few others. Pur ko, pur se, men se, ke tu een ko, ke pas se, as a sort of reduplicated postpositions, are used like our own,—from within, from below, &c.

I have inserted ra and na, &c. above, rather to show their great affinity to ka, ke, kee, than to have them also considered, like ka, postpositions, for they are merely pronominal genitive signs, like our own mine, thine, his, her, your, &c. His being just a contraction of he's, i. e. of him, may help to explain the coska, coske, coskee, his, her, in Hindoostanee; if we advert also to the Latin suus, sua; cujus, cuja; kiska, kiskee, whose, viz. who's, of whom, applying as adjectives to his, her, whose, in concord with the noun; sua mater, coskee ma, his or her mother.

Feminine Postpositions.

turuf, janib, near, towards, side.
turuh, manner, like, way, mode.
khatir, for, sake, mind, heart.
muurifut, by, through, means, medium.
nisbut, respecting, compared with, relation.
have been so called because they require kee, ree, and nee, of the words which they govern, (being in fact all feminine nouns, used elliptically as postpositions) while the compounds (as masculines in the same manner) take ke, re, ne.

Compound Postpositions.

tueen, to, for, &c.
kune, to, for, &c.
pas, near, to, with, nigh to, &c.
yuhan, wuhan, chez, at, 's, here, there.
nuzdeek, qureeb, nere, or, near, by, &c. with.
copur, above, upon, besides.
neeche, tule, below, beneath, under.
undur, bheetur, in, within.
bahur, out, without, abroad.

sath, sung, sumet, scodhan, humrah, shamil, with, together, along with, &c.

hath, to, with.

peechhe, buud, buuduz, after, behind.

pure, codhur, costuruf, cospar, on that side, beyond. wure, idhur, isturuf, ispar, on this side.

age, samhne, sunmokh, rooburoo, moqabil, hozoor, hote, ruhte, before, against, opposite, in presence of, &c. &c. during.

aspas, chuogird, gird, gird pesh, around, about.

buruks, bur khilaf, in opposition to, contrasted with, vice versa.

ghueruz, bujoz, wura e, siwa e, bughuer, chhor, bina, bidoon, besides, except, without.

beech, beechmen, durmiyan, mud, mabuen, between, among, amid, in, &c.

waste, subub, bais, liye, karun, mare, laluch, for, on account of, through, from, by, &c.

iwuz, budul, sunte, bumunzili, instead, for.

burabur, mowafiq, qabil, bu moojib, misal, musl, manund, like, according to.

laiq, moonasib, worthy of, proper for.

huqmen, in regard to, respecting.

war par, through and through.

Though the simple postpositions cannot well occur prepositively, the compounds often do, and, in this way, the noun is frequently between them both, siwa khooda ke, or khooda ke siwa, besides God. The Persian prepositions, be, bur, mui, pesh, &c. are sometimes found so in the Hindoostanee, in which a number of other words, meaning reason, place, sake, side, way, &c. may be met with as postpositions, like huqq, right, above, to which men, in, with, &c. is of course either expressed or understood in such sentences as, beemar ke huqq men ubhee shurab uch-chhee nuheen, with regard to the patient, wine is not good at present, meaning, as far as concerns, in respect to, considering, &c.

Local Adverbials.

Yuhan, here, wuhan, there, kuhan, where? juhan, where, tuhan, such or that place, kuheen, somewhere, anywhere, uor kuheen, elsewhere, kuheen nuheen, nowhere, hur kuheen, everywhere, kuheen nu kuheen, somewhere or other, juhan kuheen, wherever, yuhan kuheen, hereabouts, wuheen, that very place.

idhur, hither, odhur, thither, kidhur, whither, tidhur, that place.

Yuhan se, hence, wuhan se, thence, kuhan se, whence? &c.

Temporal Adverbials.

* ub, now, kub, when? jub, when, tub, then.

\aj, to-day, now, kul, yesterday or to-morrow, purson, the day before or after.

ub tuk, aj tuk, hunoz, hitherto, yet, kub tuk, how long? jub tuk, until, jub se, since, kub se, whence? &c.

tub tuk, so long, aj kul, now-a-days, ubhee, just now, immediately, &c.

kubhee, ever, kubhee nuheen, never, kubhee kubhee, some times, seldom, kubhee nu kubhee, sometime or other, roz roz, daily, bar bar, often, kue bar, how many times, jue bar, so often, tue bar, as often, pher or phir, again, baree baree, alternately, ek bar, once, do bar, twice, &c. tis pur, thereafter.

Adverbials of Quality, Quantity, Number, Manner, &c.

uesa, so, wuesa, such, kuesa, how? juesa, as, tuesa, thus.

* It is rather singular, that all the derivatives of this word frequently change b to d or o, whence kud, when? juo lug, until, &c.

ita, this much, cota, that much, kita, how much? jita, so much, tita, thus much.

itna, so many, cotna, witna, that many, kitna, how many? jitna, so many, titna, that many.

yoon, thus, woon, that way, kyoon, how? jyoon, as, so, &c. tyoon, that way, &c. yoon kur, this way, kyoon kur, how? what way? &c.

ku ee, several, kue, how many? jue, as many, tue, so many.

khoob, well, khurab, ill, &c. from the adj. good, bad, &c. puhle, first, rather, doosre, secondly, &c.

han, yes, nu, nuhcen, no, not, nor, neither, kyoon nuheen, why not? ulbuttu, certainly, motluq, not at all, hurgiz, by no means, never, mut, don't.

shayud, perhaps, ho to ho, may be.

yuune, viz. to wit, namely, nuheen to, otherwise, else.

ulug, apart, jooda jooda, separately, ek ek, one by one.

milkur, leke, together, uksur, generally.

buhot, ziyadu, much, too much, very, uor, more, bus, enough, qureeb, almost, thora, little, bura, great, very, goya, as if, sirf, fuqut, only.

Conjunctions.

uor, uo, o, wu, and; bhee, also, even, both, likewise.

ya, khwah, chaho, or, either, to, tuo, pus, well, then.

ugur, gur, jo, if, ugurchi, although, jubki, since.

kyoon kur, because, wherefore, isliye, therefore. ki, jo, ta,that, whether, when, go ki, provided. siwa, except, wurnu, unless, tis purbhee, tuobhee, still, nevertheless, at least, such, truly, such kur, indeed.

pur, lekin, but, umma, mugur, wulekin, bulki, nay, morevover, hurchund, although, tahum, uzbuski, halanki, still, notwithstanding, bu shurt ki, on condition that, provided.

Interjections.

Shabash! afreen! wah wah! kya khoob! dhuni dhun! wah jee! kya bat hue! denote joy praise, like our bravo! well done! hae hae! hue hue! wae wae! wae wuela! imply grief, as alas! lackaday! chhee chhee! chul chukhe! doorho! indicate aversion, disgust, fye fye! begone! choop! choop ruho! hush! silence! bus, stop! plenty! somo! kyoon jee! hear! you sir! bap re bap! father father! ma ree ma! mother mother!

1

After what has been laid down in page 40. no one can find fault with the collection here made of all the most useful words in the language, which, as postpositions, adverbs, conjunctions, &c. often run so much into each other's divisions, that they cannot well be discrimated so exactly as could be wished. Among them all, hee, ever, just, &c.; sa, as; kur, as; liye, wastu, account; turuf, side, ward; turuh, manner; an, dhur, place; ta, quantum; is, this; cos, that; kis, what; se, from, &c. will be very conspicuous; but kisliye, wherefore? &c. are so easily resolvable, like qua propter, and similar words in the Latin and other tongues, by reperusing the significant particles, and the chapter on the composition and derivation of words in this Work, that we need not enlarge farther.

In proportion as the student acquires a knowledge by heart of these vocables, selected in the foregoing pages for that express purpose, before he proceeds to the sentences hereafter given, in support of grammatical rules, the more readily will he comprehend the drift of every example, especially if he will at the same time progressively encrease his mental store of adverbials from my Dictionary or Vocabulary, which can always be consulted for nouns, verbs, &c. as they may be required to explain any portion of Hindoostanee composition, when, from the context, the meaning is not quite obvious. Every real student will reflect on my earnest remarks in the preface, so applicable to the matter in hand; and in every practicable case of this kind should trust almost as much, if not more, to his own genius and resources, as to research and pains with any lexicon whatever.

— has been termed man's surest guide through life, and his great boast over the brute creation; yet animals are less subject to error, though they trust almost entirely to —, in the grand objects of their care and existence. To man — seems artificial, while to brutes — appears intuitive; the former therefore requires something very like —, before he can trust to —, in which the latter are said to have no — whatever, their hopes being limited to this — alone.

The scholar must now learn, from thought alone, to fill up the blanks of the preceding sentence as well as he can, and in future to do the very same thing with every Hindoostanee paragraph, of which he may happen to know, or find in a dictionary, the same proportion of words, as he does in the English above, remaining ignorant, however, of the rest, as they are supposed to be produced by his own manly perseverance and deep reflection.

The fruits of such efforts will be stamped with different degrees of value, as the learner feels impressed with the idea, that he in some measure discovered them himself, or owed them to the labours of another person. As the first, they will be fondly cherished and retained long in his mind, like the darling children of his own fancy and judgment, while, in the latter view, they may be more frequently treated as a mere spurious breed, and committed to a very fallible stepmother's charge, viz. the memory only. The man who cannot think, will not easily be taught, by this or any book, his own language, far less a foreign tongue, so difficult as those of the East in general are: I must therefore beseech my pupils, in this stage of their progress, to commence seriously with the art and practice of thinking, more fully elucidated in the Preface, to which they may hence refer with every advantage.

Hindoostanee Declension of Terminating Letters or Particles.

· Singular.		Plural.
Nominative	a or u.	e, like t	he singular inflexion.
Inflexion	e	on, by	substitution for a or u of the nom.
		singular.
Gen. Uninfl.	e ka.	on ka,	meaning of -'s, and being a sort of possessive or adjective form.
Ditto Infl.		on ke,	and being a sort Ditto Femin.		on kee.	of possessive or
•		•	adjective form.
Accus. and Dat. e ko.		on ko, to or for.
Vocative	e re.	o, substituted for a or u.
Ablative	e se.	on se, with, from, by, &c.
N7 4	. 		Alan Tallan

Nouns terminating with every other Letter.

Nom. b, d, ee, &c. when masc. b, d, &c. and to fem. en is added, or an, if they end in ee.

Infl. none on is added to the nom.

Gen. Uninfl. — ka. on ka. sing. the ee of Singular.		Plural.

Ditto Infl. — ke.	on ke.	which, how-
Ditto Fem. — kee.	on kee.	ever, general-
Accus.&Dat.—ko.	oņ ko.	ly becomes iy
Voc. — re.	0.	before an, on,
Abl. — se.	oņ se.	as golee, a pill, goliyan, goli- yon, pills.

The learner may now form as many cases, with the whole of the postpositions, as he pleases, giving them such names as will most readily convey the idea intended, by the words so used, viz. donative, locative, instrumental, social, &c. but he should ever recollect, that the simple postpositions require the inflexion, if any, of the noun, while the compounds govern the inflected, and the fem. postpositions, the feminine genitive, thus, gole ke pas, near the ball; bundon kee khatir, for (the sake of) slaves; bandee ke sath, with the slave girl; bandiyon kee turuh, like slave girls; though it must be confessed, that ke is frequently omitted, ghur pas, near the house.

When a or u, as exceptions, happen to be indeclinable, they fall under the rule for nouns in b, d, ee, oo, &c. dana, a wise man or wise men; dana ka, ke, kee, &c. dana on ko, &c. bula, evil; bula en, evils; bula on ka, ke, kee, &c.

Adjectives are declined exactly as nouns, only they have not the inflexion on nor an, when their accompanying nouns have them.

gore murd ka, ke, kee, gore murdon ka, ke, of a fair man, &c.

gora murd, a fair man. gore murd, fair men. kee, fair men's, &c.

gora, a European. gore ka, ke, kee.

gore, Europeans. goron ka, ke, kee, kee, &c.

khoob lurka, a good boy. khoob lurke, good boys. khoob lurke ka, ke, khoob lurkon ka, ke, kee.

khoobon ka, ke, kee, of the good, opposed toof the wicked, budon ka, ke, kee.

bhulee lurkee, a good bhulee lurkiyan, good girls. girl. bhulee lurkee ka, ke, bhulee lurkiyon ka, ke, kee. kee.

Comparison in Hindoostanee is very simple, and greatly assisted by se, meaning than, or by the words like our very, more, most, &c.

lurke se lurkee goree hue, the girl is fairer than the boy; lurkee se lurka gora hue, the boy is fairer than the girl;* lurka buhoot gora hue, the boy is very fair; pur lurkee oos se uor goree, but the girl is more fair or fairer; such wooh sub se goree hue, true, she is the fairest of the whole.

Pronouns.

They follow the general rule of declension, with some slight deviations, so:

Nom. muen, I.

hum, we.

Infl. monih, me.

hum or humoņ, us.

Gen. me-ra, -re, -ree, of hum -ara, -are, aree, of me, and my, mine. us, our, ours.

too, tuen, thou; toom, toomh, you, declined exactly as above.

- N. yih, he, this, she, it; wonh, he, that, &c. ye, they, these; we, they, those.
- I. is, him, her, and it, this; cos. him, &c. in or inhon, them, these; con, conhon, them, those.

And in like manner are the interrogative, relative, and correlative, pronouns declined.

* Lit. boy than girl fair is—girl than boy fair is; a transposition which finely elucidates the nature of Hindoostanee construction, thus contrasted with our language.

kuon, kis, who? juon, jo, jis, who; tuon, tis, that, &c.

ko ee, any, has kisee, and kya, what? kahe, in their respective inflexions.

ap, self, is commonly up-na, -ne, -nee, own, in the gen. though it also often admits of ka, ke, kee, instead of na, ne, nee.

In the same member of a sentence the pronoun and its possessive form cannot follow each other, as in our language, but rather take upne, upnee. I will go to my house; muen upne (never mere) ghur ko ja oonga, if you will go to yours; ugur toom upne (never toomhare) ghur ko ja o, and he to his; uor wooh upne (never coske) ghur ko.

They nevertheless say, I and my brother, as we do, muen uor mera bhaee; he and his friend, wooh uor ooska dost; they and their sisters, we uor oonkee buhinen.

The pronouns yih, woh, he, this, that, &c. are of course also adjectives.

N. yih lurka, this boy, ye lurke, these boys.

I. is lurke, in lurkon, never inhon lurkon.

N. woh lurkee, that we lurkiyan, those girls.

I. oos lurkee, oon lurkiyon, never oonthough as mere pronouns, inhon and conhon be in constant use.

We may here recapitulate, that mojh-e, toojh-e, is-e, oos-e, kis-e, tis-e, are equivalent to mojh-ko, &c. as hum en, toom hen, in hen, oon-hen, &c. are to humko, humon ko; and at the same time observe of the other pronouns, that with other nouns in on they do not retain it, hum log, we people; hum teen buhinen, we three sisters; hum teen buhinon ko, to us three sisters; hum teenon se, from us three; humon pur, on us. Mere, tere, humare, toomhare, occasionally supply the place of mojh, &c. or vice versa, but more rarely.

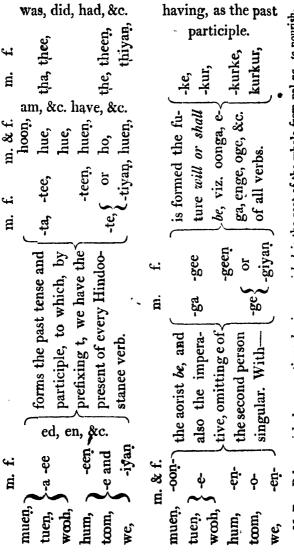

While ra is to the two first personals, what ka is to all nouns, the last may, by the intervention of a noun, be used after moojh, toojh, hum, toom, so—moojh ghureeb ka bap, the father of poor me; toojh bechare kee ma, the mother of helpless thee; hum duolut mundon ke ghore, the horses of us wealthy; toom bhulon kee bat, the speech of worthy you.

As the active preterite expletive ne inflects declinable nominatives, muen and tuen excepted, the learner must not be surprised to meet with inflexions as nominatives, thus; kuon aya, who came? wooh admee jis ne diya, that man who gave; tis ne mara, he beat or killed; muen ne dekha, I saw; oos ne pukra, he seized.

Having thus given an abstract, or bird's eye view of declension in this language, for the benefit of the general grammarian, in his rapid flight through this region of Oriental philology, we shall next proceed to a similar sketch of the only conjugation to be found in the Hindoostanee tongue.

The auxiliary verb has been sufficiently discussed among the significant particles, we may therefore observe once for all, that na, to, being dropt, the root of the verb remains, which is moreover always the imperative second person singular; pal-na, to foster, foster-ing, with ne, nee, but the terminations alone will suffice in this way, as they will all branch off from the root of any verb, in this order; pal-a, -ee, -e, -een, or -iyan; -ke, -kur, -kurke, -kurkur, &c.; of which the subsequent scheme will give the learner an adequate notion, by studying the whole with due attention to the root pal, from pal-a, nourished, to pal-kurke, having nourished. This part of the verb very conveniently expresses many of our adverbs, buoolkur, inadvertently, i. e. having forgotten.

N. B. Pal, nourish thou, sometimes having nourished, is the root of the whole from pal-na, to nourish, to pal kurkur, having nourished, fostered, &c.

Hoo, a expresses our been, is, was, according to circumstances, and often appears to have no meaning at all, it is therefore omitted or expressed on such occasions at the discretion of the speaker; muen hoo, a hoon, &c. I have been, &c.; too hoo, a tha, &c. thou hadst been, &c.; panee gurm hue? is the water hot? han gurm hoo, a, yes it is hot. There may be a very nice distinction in the use of the present and perfect, apparently promiscuously, but it seems not less obscure than, he is arrived, he has arrived, &c. in our own language.

A species of second future of hona is formed from the indicative, instead of the acrist, viz. hoonga, huega, huenge, hoge, expressive perhaps of some doubt. A future, or polite imperative, is commonly formed by affixing iye, or iyo, to the imp. sing. second person, as, jaiye, jaiyo, go, pray go; and, you will be pleased to go, also expressed by jaiyega.

With other verbs, instead of iye, &c. ja iye occurs, or, changed thus; deejiye, pray give; keejiye, please do; khaja iye, pray eat, or kha iye.

There are no irregular verbs in the language, because kiya, done, moo,a, dead, are merely redundants from keena, moona, the old words for kurna, to do; murna, to die.

Hoo, a, liya, diya, guya, are easily accounted for; the last would have been gaya, did not that mean he sung, and sometimes jaya still is used in its regular form.

It may be proper to remark, that hona means to be, exist, remain, &c. besides being like esse, often used inversely with datives for the verb rukhna, habere, to have, with which the learner will be on his guard, when translating the languages of India.

The expletive ne, before preterite active verbs, will be best learned from practice; but the scholar must recollect, that when nominatives are used accusatively, the verb agrees with them rather than with its own proper nominative, and that accusatives, on the other hand, with ne, keep the verb in an indeclinable state entirely so; lurkon ne lurkiyan mareen, boys beat girls; lurkiyon ne lurkon ko mara, girls beat boys; a curious regimen, which will soon become familiar by a little attention, as the rule certainly runs through the whole language, with very few exceptions. The pluperfect is often substituted for the perfect, sipahee kul aya tha, the soldier came (lit. had come) yesterday; and the other tenses, like those in most languages, run much into each other.

Before the tyro can possibly pronounce well, with ease and fluency conjoined, he will find it absolutely necessary to read and ponder over the whole of the preceding sheets, at least ten times, if he at the same time be resolved to comprehend the subject thoroughly, previous to his farther advancement in this language, a measure which I recommend sincerely to him, from a conviction, that he will yet feel grateful for the present importunity on my part, as his progress afterwards will certainly both delight and astonish himself. Not less than twenty readings of the extract from my Ultimatum, in page 50, will suffice to enable any scholar to read it with equal facility as so much Latin or English; but these readings must be performed in a loud audible voice, either for the reader's own ears to admonish and correct him as he proceeds, or for his fellow students, as hearers, to make their own remarks on the performance progressively, with the most beneficial effects to every one concerned in such a pursuit.

A literal version of the first paragraph in the story of Sukcontula, carefully compared with the translation in page 54, may throw such light on the subject as will render the student's future labour light as a feather; I shall consequently indulge him with it in this place.

" Now forewards story of thus relation is, that the wilderness in besides God of, her any care taking person not was, but a bird her over own wings of shade making was, this from, her name is Sukcontula. There fallen is she weeping was, tears of pearls eye-lids on stringing was, milk for taking mouth opening remained had, hands feet own continued striking had. when protector of world-own favour made, that Kunn saint somewhere bathing for gone had, just as that quarter from turned out, saw, that this what power divine is! that new flower of parterre to, flower place from far having seen, bewildered in manner of nightingale picture became, rolling pearl orphan like was, but ground on, rolling it of seeing, he sorrowful became."

However uncouth, redundant, preposterous, or defective, this verbatim et literatim translation may seem, it cannot be much more so than a similar view of other tongues would often exhibit; and as the present mode is, after all, the most rational groundwork for rendering one language into another faithfully, the scholar may now, by way of exercise, turn my bald version here into the best English in his power, and then let him compare it with mine in page 54. Such a habit once acquired, will not only, in the first instance, give the learner a great command of words, with an accurate idea of the grammatical arrangement and idiom of the Hindoostanee, but may hereafter qualify him as a most faithful and expert translator or interpreter of Eastern tongues.

Taking it for granted, that my advice has been studiously followed, and the comparison made accordingly, it will probably appear, that my version cannot stand the test of rigid examination, and, on the whole, in point of elegance, may fall greatly short of my pupils efforts to excel me. To anticipate defence when the objections are unknown, might be premature, and to repine at superior talents would prove me illiberal in the extreme, more especially while stimulating my young friends to enter the lists in a fair trial of skill with their instructor.

I shall next analyse the first paragraph of the story, and as every word of it will be found in the Vocabulary, the student cannot be better employed than in finishing the whole, as I have begun, either at present, or when he has deliberately perused all the grammatical portion of this Work. See page 50, as we proceed.

Ub, now, well, whence ubhee, just now, immediately, already, le ub, well then, ub tub, on the go, just a-going, and many others; age, before, on, forwards, henceforth, &c. inflected from aga. front, forepart, whence several derivatives, distinguishable by the initial ag or ug, all connected with the radical meaning; dastan, story, narrative, novel, romance, &c.; ka, of, 's, agreeing with buyan, detail, relation, the nominative of hue, is, dastan ka buyan hue, story's detail is; yoon, thus, in this way, so, from which yoon hee, just so, for nothing, without labour, &c.; Hindoostanee zooban muen ne yoon hee seekhee, I learned the Hindoostanee tongue, the best way I could, without taking any pains to acquire it, may safely be said by many a Jargonist, who is not aware, that yoon hee expresses so much in this useful language; ki, that, who, which, when, saying, thus, as follows, &c. a handy little word, which practice will elucidate much better than precept; cos, the, that, it, him, her, inflexion of wooh, generally implying remoteness of the object; but when proximity is not essential, wooh is more applicable to our he, she,

it, used indefinitely than yih, this person or thing, nearest or last spoken of; cos is here an adjective in concord with jungul, a desert, wood, wild, waste, wilderness, jungle! &c. but governed by the postposition men, in, &c. Siwa, siwa e, besides, except, save, but, placed prepositively, though one of the compound postpositions; Khooda, God, an exception to the general rule of nouns in a u, being inflected to e; ke, of, 's, to, &c. often apparently redundant, being the inflected genitive sign governed by siwa, a compound postposition, for which in English we cannot always find any meaning; khooda ke siwa, will necessarily be rendered by us, besides God, the Almighty excepted, &c. in which, ke, as a significant word, can have no place, though on other occasions it may become to, as in hookm ke moowafiq, according to orders.

coska, her, his, its, of her, &c. From the nature of the English language, more attention is paid to the gender of the possessive person than the thing possessed of; in Latin and Hindoostanee it is the reverse, whence coska ghur, his or her house; coskee kitab, his or her book; coska bap, suus pater, his or her father; koee, any; khubur, care, heed, intelligence, notice, news, &c. lene, taking, infl. of lena, to take, being governed by wala, man, person, one, &c. in the compound here used; khubur lene wala, a protector, guardian, friend, care-taking-person, in the masc. to agree with Khooda, God.

Nu, not, tha, was. In the Oriental tongues, sound logic and grammar go often hand in hand, where with us they seem to separate, and in no instance more than in negative sentences like—I saw no body; I will give him nothing; he is nowhere to be found; no soldier will be permitted, &c. which can be rendered in Hindoostanee by no other mode than-I saw not any body; he is not anywhere; any soldier will not be permitted; and, I will not give him any thing, muen cosko koochh nuheen doonga .--Were we asked how it was possible to see nobody, nothing, &c. the question might puzzle us, and our answer could not be very satisfactory to people who make speech and common sense more subservient to each other than we do, at least in such examples as the present, not less perplexing than the ungrammatical phrase, my lord, used by one man individually, or a thousand together, when addressing a peer of the realm. Her of any protector was not—we would change to-she had no protector-or, she had not a protector—a case in point which will illustrate the subject, as well as a hundred more could do.

Pur, but, yet, &c. which may always be discriminated by position from pur, on, above, as this last never can be initial, though pur, a feather, may; ek, a, an, one; pukh-eroo, a bird, fowl, &c. from punkh, punchh, a wing, &c.; eroo, a modification of ar, er, hara, noted in pages 83 and 96; cos, her, him, it; pur, over; upne, own, inflected to agree with puron, wings, governed by ka, of, in concord with sayu, shade, shadow, shelter, protection, &c.; kiye, inflected from kiya, the redundant past participle of kurna, anciently keena, to do, make, act, &c. This form, and the inflected present participle kurte, doing, bear some analogy to the Latin ablative absolute, explicable in the Hindoostanee sosayu kiye hoo e kee halut men, in the state of sheltering. You will see him coming, osko ate (hooe kee halut men) dekhoge; I hear them speaking, con ko bolte sconta hoon, that is, bolte hooe kee halut men, in the act of speaking; tha, was, stood, remained, &c. probably the perfect tense of the verb thana, to stay, remain, now obsolete, which would regularly be thata, subject, like keeee, to the elision of the final homogeneous vowel, as stated in page 73.

Is, this, to which bat, a word, circumstance. affair, matter, particular, &c. is understood, being like res and negotium in Latin, of great use in the Hindoostance; se, from, to be carefully discriminated from se, inflected from sa, like, as, ish, of page 87; coska, her, agreeing with the masc. noun nam, name; Sukcontula, the Sacontala of Sir William Jones; hoo,a, is, was, &c. In the use of such verbs, we and the Hindoostanees differ greatly. If told by any of us, which we would be very apt to do, "the man you saw yesterday in my house was my uncle," they would probably, with a smile, observe, "and is he not your uncle to-day," or with a look of condolence, might enquire how, when, and where he died, because their own idiom teaches them in all such sentences to use is for was, unless the person spoken of be since dead, and no longer the relative in question. On similar grounds, where we mention our having been at a particular time in a given place, thus, recollect we also were that year at Dihlee,—they would often use are, so—yad rukho hum bhee cos sal Dihlee men huen.

Wuhan, there, that place; puree, fallen, fem. past part. of purna, to fall, with its auxiliary sign hooee, is, frequently redundant, and of course omitted; woth, she, he, it; rotee thee, crying was, imperf. indicative fem. third person singular, in unison with woth, she; ansowon, infl. plural of ansoo, a tear, properly ansoo, on, for which consult pages 33, 35, &c.; ke, of, plural, to agree with motee, pearls, this being one of the very few nouns in ee, which are not feminine by this termination, enumerated in page 71.

Pulkon, eye-lids, pl. infl. of puluk, whence the u is dropt, as explained in pages 65, 66, governed by men, on, in, &c.; pirotee thee, threading was. It would require the hairsplitting genius of Eastern poets to divine the climax of beauties in the sentence before us, which they would term a sweet string of the most lovely pearls, formed by the eye-lashes of the child, piercing the lucid globules as they are shed by the eyes, rendered still more brilliant by minute pearly drops strung around them. This may be to Oriental fancy very fine, though it rather militates' against our sounder judgment on all such similies, and the childish jingle of rotee and pirotee, with which, I recollect, the Hindoostanee bard was so delighted himself, that his eyes literally sparkled with joy, as he exclaimed, after a most significant but ineffable clink of the tongue, kya khoob! how charming!

Doodh, milk, ke, of, for, governed by live, ta-king, account, resolvable like kive, already elucidated, into live hooe kee halut men, in the state of taking; moonh, mouth, face, &c.; pusar ruhee thee, stretching, remained, had, the pluperfect of the continuative verb pusar ruhna, to remain stretching, from pusarna, to stretch; hath panw, hands, feet; upne, own, plural in concord with hath panw, in the nom. pl. used for the accusative. Mar ruhee thee, striking, remained, had, just such another verb as the last, from marna, to beat, strike, kick, drive, and kill, &c.

ki, when, then, that, &c.; purwurdu-gar, the protector; i, of; alum, the world; ne — has no meaning though an active perfect expletive of constant occurrence in this language, before every perfect tense of transitive verbs, which has no present form; muen ne mara, I killed; toom ne nuheen mara, you killed not; wooh marega, he will kill; hum marte the, we were killing; too ne mara tha, thou hadst killed; upna, own; fuzl, grace, favour, &c.; kiya, made, did, acted, &c. whence the use of ne; jo, when, as, that, if, who, &c.; Kunn, monee, a saint, the holy man; kuheen, somewhere; nuhane, to bathe.

inflected by ko, for, similar to our old infinitives, for to drink, for to speak, still common in the East; chule the, gone, had, in the plural, out of respect to the saint, though an individual, which is the common practice, and like our own address to one person, you were angry, you are pleased, instead of thou wast; thou art, retained by the Quakers very grammatically, though now-a-days rather a quaint mode of speaking to any one; jon, appears contracted from joheen, just as, the moment, instantly as; cos, that; turuf, or turf, side, quarter, &c.; se, from, on, at, &c.; ho nikle, came out; perfect tense, third person, plural for singular of the verb ho nikulna, to turn out, come out, issue forth, &c. a compound of hona, to be, and nikulna, to issue, &c.

The perfect should be nikula, but is generally contracted in such verbs, as by page 66.

We form similar verbs with the help of adverbs, which often materially alter the nature of the original; and the same effect follows in Hindoostanee, by the coalition of two verbs, thus; katna, means simply, to cut; kat-dalna, to cut off, from dalna, to throw, equivalent in composition to off, away, as dena, to give, dedalna, to give away.

The reader may, by consulting the Section on the Verbs, acquire the most ample information on a subject, which he will soon find of the utmost importance in this language; dekha, beheld, saw, perceived, observed, &c.; ki, that, yih, this, kya, what? qoodrut, power; i, explained in page 68, under murdi nek, a man virtuous, for nek murd, a virtuous man; ilahee, divine, hue, is; yih kya qoodruti ilahee hue! implies wonder, admiration, &c. of the divine power, as we say,-alas! what a man he was!-when shall we see his like again? so do the natives of India, with congenial feelings, exclaim,hae kya admee tha! oska burabur phir kub dekhenge? in other words,—he was an honest fellow, and we ne'er shall see his like again; jo, which, that, &c.; is, this; soorut, manner, way, appearance, countenance, &c.; se, in, from, with, by, on, &c.; nuzur, sight, atee, coming, feminine, to agree with soorut, of that gender from its termination t; hue, is, cos, that, nuo, new, fresh, &c.; gool, flower, rose; e, for i, of; chumun, a bed, parterre, walk, garden, &c.; ko, the accusative sign, governing retrospectively the only inflectible word, cos, that, near it; gol-istan, flower-place, rose-bed, garden, a famous book of Suudee's, which, like other roses, has its literary and moral thorns; se, from, door, far, away, remote, &c.; dekh, having seen, the root or imperative of dekhna, to see, behold, &c. used for the preterperfect participle, dekhke, dekh-kur, &c. as in pages 120, 121; hueran, bewildered, distracted, perplexed, fascinated, In this and goolistan, the n is made nasal, merely for the sake of the verse, which is frequently the case in all such words, bu, in, one of the prepositions noticed in pages 107, and 77; rung, manner, style, colour, way, i, of, boolbool, the nightingale, supposed by the Eastern poets to be captivated with the rose's blushing charms; i, of; tusweer, picture, painting, image, &c. used here, either from the nightingale's partiality to the rose as the picture of beauty, or from some story of a painted rose, with which the bird may have been fascinated; ho gue, became, the perfect tense in the third person plural of ho-ja na, to become, which is rather expressed here, as to be go, though ho-ana, to become, be occasionally used; ghultan, rolling, tossing, tumbling, agitated, &c.; door, a pearl; e for i; yuteem, orphan; doori yutem, is a common term for what we call the union pearl, as a non-pareil; see, like, as, in the fem. to agree with Sukcontula, vide page 87, which this example will farther elucidate, con ko khooda ne hum son bunaya hue, God made them like us; thee, was, lek, for lekin, but, khak, ground, earth, dúst, &c. pur, on; ghultani, for ghultanee, agitation, from ghultan, agitated; coskee, her, in concord with the fem. noun ghultanee, dekh, as before; we, lit. they, but from veneration for Saint Kunn, used for wooh, he; dilgeer, heart-seized, sorrowful, &c. see page 97; hogue has been just mentioned.

A sedulous examination of this analysis will do more to pave the way for analysing the remainder of the quotation, or any other piece of Hindoostanee, than a thousand mere rules acquired by rote, with which a poor school-boy's memory is generally overloaded, like an ass's back, while his mind is allowed to remain as empty of thought, its proper food, as a heron's belly is of meat; whence from our public seminaries we have spouting automatons in abundance, who seldom evince great mental energy or conception, till they learn the positive necessity through life of thinking and acting for themselves, rather as intelligent, efficient beings, than sheer, passive machines or vehicles of useful knowledge.

In the whole of the preceding process, I have purposely omitted the technical terms, verb, noun, adjective, &c. as self-evident in English to every man, who can expect any real information from this performance, on which he ought not to enter, if still ignorant of the first grammatical principles in his own mother tongue, or if yet unable to generalise the grammar of any language, he may have preposterously learned before his own, so as to be applicable, with a few trifling exceptions, to every other in the world, which we could very readily accomplish, were we invariably to begin at the right end, with vernacular speech, on sound principles first.

For persons whose education has been conducted on a rational, thinking system or plan, the preceding sheets of this publication, retrospectively studied as recommended, will suffice to make them already very promising Hindoostanee scholars; but for those who, from youth, inexperience, and want of thought, must follow the humdrum track of grammarians, the subsequent pages may contain superior advantages, being more in detail, and rendered easier, from repeated rules or observations, better calculated by dint of hammering, to drive something into every body, whose soul is sluggish enough to require hard knocking, before one can rouse it to persevering exertion, even during this very essential pursuit of future ease, honours, and fortune, in the distant regions of the East, through the medium of the grand colloquial speech of all India.

The Noun,—and first of the Article.

- 1. The articles a, the, as in Latin, are commonly inherent in the simple noun, kitab.la,o, may signify, according to circumstances, either bring a or the book, consequently every noun almost may assume a or the in declension, and elsewhere, thus; beta, a son, or the son; bete ka, of a son, or the son; murd, a or the man; murd ka ke kee, of a or the man; murdon ka ke kee, of men, or the men.
- 2. Ek, one, sometimes ko ee, any, express the indefinite of an; and wooh, he, she, it, that; yih, he, &c. this; hee, or ee, very, the definite article the. In Arabic words, ul is used, as ul-qoyan, the koran.

Declension.

- 3. Nouns are declined, like those of both ancient and modern languages, on the twofold principle of inflections and postpositions combined in one, which still exists among our pronouns, I, me; thou, thee; he, him. The necessity of the inflexion or oblique in all the real cases here, cannot escape the most superficial English scholar, although the mere nouns like—of a man, to a man, from a man, can give no adequate idea of pronominal inflexion in that tongue.
- 4. Particles termed, from their apparent preposterous situation, postpositions, perform the office of our prepositions, in the formation of the various cases of every noun, which must then appear, if declinable, in the inflexion, as our—of him, to him, from thee; never—of he, from thou.
- 5. Except the nom. gen. and voy, the number and names of the various cases depend entirely on the nature of the postpositions which the learner may subdivide into objective, dative, locative, social, instrumental, ablative, carsal, communicative, &c. thereby forming as many cases as he pleases, in the true spirit of logical subdivision.

- 6. The postpositions so nearly resemble the prepositions of other languages, that none of them require any particular notice here, but ka, of, 's, which last is by far the most convenient, as the possessive or adjective form, in almost all translations from the Hindoostanee.
- 7. Ka, of, 's, has not only all the governing qualities of a postposition in the Hindoostanee, but is itself a declinable adjunct, that admirably proves the intimate connexion between genitive and adjective forms in most languages. As an adjective affix, which every scholar should consider it, ka, ke, of the masculine, inflexion, and plural, becomes in the feminine kee for both numbers, without any further inflexion; in government it is retrospective, but in concord prospective.
- 8. Ka, followed by a masc. sing. noun, which is not affected by any subsequent postposition, may be termed the nominative or simple possessive case, uprut ka beta, a woman's son; ke is the same in its inflected or plural state, uprut ke here ka, a woman's son's, or of a woman's son, uprut ke dus bete, a woman's ten sons.

- 9. Kee is the foregoing genitive sign preceding a sing. or plural feminine noun in every case: murd kee betee, a man's daughter; murd kee betee ka beta, a man's daughter's son; murd kee betiyan, a man's daughters; yih kam kee kitab hue, this is a book of use, or a use-ful book; wooh koochh kam kee nuheen, that is not of any use, or is a useless book.
- 10. The postpositions are simple and compound; the first require the mere inflexion of a noun, while the second govern its inflected or feminine genitive. The simple hardly exceed twelve in number, but the compounds are many, as may be seen in pages 103, 105, &c.
- 11. Ka, of, -'s; ko, kune, to, for; se, sitee, from, by, to, with, on; pur, on, at, by; men, in, at; and the rest are a species of primitive particles, whose satisfactory deduction is now very difficult; on the contrary, sath, with; pas, near; tueen, to, for; waste, for; age, before; hath, hand; mare, through, from; live, khatir, for, are generally nouns, adjectives or verbs, which require ke or kee between them and the noun.
- 12. Beie ka, of a son, or a son's; beingt-se, from sons; beion ke hath, (with verbs of selling) to sons, and beie ke sath, with a son, ought now to demonstrate the difference of simple and compound postpositions, because the last example, including all such, is merely elliptical of bete ke sath men, in a son's company, or in the company of a son, sath in reality meaning company, as sathee does a companion.

- 13. Almost every word which terminates in e may be considered as inflected from a; the postpositions therefore that end in e are generally mere inflexions; bete ke age, before the son, when analysed, is bete ke age men, in front of the son, aga being a noun which signifies front, van, forepart, &c. ghur ke peechhe, behind the house, or in the house's rear, ghur ke peechhe men.
- 14. Simple postpositions seldom govern the inflected genitive, but compounds frequently require the mere noun or inflexion only, the intermediate ke being dropt, bete pas, near a son; beton age, before sons.
- 15. When the compound postposition is otherwise a feminine noun, like turth, manner, way; khatir, sake, for; turth, side; nisbut, relation; the intermediate ke becomes kee, bete kee khatir (leo), for (the sake of) a son; lurkee kee turth (men or so), like a girl; on the very same elliptical principles as the rest; because were men or se added to the last example here, it would be just—in a girlish way, or, in the manner of a girl.

16. Although, strictly speaking, three or four declensions may be found in the Hindoostanee, it will be convenient here to reduce the whole to two, because every noun which ends in a u, or an, is declined like beta, a son, thus:

First Declension.

Singular.

N. beta, a son.

G. bete, ka, ke, or kee, of a son, or a son's. of sons, or sons'.

D. bete ko, to a son.

A. beje ko, a son.

V. bete re, O son.

A. bete se, with, from, &c. a son.

N. purdu, a curtain.

G. purde ka, ke, or kee, of a curtain, or a curtain's.

tain.

Plural.

bete, sons.

beton ka, ke, or kee,

beton ko, to sons.

beion ko, sons.

beto, O sons.

beton se, by, with, &c. sons.

purde, curtains. purdon ka, ke, kee, of curtains.

D. purde ko, to a cur- purdon ko, to curtains.

DEGLEMSION.

Singulat. Plural.

A purde ko, a curtain. purdon ko, curtains.

V. purde re, O curtain. purdo, O curtains.

A. purde se, from, &c. purdon se, with, &c. curtains.

curtains.

Second Declension.

Singular.

Phyral

N. murd, a man.

G. murd ka, ke, or kee, of a man, a man's.

D. murd ko, to a man.

A. murd ko, a man.

V. murd re, O man.

A. murd se, with. &c. a man.

murd, men.

murdon ka, ke, or kee, of men, men's.

murdon ko, to men. murdon ko, men.

murdo, O men.

murdon se, from, &c. men.

17. Nouns in a, an, and u, instead of being indeclinable, like the second declension, in the singular, substitute e for a or u in the first number, and nominative plural, but drop them entirely in avery other case of the last number; whence gole ka, of u ball, or a ball's; gole se, withfu ball; gole, balls; golon ko, to balls, &c.

18. When words are feminine and terminate converting ee to iy through all the plural cases; all other feminines take en—beijyan, daughters; kitab-en, books; but these affixes, an, en, are often dropt, especially when numerals denote the plural; in other respects, every noun not ending in a, an, or u, is declined like murd, as these also are when exceptions.

- 19. All the postpositions have a variety of meanings, which the learner ought carefully to recollect, as he may often meet with se and others signifying from, with, to, by, at, on, &c. according to various circumstances, which cannot be adverted to in a work of this kind,—yuhan, yihan, eehan, ihan, here, and wuhan, there, as adverbs or nouns of place, also require, ke, they commonly denote our 's and the French chez, discriminating this and that abode, when a person has two: sahib ke yuhan ja,o, sahib ke wuhan nuheen, go to the gentleman's house here, not there, viz. in the country, or elsewhere.
- 20. The voc. sing. in the second declension, being like the nom. often requires the signs ue, e, he, ure, uree, o, prefixed; but in the plural the o is generally affixed, while re, ree, sometimes also occur so in the singular even, as ue ban! or bap re! O father! bap re bap! O father, father! ma ree ma! O mother, mother! yar-o! O friends!

raja-o! or rajo! O princes! The accus. post, is often omitted, and has with us no meaning,—lurkee (kv) mut maro, do not beat (to) the girl; or, in other words, the nom. is very often used for the accusative.

Gender.

- 21. Males and females are naturally masculine and feminine, whatever their terminations may be; ee, t, sh, are in general feminine, while a, u, and all the rest, there being no neuter in Hindoostanee, may be treated as masculine finals, till the scholar learns the reverse from practice, the Grammar and Dictionary.
- 22. Feminines are formed from masculines by substituting for, or adding ee, in, un, nee, anee, a in, a, &c. to their finals; lurka, a boy, lurkee; a girl; dhobee, a washer-man, dhobin, a washer-woman; sher, a tiger, shernee, a tigress; naik, a lad, naika, a lass.
- 23. Nur occasionally denotes the he, and madu the she, as in Persian. There are some nouns like advice, homo; usamee, a client; which have the common gender as applicable to either sex, and many others are doubtful, fikr, care; jan, life; tukrar, repetition; lufz, a word, &c. appearing sometimes in one gender, and at other times in another, among the best speakers and writers of Hindoostanee. A few words, viz. ma, a mother, bap, a father, murd, a man, uorut, a woman, as in other tongues, have no literal affinity in their genders.

- 24. All feminines, even those in a and u, belong to the second declension, with a considerable number of masculines also, as exceptions from the first, and a few are common to both declensions.
- 25. The plural inflexion in the second declension is a syllable longer than the singular, except in certain words, where the penult is a short vowel, which is then dropt,—Puthur, a stone, burus, a year, girih, a knot, have puthron, burson, girhon, not puthur-on, v. pages 65, 66.
- 26. Some nouns of the first and second declension may be confounded in the inflexion plural by on being a substitution for the final letter of the former, but an addition to it in the latter or second declension; bundu, a slave bundon ka, ke, or kee, of slaves; bund, a button, bund-on ka, ke, or kee, of buttons.
- 27. Sometimes a masculine noun, like saqee, a eup-bearer, admits of an in the nom. pl. as an adopted Persian nominative, (resembling radii, data, phenomena, in English) which occasionally holds good for the inflexion also, especially in the dukhunee Hindoostanee, as this often prefers ruqeeb-an, yar-an, to ruqeeb-on, rivals, yar-on, friends.

- 28. A great variety of plurals is adopted from the Arabic and Persian, viz. at, uen, ha, jat, &c. as will be exhibited hereafter, and the termination at is occasionally affixed to Hindoostance nouns, as chuokee, a post, chair, stool, watch, chuokiyat, stations, guards, &c.
- 29. The first and second declensions differ in the possession and want of a singular inflection, in the substitution and addition of inflective, vocative, and nominative particles, and in the second admitting of both masculines and feminines, while the first is in a great measure restricted to the former only, though they agree in having the very same plural inflexions and vocative particles, in their masculine, nominative plurals, being almost entirely like the singular numbers, and in assuming the very same postpositions for all the cases.

30. The result of the foregoing premises is, that there are seven adventitious particles, divisible among the declensions as follows:

T.	ر	ಡ	a > nom.	•ક્રા	.3sc	lurk-a,	ly bog
Filst	ي	ຍ	sinflec.	S and nom. plur.	lue	lurk-e,	on boy, -s.
	•	, e	singula	singular as a substitute.	cles.	luŗk-ee,	n a girl.
Second		an	nom. fem.	a € ee	parti	luṛkiy-a ņ ,	m girls.
	Ĵ	유	 	नं में रे any other let.	.ppr	kitab-eņ,	neti books.
Common	L	, uo	Common ( on ) inflective	murd-on, men.	st. 85	lurkiy-on,	son sirk.
to both	ڼې	0	to both & o & vocative	murd-o, O men.	qns	lurk-o,	∴ O boys.

31. In words like ga,e, ga,o, a cow; ga,en, ga,on, cows; gha,o, a wound; un-Dhoo,an, smoke, ro,an, a hair, and words of this sort, have dhoo,en, ro,en, unkhikhiya, an eye; the nasal n alone is, for obvious reasons, added in the plural. yan, dhoo-on, unkhiyon, in the nom. pl. and inflexions.

Illustration of the preceding Principles.

1. and 2. page 139.

What is on the table? Mez pur kya hue?

A book and a pen. Kitab uor ek qulum.

Give me the book. Kitab moojhe do.

Take the pen to my Qulum mere bha ee ke pas le chulo.

But return in a moment. Pur ko ee dum men phi ra o.

When yih and wooh occur as the, it will be equally convenient to resolve them into this and that, as proximate and remote pronouns for he, she, or it, to be illustrated as such hereafter.

hee and ee, as definite affixes, never can be very troublesome, since they merely give an emphasis or force to the word, similar to our very, self, indeed, self-same, even, just as, &c. in expressions like,—this is the very soldier who fled,—yih woohee sipahee hue jo bhaga tha;—go thyself sirrah,—ube too hee ja; on which it would be premature to enlarge farther in this place.

3 and 4.

Get some grass from the groom and give it to the horse.

To which shall I give I the grain, to this or that?

Where are all the grooms?

Collect all our grooms here, don't omit even one, for the whole are required to be present just now.

Su ees se koochh ghas mangla o uor ghore ko do.

Kis ko danu doon is ko ya cos ko?

Sub su ees kuhan huen?

Sub humare su eeson ko yuhan hazir kuro ek hee ko mut chhoro, kyoon kur chahiye ki subhee ubhee muojood hon.

5.

Go to the dog and give him water to drink.

Come with the dog here and tie him with these ropes.

Kootte ke pas jakur uor oosko panee do peene ko.

Kœtte ke sath a o yuhan uor cose russiyon se bandho.

The donative and objective case above is distinguished by ko, the itinerant by ke pas, the social by ke sath, and the instrumental by se, but they only prove, that simple postpositions require the inflexion, while compounds govern the inflected genitive.

6, 7, 8, &c.

The boy's sister's friend's father's mother's brother's wife's three sons are now coming here.

The girl's brother's friend's mother's father's sister's husband's three daughters are now coming here.

Cows' milk is very useful, and better than buffaloes' milk, do not therefore pour the one's milk into the other's.

Chhokre kee buhin ke dost ke bap kee madur ke bha ee kee joroo ke teen bete ubhee yuhan ate huen.

Chhokree ke bhaee ke dost kee madur ke bap kee buhin ke khusum kee teen betiyan ubhee yuhan atiyan huen.

Ga,o ka doodh buhoot kam ka hue, uor bhuens ke doodh se bihtur, is liye ek ke doodh ko doosre ke doodh men mut dalo.

With the assistance of a vocabulary, if the learner will form a few such sentences, without minding either their inelegance or even absurdity in English, he will soon overcome this bugbear, ka, ke, kee, to most beginners, and wonder, after analysing the above examples, and those of his own making, why it should hitherto have puzzled himself or any other body.

I shall repeat here, that its government is retrospective, and its concord prospective; whence chhokre kee buhin, &c. in the first instance, and chhokree ke bhaee, &c. in the second; chhokra, a boy; chhokre, the infl. governed by kee, feminine, because in concord with buhin, sister, and so forth.

Let ka be supposed a final declinable adjunct, that makes every genitive a sort of adjective; thus, kam means use, kam ka, of use, that is, useful.

Singular.

Plural.

- N. kam ka kootta, a kam ke kootte, useful useful dogs.
- G. kam ke kotte ka, kam ke kotton ka, of a useful dog's. useful dog's.
- D. kam ke kotte ko, kam ke kotton ko, to to a useful dog. useful dogs,

• Singular.

Plural.

- A. kam ke kotte ko, kam ke kotton ko, usea useful dog. ful dogs.
- V. kam ke kotte re, kam ke kotto, O use-O useful dog. ful dogs.
- A. kam ke kotte se, kam ke kotton se, with from a useful dog. useful dogs.

In the genitive singular, ka, ke, kec, are not fully inserted above, rather from want of room than any thing else:

A useful bitch's two kam kee koottee ke do pups, pille, proves, however, that every genitive must be, as already inculcated, declined ka, ke, kee, to prepare the scholar for meeting one or all of them, according to circumstances in this very case, which should at first be invariably translated by 's, in preference to of.

Our own language has many such genitive adjectives, in lieu of others, more learned at least, if not so elegant; gao ka doodh, cow's milk; gudhee ka doodh, asses milk, to which we do not yet prefer vaccine, or asine, whatever may be done in half a century hence in matters of this sort; gao ke doodh ka, ke, kee, of coas milk, or cows milk's; gao ke doodh men, in cow's milk; gao ke doodh ka rung soofued hue, cows milks colour is white; gao ke doodh kee qeemut ka thikana aj kul koochh nuheen, there is no medium now-a-days in the price of cows milk; literatim, cow's milk's price's medium to day to morrow any not is.

It is now to be hoped, that we have got fairly over this stumbling block, ka, ke, kee, which has long proved a formidable obstacle in every lazy fellow's way, who merely sat down to smoke his pipe, or dose over the Hindoostanee in India, instead of studying the subject with the avidity and resolution which its importance demands; as if a few whiffs of a chilum would inspire the student with grammatical knowledge, or that a sound nap over his book might enable him to find out this useful key to the language, by simply dreaming about it and the innumerable difficulties in the way of pronunciation alone, which must stare even a learned Persian in the face, the moment he turns it towards the popular speech of India.

10, 11, 12, 13, &c.

Mut ja o is pille kee ma Do not go near the moke pas deewane kee ther of this whelp, turuḥ (meṇ subauditur). like a madman, i. e. in the manner of a madman, in a madman's way.

Here kee governs pilla, a whelp, in the infl.; and is, this, is the pronominal adjective, also inflected by kee to agree with pille; pas, as a compound postposition, requires the inflected genitive make; and turnh, being a feminine noun, elliptically used as a postposition in this sentence, very naturally governs the feminine genitive deewane kee.

The principles in pages 140, 144, with the ample list of postpositions in page 103, cannot fail to make the learner master of this department, provided he will revise the whole, and recollect, that those words which end in e come from nominatives in a, inflected to e, by some other invisible postposition that may easily be understood from the examples already produced.

19.

The context alone of any sentence can demonstrate the particular meaning of the post-positions in question.

He hit with a ball. gole se mara. He brought from withbahur se laya.

out.

He said to the boy. lurke se kuha. Seize him by the hand. oosko hath se pukuro.

Under principle 14th, ke, with compound postpositions, is often dropt, and even they at times are omitted, leaving the ke in apparent discord with the noun following.

A king who had (no Ek padshah jiske (yuson) not a son. vide han) beta nu tha. page 129.

A king whose son was Ek padshah jiska beta not a poet. shair nu tha.

Yuhan above, is more frequently understood than expressed; the student should, therefore, on seeing a final e, ke, or kee, for which he cannot otherwise account, presume some ellipsis or other, as in jiske beta nu tha, meaning—in whose house, family, &c. there was no heir.

Adverbials assume ka, ke, kee, on all occasions, whence, Kúheen ka hakim yu- The governor of some han ke hakim ke place will go with the sath jaega, wuhan commander of this ke hakim kee khatir kuhan ke hakim ke yuhan, ub ke sal. i. e. now's year, now of year in.

Bahur ka sahib aya hue A strange gentleman khubur deejiyo! i. e. without's gentleman.

place, for the chief of that place's sake, to the house of the magistrate of (what do you call) yon place, this year.

(or one from without) has arrived, pass the word.

This used formerly to be the exclamation of the durwan, or porter, in India, to apprize the master or mistress of the house, that some visitor or other had arrived; but when I left that country, it was becoming less common.

21, &c.

Gender, as in the French and other tongues, is a subject of considerable difficulty, which can be overcome by constant practice and attention' Most words having an initial t, with a penult ee, like tusweer, a picture, tujweez, determination, are feminine. The examples, as they occur under other heads, will sufficiently illustrate that of gender, both in its formation and concord, provided the learner will only recollect that ee merely denotes the feminine of adjectives ending in u or a: uch-chha ghora, a good horse; uchchhee ghoree, a good mare; nek murd, a good man; nek uorut, a good woman; murd uor uorut kee nekee, the man's and woman's goodness; puhar-ee kootta, or koottee, a highland dog, or bitch; jungulee bukra, or bukree, a wild goat, he or she. A retrospect to ee, as a significant particle, in pages 70, 71, &c. will obviate all future ambiguity respecting this termination, which is so common in the Hindoostanee.

24.

N. bula, evil. bula en, evils.

G. bula ka, ke, kee, of bula on ka, ke, kee, of evil. evils, &c.

D. &c. bula ko, to evil. bula on ko, evils.

V. bula re, O evil. bula, o, O evils.

being feminine, is declined like kitab, a book.

dana, a wise man.

dana ka, ke, kee, a wise man's, of a wise man.

dana ko, &c.

dana, wise men.

dana, on ka, ke, kee,

&c.

dana, o, &c.

- The student must be prepared to encounter a good many nouns similar to bula and dana in the course of his reading, and the way to discriminate them as such is to note every word terminating with a-en as a nom. pl. of some feminine in a, consequently of the second declension, and indeclinable in the singular. When the postpositions do not inflect final a or u to e, or when a-on terminates any word, it also must either prove a masc. or fem. of the second declension, as an exception from the first, and should ever after be treated accordingly; dana on ke nuzdeek is zindugee kee bula en khoda kee turuf barha awen ki hum sub bur wuqt bihisht ke waste kumur band hen, In the opinion of the wise, the miseries of this life often proceed from God, that we may all in time prepare for heaven.

raja, a prince.

raja, or raja, or raje, princes.

raja, or raja, on, or prince's, &c.
raje, prince's, &c.
rajon, princes, &c.

25 and 26.

Singular.

Plural.

raj, a kingdom.

raj, kingdoms.

raj ka, ke, kee, a king-rajon ka, ke, kee, of dom's.

kingdoms.

gor, a grave.

goron ka, of graves, gor ka, ke, kee, of a also of Europeans, page 116.

grave, a grave's.

N. tegh or teghu, a sword.

G. &c. tegh or teghe ka, ke, kee, of a sword, &c.

N. chushm, the eye, chushmu, a fountain.

G. chushm ka, of the eye, chushme ka, of a fountain, chushmon ka, of eyes, or fountains.

N. shoohrut or shoohru, a report.

G. shoohrut, or shoohre ka, ke, kee, of a report, &c.

N. juguh, a place.

jughen, places.

G. jugih ka, ke, kee, of a place.

jughon ka, ke, kee, of places, &c.

Like the last may be declined turuh, manner, shoobuh, doubt, with a very few more, in all of which the singular inflexion of u to i or e is more or less perceptible. The plural cases drop while u entirely, as jugulien juguhon would be much more troublesome than jughen, &c. above.

Juguh, being feminine, is in the plural like bula in page 160, though in the singular it seems rather to be of the first declension, as jugih, jugeh, something resembles the purdu, purde, of page 144; but there are too few words in uh, to assign a third declension for them only.

When shoohrut assumes t, it is feminine, but masculine as shoohru. Qubeelu, family, wife, is a regular masculine of the first declension, and ruueyut, a subject, even with masculines is constantly feminine. Wooh murd meree ruueyut hue, that man is my tenant, vassal, subject, &c.

Adjectives.

32. Adjectives are of the first and second declension, declined exactly as substantives having the same terminations; they are consequently subject to inflexion, like ka, ke, kee, and when used as nouns they can assume the plural an and inflexion on, but not otherwise, as already explained in page 116, q. v.

a a, boy; e, e, boys.

gor- lurk- a fair gor- lurk- fair ee ee, girl; ee, iy-an, girls.

e man's; on men.

gor- ka, a fair gor- se, from fair
ee woman's; iy-on women.

In poetry, lurkiyan goriyan is admissible, but not goriyan lurkiyan, fair girls,

33. Ordinals require the addition of wan to the cardinals, whence, wan- a, boy; wen- e- boy. dus- lurk- the 10th dus- lurk- se, from the 10th. ween- ee, girl; ween- ee- girl.

34. The adjunct of similitude sa, se, see, son, denoting like, ly, ish, resembles ka, as an adjective particle of infinite use in the Hindoostanee, being commonly affixed to one or other of the pronominals in their correlative series; thus, uesa, wuesa, kuesa, juesa, tuesa, all of which, as well as others, for which we have no room here, may be resolvable into is-sa, like this, cossa, like that, kis-sa, like what, &c.

• 35. When compounded with adjectives, sa alone does not require in them the inflexion, kala-sa, blackish, with nouns, or when changed to se, see, it commonly does.

sa lurka, boy; see lurkee, girl. lurke- a childish lurkee a girlish see lurkee, girl; sa lurka, boy.

kala sa ghora, a blackish horse.
kale se ghore ka, ke, kee, a blackish horse's.
kale se ghore, blackish horses.
kaleesee ghoree, a blackish mare.
kaleesee ghoree ka, ke, kee, a blackish mare's.
kalee see ghoriyan, blackish mares.
in which the declension seems double, as in jistis, whosoever, and some other pronouns.

36. The comp. and super. degrees, being best formed by se, than, men se, sub se, or by repeating the adjective, the reader can form these at pleasure, either in this way, wooh moojh se bhula hy, he is better than me; of those fair ones she is the fairest, con goriyon men yih sub se goree hy; goree goree lurkee, a very fair girl, or by inserting more, very, &c. the boy is very fair, yih lurka buhot gora hy, as in our own language.

lurke lurkee goree girl boy.

se hue, the is fairer than the lurkee lurka gora boy girl.

gore gora gora, boy,
se or sub se the fairest &c.
goree goree goree, girl, are sufficient in the mean time to shew the regimen and concord here.

- 37. When comparison relates to an individual or one of many, ka intervenes: ungoor ka sa chhala, a blister like a single grape; ungoor sa nuya gosht, new flesh like a cluster of grapes, or the granulations of a wound. Expertness, however, in the proper use of ka and sa, on such occasions, can be gained by great practice and experience alone.
- 38. When Persian or Arabic comp. and sup. are used, it is generally thus,—bih, good, bihtur, better, bih-tur-een, best, khosh, khosh-tur, khosh-tureen, like our own pleasant, pleasanter, -est, or most pleasant, &c. fazil, doctus, ufzul, doctior, fuzzal, doctissimus, and many more, are - formed in a manner that will be fully detailed hereafter.

  - 39. The cardinal numbers are declined like other nouns, with this peculiarity, that both the vocative and inflexion are often substituted for the mere nominative; thus, teen, teeno, teenon, seem all to denote three, the three, although used adjectively and with nouns, they occur so, teenon fuqueron se, from the three mendicants, perhaps definitely.
- 40. These numerals are not in fact the only words of the above description, as burson, dinon, muheenon, puhron, and such inflexions, frequently supplant the nom. pl. burus, years; din, days; muheene, months; puhur, watches; in expressions like burson goozre, years have elapsed, perhaps elliptical of burson ke din goozre, years' days have passed.

After what has been stated in this place, and in pages 114, 115, 116, &c. the declension of nouns and adjectives can hardly require any farther illustration, except to observe, that all adjectives which do not end in a, u, or nu, are, as in English, indeclinable, and that many of those even, which have these terminations, admit of no more change than our own, as the circumspective reader will soon perceive in his progress through this language.

Certain Arabic words have their feminines in u, before noticed in page 65, to which we may now add, hamil, bearing, carrying, hamilu, pregnant, fazilu, docta, from fazil of page 166, to which the learner may refer, before going any farther, since the references, in which I often indulge, are partly intended to supply that pause in a concatenation of reflection and remarks, so essential to rational minds, when employed upon any subject so interesting as the grammar of a living language.

The Persian genitive and adjective sign, i or e, has been discussed in page 68, and resembles our of, while ka is liker 's, hakim ka hookm, the judge's order; ashiq i pak for pak ashiq, a chaste lover.

If nouns in ee convert it to iy, before an and on, those in oo will, on similar grounds, change this to cow, as in anscowon, tears, quoted in page 132. Some exceptions in a are apt to be inflected by the illiterate; so, huwa, air, duwa, medicine, becoming improperly huwe, duwe, duwon, &c. instead of duwa, duwa, en, duwa, on, huwa, on, &c.

The Pronouns Personal, &c. are as follows.

1st Person.

Singul	ai

Plural.

N. muen, I.

hum, we.

G. me-ra, re, or ree, my mine, or of me.

hum-ara, are, or aree, our, our's, of us.

D. moojh ko, to me.

humon ko, to us.

A. mojh-e, me.

hum-en, us.

V.

A. mojh se, from, &c. humon se, from, &c. me.

us.

2d Person.

N. tuen *, thou.

toom, ye, or you.

G. te-ra, re, or ree, of thee, thy, &c.

tomh-ara, are, or aree, of you, your, &c.

D. toojh ko, to thee.

toomhon ko, to you.

A. toojh-e, thee.

tomh-en, you.

V. too-re, O thou.

toom re, O you.

A. toojh se, from, &c. thee.

tomhon se, from, &c. you.

* Too, or toon, more common, though less conciliating after muen here than tuen; as too, however, is retained in the voc. or reciprocating case with the nom. the reader can readily call on too also, whenever he pleases.

3d Person Proximate.

Singular.

Phural.

- N. yih, he, she, it, this ye, they, these. the.
- G. is-ka, ke, or kee, of inhon-ka, ke, or kee, him, her, this, his, their, their's, of them. its.
- D. is-ko, to him, to her, inhon ko, to these, to it, or this. them.
- A. is-e, him, her, it. inh-en, them, these.

V. yih-re, O this.

her, it, or this.

ye re; O these.

A. is-se, from, &c. kim, inhon se, from these, from them, &c.

3d Person Remote.

N. woh, he, &c. that. we, they, those.

G. cos-ka, ke, kee, of conhon-ka, ke, kee, &c. him, his, her, &c. their, theirs, of those, them.

D. os-ko, to him, &c. onhon-ko, to them, to that. those,

A. cos-e, him, that. conh-en, them, those.

V. woh-re, O that. we-re, O those.

A. os-se, from, &c. onhon-se, from, &c. them, those. . him, &c. that.

As adjectives, yih and wooh may be seen in page 118.

The (reciprocal, reflective, or general personal and possessive) pronoun ap, upna, self, own.

Singular and Plural.

N. ap, self, I, thou, &c. he, she, &c.

G. up-na, &c. ap-ka, &c. of self, own, my, thy, his, her, &c.

D. ap-ko, upne ko, to self, &c. me, thee, &c.

A. ap ko, upne-ko, self, me, &c.

V.

A. ap se, upne se, from, &c. self, &c.

This last pronoun is the same in both numbers, and applicable to I, we, you, he, as well as to self, selves, my own, his own, their own, &c.

• 41. The genitive or possessive form above, inflected so,—ra, re, ree, na, ne, nec, (as ka, ke, kee) is not only used adjectively, but personally even in preference to the others, which may in general be accounted for by the inflected or feminine genitive being required before compound, and sometimes even with simple post-positions.

Mere tu een kuha, he told me; mere copur, upon me; tere pur, on thee; teree turuf, towards thee; ap ne upne tu een mara, he slew his self.

Never month ke copur, or mere-ke tu een, &c. ra and na, being in fact anomalous substitutes for ka, ke, this seldom or never can immediately follow them as a postposition, in their pronominal capacity.

- 42. The dat. and acc. are used almost promiscuously in the Hindoostanee, so that the learner must not follow them too rigidly as stated in the sketch, which is done merely in compliance with our customary forms: he should moreover recollect that e and en, are postpositions peculiar to the pronouns, and occur like ko as dat. or acc. signs occasionally.
- 43. The on and hon, of all the pronouns, may be omitted without invalidating their plurality in the least; whence hum, toom, in, &c. are inconstant use, instead of humhon, toomhon, inhon, of the foregoing series, and kin, jin, &c. for kinhon, jinhon, of the next.
- 44. Ap and upna are very puzzling words; the last is much used reflectively, and even in cases where we would say my, thy, &c. only.

He speaks to himself, ap se ap bolta hy.

He fights with his self, upne se ap lurta hy, which may likewise mean, he fights with his own people, family, &c.

45. The final h, after tomh, inh, &c. is very arbitrarily inserted, and by the moderns much omitted, especially in speech.

INTERROGATIVES.

Example 1.

Plural.

N. kuon.	kuon, who, what, which?
G. kis-ka, -ke, or -kee.	kinhon ka, &c. whose, of whom? &c.
D. kis-ko.	kinhon ko, to whom? &c.
A. kis-e.	kinhen, whom? &c.
V. kuon re.	kuon re, O who, what?
A. kis-se.	kinhon se, from whom?

Example 2.—which has no Plural in the Hindoostanee.

N. kya, which, what?

Singular.

G. kahe ka, &c. of which? &c.

D. kahe ko, to or for which, to what?

A. kahe ko, which, what?

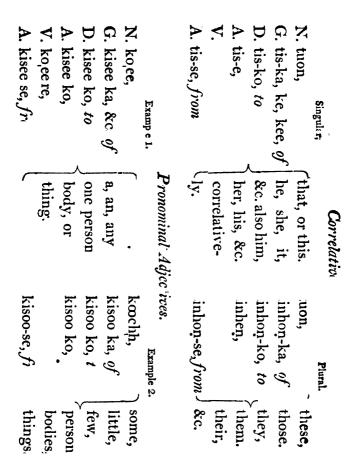

V. kya re, O which, what?

A. kahe se, from which?

Relative.

Singular.	Plural.
N. juon.	juon, who, which, what .
G. jis-ka, &c.	jinhon ka, &c. whose, of which, &c.
D. jis-ko.	jinhon ko, to whom, to which.
A. jis-e.	jinhen, whom, which, &c.
V.
A. jis-se.	jinhon se, from whom, from what, &c.

46. The English of each of the above three Examples is the same in both numbers, and the whole are much used in a reiterated form, both in the nom. and inflexion. They also occur in the formation of many adverbials, and often assume the sa, se, see, already noticed in the preceding pages, but more fully explained among the subsequent illustrations, which may now be consulted by the intelligent scholar.

47. Kon, or ko, ke, jo, jc, so, ko,oo, are still in use for kuon, &c. especially jo, so, which are in truth even more familiar than juon, tuon, and must be employed accordingly. When a noun intervenes, kuon, ko,ee, &c. are frequently un-

- inflected. Toom kuon sahib ke nuokur ho? what gentleman's servant are you? too ko ee sahib ka noukur hue? art thou any gentleman's servant.
- 48. Ko ee and koochh are often so blended with each other, both in their meaning and inflexions, that it is no easy matter to separate them by any discrimination whatever. In the plural they occasionally admit of kinhoon, kinheen, kinoo, kinee. Jo-ko ee, whoever, and some others are doubly inflected to jiskisee, jin-kinhoon, jistis, &c.
- 49. The declension of all the nouns and pronouns is founded on one general principle, that every case, but the nominative, requires a post-position expressed or understood for its formation, along with the simple oblique or inflexion of the noun or pronoun which the postposition governs, when such nouns are capable of having any change whatever.
- 50. In our language, the pronouns alone can illustrate the general doctrine of the difference between a case and an inflexion here; he, wooh; him, cos; his (contracted from he's) coska; I, muen; me, moojh; of me, mine, mera. As we therefore cannot form the various cases of the above, without the inflexion and preposition united, neither can the Hindoostanees make their cases without observing the same rules, wherever the word is inflectible.

- 51. They differ from us essentially in one point only,—to me,—from me,—on me,—are common to both grammars, but the moment a compound postposition occurs, it commonly requires the inflected or feminine genitive. Near me, mere pas; toomharee turuh, like you; is an idiom that appears to us rather near mine, near of me, your manner, and in fact may often be so applied; meree bat bolta hy, he is speaking of me, or repeating my words.
- 52. As all the pronouns are inflected in the singular, they may be placed so far under Declen. 1. and every learner who knows to which nominative the obliques moojh, toojh, humon, toomhon, is, in, oos, oon, kis, kin, jis, jin, tis, tin, kahe, kisoo, kisee, kinhoon, &c. belong, after what has been said above, will be able to decline the whole series, with the aid of simple and compound postpositions, in every possible case and form.
- 53. The scholar cannot too often observe, that the genitive here is also a possessive or adjective pronoun, which may always be made still more obvious in the whole series, by affixing ka, as an inherent component part of almost all the pronouns, with which this declinable commodious particle can assimilate, instead of the ra, na, already discussed. Kiska, kiske, kiskee, resembles the Latin cujus, cuja, and jinhon ka, ke, kee, quorum, quarum.

- 54. Every such genitive, therefore, as well as all pronominal words in a, whether this termination prove innate or adventitious, may be treated as adjectives, and inflected in the same way.
- 55. Before we take leave of the pronouns entirely, I must observe, that muen and tuen are perhaps the only declinable words which the affix ne, mentioned in page 119, does not put in the oblique; muen ne diya, I gave; tuen ne liya, thou took.
- 56. All the pronouns require the ka to agree in number with them; muen upne bap ka beta hoon, or hum upne bap ke bete huen, may both mean, I am the son of my father, notwithstanding the difference of construction. Among us, no scholar would say, you was taught, though speaking to one person. I hope the following examples, and those in page 176, will put this matter beyond all doubt in future.

Too ujub turih ka luonda hue, thou art a strange brat.

Toom zor tumashe ke lurke ho, you are a very comical boy.

Illustrations.

On the personal pronouns we must recollect, that the courtesy and arrogance of the natives make the plural often apply to one person: toom kuon ho, who are you? hum sipahee huen, I am a soldier; uor we humare bhaee huen, and he is my brother; hum toom jate the, you and I were going. This will prove at first rather perplexing to the scholar, but he may readily overcome the difficulty with a little attention, and should from the commencement learn to speak in the singular or plural number, with facility and ease, as he may find it his interest or duty to do so among the natives hereafter.

· ' 41.

As mere, tere, are used for moojh, toojh, these last are by the poets occasionally substituted for the former, in expressions like toojh ishq, thy love, moojh dil, my heart, but they seldom occur so in common discourse.

Mojh natuwan kee halut, the condition of hapless me, with the examples in page 119, clearly shows how ka, ke, kee, may follow such pronouns in the genitive, which is properly formed by ra, re, ree.

42.

Kyoon cose boolate ho, why do you call him? yih (toomhen or) toojhe kya hue, what is this to (you, or) thee? When e en are found as pronominal postpositions, ko, &c. cannot appear, but the emphatic ee may sometimes deceive the learner, if not apprized of this, in sentences such as, isee ko maro cosee ko mut, beat this (here) one, not that (there) one; monihee se kuha toom ne, you told me indeed, or myself.

43.

It is probable enough, that in, con, &c. are the remains of some dual form, and inhon, conhon, &c. the real plural, though the distinction, if it ever existed in the Hindoostanee, seems now-a-days to cause little or no difference in the application of these pronouns, unless perhaps to apply in, con, from courtesy to one person, that inhon, conhon, may more readily discriminate many, or that the addition of on rather belongs to such words in the pronominal than adjective state. Danu on ghoron ko do pur panee ubhee conhon ko mut pila, o, give those horses grain, but do not yet give them water to drink,—in which, though conhon ghoron, cannot be used; either con ko, or conhon ko, may. See page 118.

44.

Ap, self, is subject to the same rule that khood is in Persian. I will tell my friend, if you will inform your brother, that he also may apprise his acquaintance, muen upne dost se kuhoonga jo toom upne bhaee se kuhoge, ki wooh bhee upne ashna ko khubur dewe; mun bu dosti khood khahum gooft, ugur shooma buraduri khood ra khaheed gooft ki o neez bu ashnae khood khubur bidihud. In page 118, enough will be found to elucidate the rule; but perfection must, after all, depend more upon practice than precept.

46.

Kuon kuon, kis kis, kya kya, jis jis, jiskis, jis kisee, jistis, somewhat resemble the Latin quisquis, cujus cujus, &c.

Kuonsa, juonsa, tuonsa, ko eesa, rather assimilate with qui libet, quivis. We kuon kuon kitaben huen? what sort of books are those? mojhe kuonsee doge? which of them will you give me? juonsee chaho tuonsee lo, whichever you choose, take the same; kis. turuh cose buna oon, how shall I make it? jis turuh ho suke tis turuh buna o, in the way it can be done, make it in that manner. Consult pages 111, 164, &c.

47, &c.

Wooh dhobee jo pichhle sal humare yuhan tha so aj phir aya hue, the washerman who was with us last year, the same has returned.

As both jo and so are occasionally other parts of speech than pronouns, the student must distinguish them from the context. Jo wooh uesa kure so too bhee kur, if the act thus, do thou do so. Ki, from the Persian, is frequently met with, as who, which, that, or, than, when, saying, viz. and must through time be acquired by dint of practice.

54.

Kuonsa din, what day, uor kuonsee rat, and which night, toojh bin, without thee, khooshee se goozre, have passed with pleasure.

55.

os lurke ne kata durukht ko, that boy cut the tree; kis ne ose chhoree dee thee, who gave him a knife? osee se poochho muen ne kisee ko chhooree dete nuheen dekha, ask himself, I did not see any body give a knife.

56.

The remarks in page 176, will render this evident enough to those who know why you requires are, were, in our language, and that my, thy, your, our, may be plural in one sense, while singular in the other, and vice versa. Mere ghore, my horses, humara ghur, our house, in which mere is plural as to horses, but singular respecting me; and humara singular as to house, but plural regarding its owners, &c.

The Verb.

57. The imperative in the second person singular, is the root or radical portion of every verb in the Hindoostance, which must always be discovered by 58; and in general, as in our language, is also a significant, useful noun.

- 58. Every infinitive terminates in the inflectible particle na, ne, nee, mentioned in page 81, but here meaning to, which, like the other postpositive particles, is invariably affixed to the second person sing. of the imperative, chah-na, to love, the Hindoostanee being in this respect of position, as in some others, diametrically opposite to ours.
- 59. The perfect tense, including the participle, is formed by adding (masc.) a, e, (fem.) ee, een, iyan, to the root of the verb, the final letter of which, if a vowel, assumes y, or is changed to iy, as explained in pages 73, 77.
- 60. The present tense and participle merely require the letter t, as a temporal sign, to precede the several particles enumerated as past signs in 59, and which all occur here exactly under similar circumstances: chah-ta, chah-te, chah-tee, chah-teen, chah-tiyan, love, lovest.
- 61. The agrist, subjunctive present, or imperative, assumes for both genders, oon, e, e, singular, and en, o, en, plural, in the order of persons observed here, and, like the present of the indicative has often the auxiliary signs.
- 62. The future springs from the agrist by adding g, as a fut sign prefixt to the perf. a, &c. thus ga, ge, exactly in the order of persons observed in 61, and with respect to genders, &c. as in 59.

- 63. The pluperfect participle is either expressed by the root or imperative's self, or by the various particles ke, kur, e, kurke, and kurkur, promiscuously affixed to the root, for that most useful portion of the verb.
- 64. The result of the foregoing principles on the verb palna, to breed, or any other, is as follows, in the scheme below, which the diligent student will carefully compare with the sketch already exhibited in page 121, that a real knowledge of both may at once enable him to master every Hindoostanee verb, the moment it falls under his discussion, either in a sentence or the vocabulary: This can instantly be accomplished, by separating the root from na, or any other of the moveable particles, like oon, e, kur, and in this manner even the auxiliary hona, to be, exist, can be regularly conjugated.

		1	Singular.	In all the Persons	Perso.	Plural.	, '%
		M. &	M. & Infl.	Fem.	×	Fem.	٦
	Inf. ger. noun, &c.	-na,	ne,	-nee.	-ne,	neen,	ņiyaņ.
•	Pres. tense and part.	-	·te,	-tee.	-te,	teen,	tiyan.
	Perf. tense and part.	ట్టీ	Ģ.	-ce.	. е,	een,	iyan.
	Imp. & aor, M. & F.	-00n-	-00n- e- e-	; ,	en-o- en-	- en-	,
40	after all the		. 47				. ,
	Future \ above aorist	- 6'2,	;	-gee.	9 . 6	-geen	-giyan.
. ",	particles.
	Pluperf. part.	-ke, k	ur, e, 1	-ke, kur, e, kurke, or kurkur.	kurku	.7
٠ :	N. B. The inf. or gerund masc. belongs to the first, and the fem. to the second declension. The root pal is also used as a pluperfect	und n	hasc. b	elongs to	the fir	st, and	the fem.
	participle.		;		. 1.7	•

65. As the particles above enumerated are applicable, in the very same manner, to all verbs whatever, and as the whole drop e in the second person sing. of the agrist to form the root, or rather the second person sing. of the imp. it naturally follows, that there is but one conjugation in the language.

- 66. By taking for granted, what may almost be proved, that kee-na, moo-na, dee-na, lee-na, are the ancient infinitives of kurna, to do; murna, to die; de-na, to give; le-na, to take; and also supposing that o and oo, j and g, are nearly the same interchangeable letters, we shall not find one single irregular verb in the whole Hindowstanee language.
- 67. Hoon, &c. affixed to participles present and past, has exactly the same power and use as our am, do, have, &c. muen hota hoon, I am existing, or do exist. He hath been, wooh hoo a hue. Hoo, a, means is, was, or been, and occasionally appears redundant.
- 68. When these signs are omitted, the mere present becomes not only indefinite, but also a past tense in the subjunctive mood. Jo muen lurka hota uesa nuheen kurta, were I a boy I would not act so, or had I been a boy I would not have done so; jo muen wuhan sota kisee ko nuheen jugata, had I slept there, I would not have waked any one.
- 69. To express the imperfect of the auxiliary ho-na, the word tha, was, did, had, is in use, and is probably a contracted perfect of the obtoleta regular verb thana, to stay, be stationed, which to this day means a station, post.

- 70. From the above tha, and the indefinite present or participle, comes the imperfect tense, muen hota tha, I was existing, or did (then) exist; too hoo, a tha, thou did exist, or had been.
- 71. The whole of the compounds have just now been elucidated, and the simple tenses, having formerly been adjusted in 64, they require no repetition here. The frequent substitution of one tense for another, especially the pluperfect for the perfect, will be evident enough in the Exercises.
- 72. In the passive voice, the perfect participle of the active verb assumes jana, to go, be, affixed through its various tenses, which may nevertheless be followed by such parts of hona, as particular tenses may still require. Hum mare gue the, we had been beaten; toom mare gue hoge, you may have been beaten.
- 73. The perfect participle passive, in all compound tenses, seems to require guya, but commonly drops it in those which are simple. Muen mara guya hoon, I have been beaten; muen mara ja oonga, I shall be beaten.

- 74. The personal pronouns, as in Latin, are not always expressed, the termination, auxiliary or sense, generally pointing out the particular person.
- 75. When they do occur, it is commonly so: Muen, I; too, thou; wooh, he. yih, he, this. Hum, we; toom, you; we, they. Ye, they, these are used only when requisite, in contra-distinction to that, those.
- 76. The third person is often substituted for the other two, from the Oriental practice of introducing words like slave for I, and warship, honour, gentleman, &c. for you.
- 77. Although the Hindoostanee verbs have often inherently potential, permissive and other properties, they nevertheless require also certain compound forms to express them, the last or subservient portion of which is generally conjugated like all other verbs.
- 78. These compounds are formed in five different ways, and may be conveniently termed radical, preteritive, inflective, participial, and reiterative, from the nature of their composition.
- 79. The radical (1.) is a very extensive class, comprehending, besides numberless adverbial infinitives, the potential and completive forms.

- 80. Under the preteritives, (2.) are all the passives, desideratives, requisitives, proximatives, and frequentatives.
- 81. When the infinitive occurs in the inflected, (3.) instead of the radical form, a considerable number of inceptive, permissive, and acquisitive verbs are produced, all highly useful in the Hindee tongue.
- 82. The participial (4.) combinations are also very numerous, and may be sub-divided into continuative and stationary.
- 83. A very few come under the reiterative (5.) class, in which the subservient part has of itself little or no very obvious meaning whatever, although certainly deducible from other significant words.
- 84. The result of the above enumeration, systematically considered, is thus:

1. Radicals.

- 1. Adverbials, from their signification with us, kat-dalna, to cut off; gir-purna, to fall down; kha-jana, to eat up.
- 2. Potentials, bol-sukna, to be able to speak.
- 3. Completives, pee-chookna, to be done drinking; kha-chookna, to finish eating.

2. Preteritives.

- 1. Passives, mara-jana, to be beaten.
- 2. Desideratives.
- 3. Requisitives, mura-
- 4. Proximatives, mura-chahna, ought also to be about

5. Frequentatives, bola-kurna, to make a habit of speaking; jaya-kurna, to have a trick of going; pyra-kurna, to practise swimming; aya-kurna, to make a practice of coming.

💃 3. Inflectives.

- 1. Inceptives, seekhne-lugna, to begin to learn; bolne-lugna, to begin to speak.
- 2. Permissives, jane-dena, to let, or permit to go; ane-dena, to let come.
- 3. Acquisitives, ane-pana, to be allowed to come; jane-pana, to be allowed to go.

4. Participials.

- 1. Continuatives, purhta-jana, or ruhna, to continue reading.
- 2. Statisticals, gate-ana, to come singing; roteduorna, to run crying.

5. Reiteratives.

1. Subservients, bolna-chalna, to converse, &c. byahna-burna, to marry, with perhaps a few more.

- 85. The inflected infinitive at times supplants the radical and preteritive forms. In this way, however, muen nu chul sukta, I cannot walk, muen chulne sukta, I can, are very liable to confusion; and as muen nuheen chulne sukta, is not a very musical sentence, the ne therefore, I think, ought always, on such occasions, to be entirely avoided.
- 86. The passives and participials change in both their component parts, according to the gender and number of their—nominatives.—
  Wooh maree guee thee, she was slain; we gate a the, they came singing; wooh rotee ruhee, she continued weeping.
- 87. The reiteratives are in fact doubly conjugated, cos se muen nu kubhoo bola nu chala, I never had any thing to say to him, resembling in this respect the pronouns in page 181.
- 88. Muen kuh chooka, I have already said; uesa mut bola kuro upne nuokur se, do not make a habit of speaking so to your servant; jo muen ane pa oon tomhare yihan, to toom ko jane de oon upne yihan, if I be allowed to come to your house I will permit you to go to mine, with a few such, are well calculated to elucidate this department now. In the Exercises they will again appear, but on the whole are so essential for immediate colloquial purposes, that the learner ought to lose no time in acquiring this most useful part of the language.

- 89. The power which transitives have of prefixing ne is lost the moment they are compounded with any neuter verb. Muen ne khana khaya, I have eat my dinner; muen khachooka, I have done eating.
- 90. Bolna, to speak; lana, to bring; chookna, to miss, end, &c.; lurna, to fight, and a few others, though apparently transitives, nevertheless do not admit ne; tuen ne kuha, thou said; tuen bola, thou spoke; toom ne liya, you took; we lae the, they had brought.
- 91. The addition of negatives in the Hindoostanee is so very easy, that a few examples only can be requisite to illustrate the mode completely; nu is common to all the modes, mut peculiar to the imp. and nuheen to the rest; toom jante nuheen? don't you know? muen pu janta tha, I did not know; mut poochho, don't ask; nu janiyo, don't suppose.
- 92. The learner must be careful not to confound emphatic interrogatives and affirmatives with negative expressions; muen ne bheja hue, I have sent; tuen ne bheja, thou hast sent; muen nu-heen bola hoon, I have not spoken; toom nuheen lae ho, you have not brought.

- 93. Hindoostanee syntax and construction will appear so easy and simple in the Dialogues or Exercises hereafter presented to the scholar, as to preclude the necessity of all further observation, in a short introduction of this kind. Persons versed in the analysis of a sentence in any language, can be at no loss, after a few trials, with the examples which may occur here; and such as really wish to become masters of the Hindoostanee, need not limit their enquiries to these pages, as long as my other works are in print.
- 94. The composition and derivation of words is equally obvious and attainable, after recollecting the contents of pages 65, &c. with the few particulars inserted below, for the use of mere beginners.
- 95. When the infinitive is thus met with—chah-na, to love, phir-na, to turn, khel-na, to play, dur-na, to fear, little penetration can be wanted to discover the noun, as in our own tongue, 57. Should the root end in n, the scholar must recollect not to confound the infin. and perfect together, which he will at first be apt to do in ginna, to count; sconna, to hear;

janua, to know, and some others, as their perfects are gina, soona, jana.

- 96. Sometimes the inf. and noun are the same, as khana, to eat, also food. In the fem. this occasionally denotes the instrument, as kutur-nee, a pair of scissars, from kutur-na, to clip. The perfect, or participle, is also the noun, as chooma, a kiss, kuha, order, advice, mara, or mara hoo, a victim, &c. from choom-na, to kiss, kuhna, to tell, marna, to beat, kill. This also as a fem. is a noun like bolee, speech. The present part likewise is a noun in both genders, as khata, a waste book, receiver or granary, from khana, to suffer, admit, &c. bustee, a village, from busna, to dwell, inhabit; gintee, a muster, reckoning, from ginna, to count, &c.
- 97. Adjectives require kurna to become active compound verbs; with hona they are neuter, khura, erect, khura-k. to raise, khura-h. to rise, gurm, hot, gurm-k. to heat actively, gurm-h. to heat, or grow warm. Nouns are also used in a similar manner with kurna, to make, khana, to eat, suffer, receive, dena, to give, pana, milua, to get, rukhua, to place, bandhna, to tie, ana, to come, in such combinations as fikr-k. to think, galee-d. to abuse, galee-khana, to be abused, nuzur-ana, to appear, or come in sight.

- 98. In some instances the auxiliaries in 97 are preferred to the regular passive form, whence mar-khana, to get a beating; or mara-jana, to be beaten, have often the same meaning.
- 99. The neuters and actives are in general so well distinguished in this language, from each other, that the learner can seldom confound them, as in our tongue, together. The transitive forms generally spring from the neuter or intransitive by assuming a before na, or by prolonging the short vowel of the neuter, in the active infinitive. For the causals wa commonly suffices before na; julna, julana, julwana, to burn, to cause burn; khoolna, kholna, khoolwana, to open, cause open, &c.
  - 100. The scholar should always recollect, that in this way he may discover a number of very useful verbs by a slight attention to the connection between one and the other form: chulna, to go, chulana, to drive; sconna, to hear, sconana, to tell; buchna, to escape, buchana, to save; seekhna, to learn, sikhana, to teach; murna, to die, marna, to kill; bhoolna, to forget, bhoolana, to mislead, are a convincing proof of the truth of my remarks and assertions, which, as the scholar proceeds in his career, he will find more and more worthy of his assiduous observation.

almost at pleasure furnish his self with many verbs apparently not inserted in this work, agreeably to the same principles in his own tongue, evident in the examples—to make haste, to take care, to give vent, to tie fast, to get a beating,—but for ample information on this portion of the Hindoostanee, he must attend to the Exercises and Vocabulary, and in the mean time recollect that the above auxiliaries will there be contracted to k. kh. h. d. p. m. a. r. &c.

A summary of the whole verbal principles will now be conspicuous enough in the following table, which comprises the form of every intransitive and transitive verb in the language, with the entire passive voice of every active verb, comprehended in one conjugation, from which there is hardly a single exception or irregular in the Hindoostanee.

*30	HIN DOOR	TANEE
* The present and perfect participle this however is so often omitted as to c text commonly prevents misconception. ready noticed, and accounted for in 66,	too  too  hum  bolte (ho.enge, see ing)  ho.oge, see ing)  ho.oge, see may have spo-  ho.oge, see may have spo-	we spoken, &c. spoken, &c.	Imp. bol, speak. Inf. and Ger. bol-na, to speak.
s, strictly speaking, are disconfound the two parts of the Hoo,a (for ho,a) the perfect 67, &c.	bolte, bolta,  bolte, bolta,  Had I spoken, I would have spoken, or I, thou, sec. might have spoken, as were I, &c. speaking, &c.  bol-  Survey of the could speak, be can, or could speak, &c.	bolta tha, or was speaking, &c.  bola tha, bola tha, bola tha, bole the, bole the b	Pres, and Part, bol-ta, speaking,
riminated by hoo a affixed verb together, but the co of ho-na, to be, has been a	chookenge, chookenge, chookenge, chookenge, chookenge, chookenge, shall have spoken, thou, &cc. shall have	bolen  O'CC  I, &c.c. speak, may, can, shall, or vill speak, may I speak, let me speak, speak thou, let us speak speak vou	Perf. and Part. holes choice canton

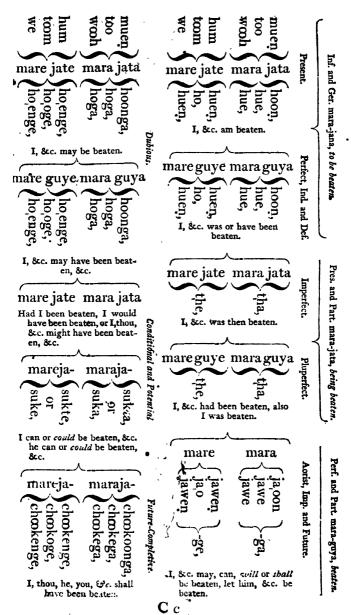

When the verb is transitive, all the perfect tenses will often remain wholly uninflected, while their pronouns, on the contrary, will be thrown by ne into the inflexion, as far as they can, thus:

The pluperfect participle bol-kur, bol-ke; &c. having spoken, has appeared in detail, and merits every attention from the learner, not only as the participle which joins two or more members of a sentence, by suspending the meaning, till it closes, but also as a convenient adverbial form of the greatest use in the language, in such expressions,—sahib ke yihan jakur, humara sulam kuhke coskee topee mangke, cose lekur phir a.o, having gone to the gentleman's, given my compliments, and having borrowed his hat, return with it here. Whatever you do, act deliberately, jo koochh ki toom kuro so soch-ke kuro, from sochna, to think; duorke ja o, go quickly, i. e. having run.

The future of the infinitive and participle generally occurs so, bola-chahna, to be about to speak, bolne-pur, bolne-wala, about to speak, but such combinations can give little or no trouble to any scholar, who has really studied the foregoing principles. The scholar cannot well forget that a for the fem. sing. becomes ee, and that ee in the fem. plural must be een or iyan, as exhibited in 59; he must moreover recollect, that e of the 2d person imperative singular is always dropt in that mood; whence, bol too, speak thou; ugur too bole, if thou speak.

No transitive verb can now be difficult in the active, we shall therefore here exhibit the passive, from which the learner will also acquire the verb jana, to go, or to be, as the auxiliary with hona, in this voice.

The w may be omitted or inserted at pleasure in all verbs whose root ends in a vowel. They even occasionally drop the e and o also, whence hoo, howe, hoe, ho; howen, hoen, hon, are all used promiscuously, and consequently ho oon, hoon, hoonga, hoonga, howega, hoega, hoga, in the future. This tense in the auxiliary is often pronounced huega, huenge, (with rather a present than future meaning) being formed by affixing ga, ge, to the present of hona, exactly as the future is upon the aorist in the above table. We may now reconcile do, lo, bo, and doon, loon, with deo, leo, boo, de oonga, le oonga, and all contractions of this kind, from verbs like dena, lena, bona, hona, &c. On similar principles the short would be in many infinitives, is omitted other parts of the verb. whence sumjha, n da to in the perf. sumjhoonga, nikloong: in the future, (never sumujha, &c.) from something, to understand, nikulna, to issue; but a this theme the reflecting student will look at creating back to the significant particles at the beginning of this Work, whence he will learn how to reconcile and account for every trifice; literal deviation that can present itself, it any port of the Hindoostanee. 1

Cardinals.

1 Ek	26 Chhu bees
2 Do	27 Suta ees
3 Teen	28 Utha ees
4 Char	29 ontees
5 Panch	30 Tees
6 Chhu	31 Ektees
7 Sat	32 Butees
8 Ath	33 Tetees
9 Nuo	34 Chuotees
10 Dus	35 Puentees
11 Egaruh	36 Chhutees
12 Baruh	37 Suentees
13 Teruh	· 38 Uthtees
14 Chu	39 contalees
15 Pun a	40 Chalees
16 Solul	41 Ektalees
17 Sutru	42 Be alees
18 Uthar.	43 Tetalees
19 connee	44 Chuo alees
20 Bees	45 Puentalees
21 Ekees	46 Chhe alees
22 Baees	47 Suentalees
23 Te ees	48 Uthtalees
24 Chuobees	₽9 conchas
25 Puchees	o Puchas

51 Ekawun	76 Chhihuttur
52 Bawun	77 Suthuttur
53 Tirpun	78 Uthhuttur
54 Chuowun	79 conasee
55 Puchpun	80 Ussee
56 Chhuppun	81 Ekasee
57 Sutawun	82 Be asee
58 Uthawun	83 Tirasee
59 consuth	84 Chuorasee
60 Sath	85 Puchasee
61 Eksuth	86 Chhe asee
62 Basuth	87 Sutasee
63 Tirsuțh	88 Uthasee
' 64 Chuosuțh	89 Nuo asee
65 Puensuth	90 Nuwwe
66 Chhe asuth	91 Ekanwe
67 Sutsuth	92 Banwe
68 Uțhsuțh	38 Firmer 13
69 conhuttur	64 Class nwe
70 Suttur	95 Pushanwe
71 Ekhuttur	.96 Chicanwe
72 Buhuttur	77 50 an we
73 Tihuttur	& Ugranwe
74 Chuohuttur	Nimianwe
75 Puchhuttur	100.Suo

As several of the foregoing	ng are pronounced differently, I shall here inser	rt such, in order to prevent any misconception,	in this place:—
Chhe, 6 Chl	hachhut, 66
Tuentees, 33 Urs	su țh, 88
Chuontees, 34 Bira	asee, 82
Urtees, 38 Eks	anuwwe, 91
conchalees, 39 Bira	anuwwe, 92
Tuentalees, 43 Tira	anuwwe, - 93
Úrtalees, 48 a	and so forth:
Tripun, 53 a	ılso Nubbe, &c. 90
Puchawun, 55 Sue	, 100
Tresuth, 63	,

Ordinals.

1st	Puehla.		6th Chhut-wan.
	Doosra.	; *	7th Sat-wan.
3d	Teesra.		8th Ath-wan.
4th	Chuotha		9th Nuo-wan.
5th	Panchen in		10th Dus-wan, &c.

Colle lives.

Gunda, Gahee, Besee,
Lakh, a hundred thousand.
Chaleesa,
Kuror, ten million.

N. B. The whole series of numbers, from ten to ninety, may be rendered very simple indeed in this way, dus o ek, bees o do, tees o teen, chalees o char, teen beesee, char beesee, &c.; but dus ek, bees ek, rather mean about 10 (9 or 11) or 20 (19 or 21) as an elliptical mode of expressing—dus, ek kum ya zee ad, ten, one more or less.

Fractionals.

The following fractionals are so intricate, that practice only can make them agreeable:

Tiha,ee	3	Sarhe teen	3 2
Pa,o, chuoth, or ?	 	Puone char .	33
chuotha,ee	4	Suwe Bar	44
Adha	7.	Sarhe la	42
Do tiha,ee	3	Puone pare 5	44
Puwun, puona,	3	Suwa po 3	57
or teen pa,o	4	Saibe prodl	5 *
Suwa	14	Pugherigu	54
Derh	1 1	Sewa obju	64
Puone do	11	la chhu	6 *
Suwa do .	$2^{\frac{1}{4}}$	ame sat	$6\frac{3}{4}$
Urhaee	2.	Suwa bees	204
Puone teen	21	' ,₹a; qe tees	· 30 z
Suwa teen	37	Luone puchas	494

DAYS.			207
Suwa suo	125	Sarhe nuo suo	950
Derh suo	150	Suwa huzar	1250
Puone do suo	175	Derh huzar	1500
Suwa do suo	225	Puone do huzar	1750
Urha ee suo	250	Suwa do huzar	2250
Puone teen suo	275	Uṛha ee huzar	2500
Suwa teen suo	325	Sarhe teen hu-
Sarhe teen suo	350	zar, &c.	3500
Sarhe sat suo	750

Days of the IVeek.

··Hindoostanee.	Hinduwee.	English.
Etwar*	Rubee-bar	Sunday
Som-war, or Peer	Som-bar	Monday
Mungul '	Mungulbar	Tuesday

*The Mosuloway's Etwar, or Sunday, commences with what we, as well as the Hindoos, call Saturday might, Suneechur kee rat, and so on throughout the week. As this confusion of time may be productive of mischief, in cases of evidence for capital offences, the reader will not, I trust, be discussed with the present digression. Suppose Mosulman were on his trial for murdering at indoo on Tuesday night, Mungul kee rat, in our, and the Hindoos sense of the word, all the witnesses, if Mosulmans, and aware of the story circumstance, could Hindoostanee.	Hinduwee.	English.

Boodh	Boodhbar	Wednesday
Jomerat, or Biphe	Brihsputbar, or Lukheebar	Thursday
Jooma	Sookrbar	Friday
Suneechur, or Bar	Suneebar	Saturday

save the criminal though guilty, by swearing positively to his being far from the spot on Mungul kee rat; because this, in their way of reckoning time, coincides with what we, and the Hindoos, call Somwar kee rat, Monday night; while our Mungul kee rat, on the other hand, is in fact named Boodh kee rat, by the followers of Mohu. The wealth we and the Hindoos would cereby which this Wednesday night of theirs, our Sacrate, night, and vice versa. Now, in such case n alibi might be clearly established by the conferences upon oath, and that too without being guilty of perjury, as they are here supposed in boow that their different depositions will be a sen down, and translated verbatim as they make them, viz. Mungul kee rat, which would interpret as Tuesday night, and we have tup on this foundation, clears the proponer while it screens the witnesses also, because they may safely say, we swore to his being special from the spot where the murder was committed, on Tuesday

N. B. Din, is a day, aj, this or to-day, aj rat, this night. But war or bar only occurs in composition, unless we admit mas ka bar, the last day of the month, as an exception; but I question night it is true, according to your ideas of the matter, yet we undoubtedly meant no more by doing so, than that on our Monday night, the culprit was many miles distant from the place the crime was perpetrated at, upon your and the Hindoos Tuesday night. If this proposition can be reversed, so as to affect the life of an inhocent man, I tremble at the very idea of it, and shall feel truly happy indeed, if the present extended digression put people in future more on their guard, in all matters depending upon time; particularly my military readers, who may yet be employed on the most important services, whose success must often depend on the accuracy of the instructions, given in Hindoostanee, to an inferior native officer. night attacks, ambuscades, signals, sallies, &c. to be concerted some days previous to their execution, between a Mosulman and a British officer, if the latter has ordered the former to carry a particular operation into effect on Mungul kee rat, as Tueso y night, his expectations will evidently be anticipated one whole day, as the Mosulman, according to his notion of time, will in this case do the duty required upon Monif this be good Hindoostanee, although much used by all our domestics in Bungala, either for the last or first day of the month, as these may be connected with muster or pay day.

Lunar Time.

Mohurrum	Rujub
şufur	Shuuban
1. Rubeeụ-col uwwul	Rumuzan
2. Rubeeu cos sance col akhir	Shuwwal
1. Jumad-col uwwul	zilqad, or zeeqadu
2. Jumad- {-cos sance -col akhir	zilhij, or zeehijju

Hindoo and English Months.

Chuet, commences from 11th to 13th,	the }March.
Buesakh,	April.
Jeth,	May.
Usarh,	June.
Sawun, or Srawun,	July.

day night. To point out the possible fatal tendency of such a blunder, on particular occasions, is a task that I shall leave entirely to the reader's own imagination, being much easier conceived than described in its fullest extent. Bhadon, August.

Koonar, or Asin, September.

Katik, or Kartik, October.

Ughun, November.

Poos, or Poh, December.

Magh, or Mah, January.

Phagoon, or Phalgon, February.

Money Table.

Dam, Uddhee, Dumree, Chhedam, Udhela, 1½ = 1 and 2 = 1 and 2 = 1 and 2 = 1 and 2 = Puesa, Tuka,* Ana, Pa olee or Sookee, Udhelee, 1 and 2 = 1 and 2 = 1 and 2 = Roopiyu, Mochur or Ushrufee.

1 and 16 = one.

This however varies much in its value, and the extremes may probably be 18 and 14 roo-

* Or pukka puesa, a double puesa, the other being named kucha, or single. The Bungalees call roopiyu, tuka; and the one-fourth sookee, sekee; the final ee is frequently changed to a, in such words, without affecting their meaning, whence sooka, leeka, paola, &c. though udhela, and udhelee, as may be seen above, are very different things. The Chhedam is moreover termed dookra; but, after all, except pees to the mothur, according to its intrinsic worth in gold, or the caprices of the money-changers at the time, as they frequently extort whatever they please in this way, from all other classes of people. As very satisfactory lists, and most useful tables of weights and measures, are now inserted in the several Registers published in the East Indies, it would be absurd in me to reprint them; I shall therefore refer all sojourners, for every information of this sort, to the most accurate Works, which are procureable at the printing-offices of the several Presidencies in British India.

with the puesa, ana, roopiyu, and mothur, the stranger will not at first have much business or connection. As he prolongs his stay or extends his enquiries, he will learn what kuorees and puns also are.

DIALOGUES.*

(yuhan) ek betee thee, pur ko ee beta nu tha.

hue?

Yih wooh-ce bue.

EK padshah tha jiske THERE was a king who had a daughter. but he had not a son.

Is bazar ka dustoor kya What is the custom of this market? This is the (he or) man.

The words dustoor, bazar, begum, soorut, surdar, Mosulman, Monshee, feel, mooftee, Hindoo, being frequently written correctly at once by most people, so far establishes the general propriety of my system of Hindee-Roman orthography. On this occasion let me caution the scholar not to allow any Moonshee to insist, that particular examples are never used among them, until he can speak Hindoostanee well enough to convince all such wiseacres of their total inability to comprehend the nature and * The student must refer to the large Collection of Dialogues just published, for that extensive variety which cannot be expected in a small Work of this kind.

Ko,ee dum men phirega.

Ul ghurz yih hue, ki muen kul ja oonga.

Wuhan sub hee hue.

Muen toojh se kam loonga uor oose doonga.

He will return in a breath.

The short of it is this, that I will go to-morrow.

The whole are there.

I will take the business from thee and give it to him.

tendency of what is asserted here, without being sufficiently versed in both languages. As no native can patiently submit to too and toojh, all of them have an interest in crushing expressions similar to that in the text, without having penetration enough to perceive, that in cases of displeasure, endearment, familiarity, and adoration, these are perfectly just. They cannot even comprehend the introduction of a single member of a sentence to illustrate a rule, and therefore often observe, Who will return? What man is to go? Why will he go? We never speak so. This cannot be right—after instances which may be produced by the scholar in the course of his reading. The learner gets perplexed, the Monshee persists in a speech, of which the other cannot domprehend one-third, the dispute naturally enos in mutual chagrin, if not abuse, without the smallest advantage to either party.

Wooh kuon hue?

Ap (or sahib) ke bawurchee ka bhaee.

Saees ke pas jakur, yih danu oos ke age rukhkur, dekho ki wooh ghore ko khilata hue.

Muen elchee hokurisee surkar men aya hoon padshah kee turuf se.

Ye kuonse janwur huen?

Moorghabee huen.

Ketne ko mere khawind ke hath * bechoge.

Tomharee danist men is ghur ka peechha

Who is he?

The brother of your worship's cook.

Go to the groom, put this grain before him, and see that he gives it to the horse.

I have come on the part of the king as ambassador to this government.

What sort of animals are these?

They are wild ducks.

For what will you sell them to my master?

In your opinion is the rear of this house

* Were ko here used instead of ke hath, the meaning would be perverted to—For how much will you sell my master as a slave? A learner once in my presence asked a Moonshee about a book, and concluded with saying, will you sell it to me? in these words: Hum ko (for humare age se khoshnoma

Hurgiz, bur uks mere khiyal men iska aga peechhe se buhoot soothra hue.

Bat yoon ho to ho wuzeer ke nuokuron age, pur bukhshee ke chakuron ke nuzdeek koochh uor hue. Kuhan raja ka beta uor kuhan yih snoohru.

Raje ke bete uor is shoohre men yih luga,o hue. handsomer than the front?

By no means, on the contrary, I conceive the front is much more elegant than the rear.

The matter may be so among the minister's servants, but it is otherwise with the general's domestics.

What connection is there between the prince's son and this report?*

There is this connection between the prince's son and this report.

hath) bechoge? Will you sell me? The man very respectfully replied, muqdoor kya, ap mera ghoolam nuheen, how can I do so, your honour is not my slave?

* Lit. where is the prince's son, and where this report?

Khansaman ke yuhan aj ke bazar ke khurch ko ek puesa bhee nuheen, suoda kuhan se lawega, uor mere yuhan jo such poochho ek phootee kuoree bhee nuheen.

Jub ki murdon ke yuhan bawurchee, khidmutgar uor khuwas oonkee khidmut pur ruhen chahiye ki uoruton ke yuhan bhee bawurchin, khidmutgarin o suheliyan, bhee ruhen.

Yih kuhne men kis soorut se awe hue?
Kya hoo a or hue?
Toomhara iradu kya?
Kuon shor kurta hue?
Toom kya kuhte ho?
Boola o ose.
Toomharee kya sulah

hue?

The steward has not a single penny about him for to-day's market expences, how will he bring provisions, and in fact I have not even a bad farthing.

If men have their male cooks, men servants and pages to serve them, women surely ought to have their cook maids, waiting maids, and damsels to attend them.

In what manner is it expressed?
What is the matter?
What do you mean?
Who makes a noise?
What do you say?
Call him.
What is your advice?

rafiyut?

This will be better than Yih sub se bihtur hoga. all. It is the same thing. Ekhee hue. Koochh furq nuheen. There is no difference. Toom buhoot ahiste (or You speak very low. dubee awaz se) bolte ho. Can you speak Eng-Toom Ungrezee bol sukte ho? lish? Sulees Hindoostanee to Speak easy Hindoostakuho. nee. Wooh phir kuho. Speak that again. Toom buhoot juldee You speak too quick. bolte. Muen nuheen sumujh-I do not understand. ta hoon. Kuho to wooh kya kuh- Tell me what he says. ta hue. Do not forget. Bhooliyo mut. Whence came you? Kuhan se a e ho? Come hither. Idhur ao. Pas (or nuzdeek) a.o. Come near. Chule ja.o. Rookhsut. Go away. Aj kee kya khubur? lit. Is there any news today's what news? \ day? Toom kuese ho or khue-How do you do?

Tomharee comr kya? Moojhe uor durkar nuheen. i. e. me to more necessary not.

Uor nuheen chahiye. Kuho sa,ees se ki ghora tueyar kure.

Chabook uor gol topee do.

Palkee mere pas bhejo. Upna kam jo bihtur nu kuro to muen toomhen juwab doonga.

Lao hazree.

Misree do.

Koochh uor doodh to la,o.

Muen ubhee bahur jaya chahta hoon.

Khane ko kya hue?

Hath dhone ka panee lao.

Sono ek nao hum ko durkar hue Kulkutte tuk jane ko. What is you age?

I do not want more.

More is not required.

Tell the groom to get the horse ready.

Give me the whip and round hat.

Send the palkee to me.

If you don't do your business better, I will turn you away.

Bring breakfast.

Give me the sugarcandy.

Bring some more milk.

I want to go out directly.

What is there for dinner?

Bring water to wash my hands.

I want a boat to go to Calcutta.

Is ka bhara keta hue?
Toom kubtuk chul su-koge?

Hum ubhee ja enge.

Juld na o eehan la o.

Is wuqt juwar hue? Nuheen sahib bhatha hue.

Hum ko kinare pur otaro.

Idhur ko chulo. odhur ko phiro.

Kya hue cos bustee ka nam?

Wuhan kuon ruhta hue?

Wuhan koochh khane peene kee cheez miltee hue?

Uch-chha, wuhan na o le chulo ou luga o.

Dekho na o isce juguh rukho, our toom sub ḥazir ruho, hum ubhee phir ate huen. What is the fare of it? When can you go?

We will go immediate-

Bring the boat here quickly.

Is the tide in now?

No, Sir, it is out, or ebb.

Put me on shore.

Go this way. Turn that way.

What is the name of that place?

Who stays there?

Can we get any thing to cat or drink there?

Well, take the boat there and put to.

Keep the boat here, and emain all at hand, as we shall return immediately. Chulo na o juldee kholo.

Maro dand, zor se tano, sostec mut kuro.

Koochh khura kuro dhoop kee ar ke waste.

Kue ghuree din churha hue? or Kue ghurce din hue?

Palkee juldeemunga,o.

Monthiyon ko boola o, our humare sathee sath humaree cheezbust bhejwa do.

Tom şahib kuhan o-troge?

Sub se uch-chhe punchwale ke ghur hum ko ek bargee le puhonchawen.

Chulo hum ko puhoncha,o D— sahib ke yuhan.

Woh kuon hue?--tα/in kuon ho? Ko,ee hue? Come, let us set off quickly.

Row fast, pull away, don't be lazy.

Put up something to shelter us from the sun.

What o'clock is it?

Bring a chair quickly. Get porters, and send my baggage along with mc.

Where do you mean to go Sir?

Let them carry me at once to the best tavern.

Come take me to Mr D—s.

Who is that? who are you?.

Is any body there?

Kyoon top (bujee, chhootee, or) dughee?

Han sahib.

Khidmutgar ja,o hath moonh dhone ka panee la,o.

Miswak munjun de.

Dekh keta din churha

Khoodawund • ghuree teen ek aya hue.

Kuhar, ek jora kupra la.o.

Kortee our topee ko iharo.

Bal buna,o.

Moze kanton sumet humen do.

Ghore pur zeen bandhee hue ki nuheen?

Garee tueyar kura,o.

Nu nu munu kuro. Suwaree ke ghore ko hazir kuro. Has the gun fired? .

Yes, Sir.

Boy, go bring water to wash with.

Hand me the toothbrush and powder.

See what o'clock it is.

Your honour! three bells or so.

Bearer, bring me a suit of clothes.

Brush my coat and hat.

Dress my hair.

Give me my boots and spurs.

Is the horse saddled or not?

Getthe carriage, coach, &c. ready.

No, countermand it.

Or ler the saddle horse.

Humare sath tomhen You must go along jana hoga.

Ubtuk sahib ootha hue? bahur guya hue.

Toom ko koochh muuloom hue ki kuhan guya?

Monit muuloom nu- I don't know. heen.

Hazree tueyar hue?

Han şahib ub kurta hoon.

Khoob khuolta panee la,o.

Cha buna o.

Humen do ek piyalu, Give me a cup, milk, doodh, misree, ek unda, mukhun, rotee, chumcha, moolee, halim, morubbu.

our kuhar zuroor hue.

Ek din ka bhara kya What is the fare per hue?

with me.

Is your master up yet? Han sahib pur kuheen Yes Sir, but is gone out somewhere.

> Do you know where he is gone to?

Is breakfast ready?

Yes, Sir, I am now making it.

Bring the water boiling hot.

Make the tea.

sugar, an egg, butter, bread, a spoon, raddish, cresses, jam.

Ek palkee (ya bocha) I want a palkee, (or a chair) and bearers.

day?

Seedha age chule ja o.

Duehne phiro.

Ba en (hath) phiro.

Juldee chulo.

Ahiste zuru chulo.

Wuhan ja o, —burhke

Eehan ruho jub tuk ki hum phir awen.

ja o, -khure ruho.

Isee dum hum * phir awenge.

Ruho, ruho, palkce neechhe rukh do.

Tomhara şaḥib ghur men hue?

Palkee ootha, o our chulo ghur ko.

Is guthree ko le chulo ghur.

Palkee men se ye cheezen onha lo.

Hum khana kha enge . — sahib ke yuhan,

Go straight forwards.

Turn to the right.

Turn to the left (hand.) Go fast.

Go a little slower.

Go there,—go on—stop.

Stop here till I return.

I wall be back immediately.

Run on before, and enquire if Mr —— be at home or not.

Stop, stop, put the chair down.

Is your master at home?

Take up the chair and go home.

Carry this bundle home.

Hand these things out of the chair.

I dine at Mr ——'s, you must go there

* This hum can only be defended on the plea, that as the natives, in this respect, hum us, we must in return hum them.

tomhen sipuhree ko wuhan jana hoga,

Ao moze cotaro.

Koochh shurab panee la.o.

Panee khoob thundha kuro.

Jo khana tueyar hue, to la,o.

Khana mez pur ay Thoree rotee la o. Saf chhooree kanta do.

Humen do numuk, raee, mirch, achar, sirka, shurab, panee, gosht, saf basun.

Burtun ootha leja o. Jhilmil oothao.

Duwat, qulum, kaghuz la,o.

Yih khut - şahib ke pas leja o, uor juwab ke liye buethe ruho.

bee - ke yihan,

in the afternoon.

Come take off my boots. Bring some wine and water.

Cool the water well.

Bring dinner, if ready.

Dinner is on the table. Bring some bread.

Give me a clean knife and fork.

Give me salt, mustard, pepper, pickles, vinegar, wine, water, meat, a clean plate. Take away the things.

Open the venetians. Bring pen, ink, and paper.

Carry this letter to Mr ----'s, and wait for an answer.

Is chichee ko leja o Bre- Take this one to Mrs. -'s, and if she be jo bahur gu een ho, to coske durban ke hath de a.o.

Woh gora kuon hue.
Woh kiska ghora?
Yih kiska ghur hue?
Palkee ka hookm de.
Hum ko dak ke ghur
men puhooncha.o.

Bunarus tuk dak ka muḥṣool keta?

Jub dak wala yuhan awe tuo poochho ki humare waste ko ee khut hue ki nuheen.

Humara nam toom jante ho?

Han sahib Pin hue.
Nuheen, bewuqoof, nam humara Fin hue, uo likha hoo,a hue isee kaghuz pur ki dak ka piyadu dak ke sahib ko dikhlawe.

Tom kya chahte ho?

out, deliver it to the porter.

What European is that? Whose horse is that? Whose house is this? Order the chair.

Take me to the post-office.

How much is the postage to Bunarus?

When the postman comes, enquire if he have any letters for me or not.

Do you know my name?

Yes, Sir, it is Pin.

No, blockhead, my name is Fin, and is written on this paper, that the postman may shew it to the postmaster.

What do you want?

Toom se muen koochh mangta nuheen hoon, pur ek pueyam lekur aya.

Pokarke bolo, tuo hum sonenge.

Choop ruho.

Ruh ruhke uor bolbol jooda kur, bolo, tuo hum sumjhenge toomharee bat.

Toomhara nam kya?
Toom kuhan ruhte ho?
Humara sulam upne şahib se kuho.

Tom jante os admee ko?

Poochho to cos se toom kya chahte ho.

Kuho cos se ki tcom ub chule ja o, kul fujur pher a o.

Jud pubcoache tud hum ko khubur do.

Is ko Hindoostanee zuban men kya kulite ho? I have nothing to ask from you, but have come with a message.

Speak loud, and I shall hear you.

Hold your tongue.

Speak slowly and distinctly, I shall then understand you.

What is your name?
Where do you live?
Give my compliments to your master.

Do you know that man?

Ask him what be wants.

Tell him to go away, and call to-morrow morning.

When he comes, let me know.

What do you call this in Hindoostanee?

Chuokee ke neeche se ootha la o oos kaghuz ko

Humaree ghuree mez pur rukho.

Aj din phurchha hue?

Nuheen, sahib, budlee hue, bulki burusta hue.

Dekho asman koochh khoola hue.

Koochh ek saf hone luga.

Bichhana bichhaya hue?

Ubtuk nuheen kiya. Musihree khoob jharo jo muchhur nu ruhe.

Jotee ko uchhee turuh saf kuro.

Hum ko buree fujur juga o.

Chiragh jula, o.

Buttee boojha,o.

Durwazu bund kuro.

Bring that paper from under the chair.

Lay my watch on the table.

Is it a fair day?
No, Sir, it is cloudy,
nay it rains.

See if the weather be cleared up.

It is about clearing a little.

Is my bed made?

I have not yet made it. Brush the curtains well, that no musquitoes may remain.

Clean my shoes well.

Wake me very early in the morning.

Light the lamp.

Blow out the candle.

Shut the door.

Koochh duehne hath dubo.

Do teen qudum ba en surko.

Ek do qudum huto.

Doshmun hutne luge.

Ue sipahee toom ne kuha ki kul we admee awenge.

Kin ne yih bat toom se kuhee.

Admee oon ka bola ki we fujur ko awenge.

Hum ne woh cheez jo ap ne bhejee on ko dikhla ee uor urz kee jo bat ap ne mojh se kuhee.

Sono: khidmutgar se poochho ki toom ne hazree tueyar kee hue ya nuheen?

Ue şuḥaf kul hum ne . toom ko ḥookm giya Meer Husun kee Move a little to the right.

Move a few steps to the left.

Fall back a step or two.

The enemy are about retreating.

O soldier, you said those men would come to-morrow.

Who told you this?

Their man said, that they would come in the morning.

The thing which you sent I shewed him, and represented what you had told me.

Hear: ask the khidmutgar whether he hath prepared the breakfast, or no? Well bookbinder, yes-

Well bookbinder, yesterday I gave you an order to bring Musnuwee lane ko, toom nu lae is liye toomharee ghuffut se humara khulul hoo,a.

Hum ne cosko kuha tha kul, too fulane ke bagh men jakur fulane malee se gcolab jamun thore se mangla iye, wooh to nu guya humare
kuhne kee kya purwa hue cosko?

Meer Husun's Musnuwee, you have not brought it; by this, through your neglect, I have been interrupted.

I said to him yesterday, having gone to such a one's garden, beg a few rose-apples from such a gardener, he did not go; what obedience does he pay to my orders?

Ne can only occur with an active preterite verb. To this rule there are exceptions, as ne never can occur with the imperfect, neither can it with some few verbs, such as bolna, lana, bhoolna. If the sign of the accusative be not in the sentence, the verb is governed by the object; if ko be in the sentence, the verb partakes of a neuter state, remaining totally unchanged. Some words may be compounded with verbs at pleasure. For instance, urz, fikr, which may either be governed or remain compounded; as muen ne urz kee, muen ne fikr kee, might with equal propriety be kiya; the sentence being the accusative. A native would imagine the scholar a sorry Jargonist were he not to use ne when necessary, or make use of it improperly, and the knowledge of this may be productive of much benefit. If a servant were to say to his master, muen ne diva; he would probably conceive, that what had been sent was not delivered: the master might naturally desire the reasons: the servant would persist, in the very same words, on its having been delivered; which the other, through ignorance, would construe the reverse: the master becoming incensed, the servant frightened, blows or abuse might follow. Thus, a good servant may be lost for having performed what he had been ordered, and whose only fault was, speaking too grammatically; or, in other words, above his employer's comprehension. The ne will be met with, as well as the preposterous concord of preterites with their objects, in many parts of these sheets, which from every novice ought to meet with due attention, that this intricate, but essential portion of Hindoostanee Grammar may be duly acquired.

Kuhar, Muhra, Bhoee, &c.

Kyoon muhre toom kis ke eehan kuharee kurte ho uor kud ke a,e ho Kulkutte men?

Tomhare sath ketne uor kuhar huen?
We sub nire tomhare des bha ee huen ki nate rishte ke?

Kuonsee zat kuharon kee uesee hue ki ziyadu roopiyu uoron se cehan kumawe?

Hur ek mas kee kuma ee se toom log kya kurte ho?

Upne pas toom poonjee kur ruk, te ho ki mas mas upne des ko bhejte ho?

Humare yuhan toom log upne ap ko buehra (ya bearer) kahe ko kuhlate ho?

A Chairman, or a Palkee Bearer.

Come! chairman, in whose service are you, and when did you arrive in Calcutta?

How many other chairmen are with you?

Are they all your countrymen only, or your relations?

What tribe of chairmen is there here who make more money than the rest?

What do you do with

What do you do with every month's carnings?

Do you preserve it as a stock by you, or remittitevery month to your own country? With us why do you term yourselves buehra, (or bearer)?

Kya aj tuk toom ko kisoo ne nuheen kuha hue, ki bearer humaree zuban men buree neech bat hue, juesa qoolee ya muzdoor, uo ki buehra oosko kuhte jo soonta nuheen?

Le ub chule ja o.

What! has no one yet told you, that bearer is in our tongue a very low word, like slave, or drudge, and you know that buehra means a deaf man?*

Well, now walk off.

Surishtedar ya uhli kar molkee.

Kyoon jee toom malgozaree ke kam se koochh waqif ho? Puṭṭa kis ko kuhte huen uor qubooliyut kya hue? Rue uor ruebundee ka A Revenue or other Civil Officer.

Pray,my friend, are you well versed in the revenue department?
What do you call a lease, and its counterpart what?
Have you any other

* So very tenacious are the meanest Indians of rank, title, and respectability, that it is a known fact the chairmen here have an idea, that bearer is an appellation little below lord or duke. This is the mystic charm which makes them detest their own word kuhar.

uor ko,ee nam hue?

Rue ke burabur jo uor ko ee nam yad nu ho tuo cos ka uḥwal buyan war kuho?

Malgozar jo huen so qistbundee pur surkaree muhsool puhoonchate huen ya ekuthan?

Is turuḥ ka khiraj uksur fuṣl ke age beech meṇ ya peechhe puhoonchta hue?

Muafee yuune lakhirajee zumeen se koochh bhee hoozoor men dakhil hota hue ya nuheen, peshkush ya tabuidaree ke roo se?

Purgunon kee tushkhees age kuon kurta tha? names for the rate or rent adjustment of lands?

Should you not recollect another word for the rate, you can explain the nature of it in detail?

Do the farmers pay the revenue by instalments to government, or in the gross?

Does this species of revenue commonly come in before, or during, or after the crop?

Does free land or that not assessed pay any thing at all to Goyernment, or not, by way of acknowledg-'ment?

Who formerly settled the assessment of the several districts? Qanoongo uor puṭwaree men, kya furq hue?

Kisee kaghuz puttur ka nam baz-namu hue, uor cos kee muunee kya?

Dur een wila jud kisee zumeendar pur mohussil chhootte huen, tulubanu lugta hue ki nuheen, uo kis qudr?

Moofussul men mostajir ko nankar miltee hue ki zumeendar ko?

Jis kaghuz men kisee ganw kee zumeen, talab, baghat, siwanu wughuere ka uhwal likha hoo,a ho to is ka kya nam hue? Moowazinu ya Ruqbu-bundee kuhlate huen.

In what respects do the county register and town or villageclerks differ?

Is any paper called a deed of abdication or rejection, and what does it imply?

In these days when constables are put over any landholder, is dunage exacted or not, and to what amount?

In the country, do the contracting farmers or landholders receive the sustenance money?

What is the name of the paper which contains an account of the tanks, orchards, boundaries, &c. of any village? They call it mowazinu, &c.

Uch-chha, ub tomhen rokhşut hue.

Monshee.

Kuho sahib, toomharee danist men Hindee zuban ki Farsee kuonsee ziyadu moshkil hue?

Hindee ke ishkal men koochh shoobuh nuheen, lekin Farsee se ziyadu durkar, isee waste hum muqdoor bhur seekhte huen—toom hum ko sikhla sukoge?

Bhula toomhare khiyal men kuho to oos shukhs ke waste jo moo,amilu ya surokar rukhta hue kya awam kya khuwas se Hindoostan bhur men in dono zubanon men se yuune Farsee uor Hindee

Good, you are at liberty to withdraw.

Secretary, or Teacher.. -

Pray, Sir, in your opinion, whether is the Hindoostanee or Persian language the most difficult?

As to the difficulty of the Hindee there can be no doubt, but it is more necessary than the Persian; we therefore are striving to learn it. Can you teach us?

Do say, in your idea, for the person who has transactions of all sorts, with both the high and the low throughout Hindoostan—of these two languages, viz. the Hindoostanee and Parsian, which is the kuonsee poorzuroor

Sirf Farsee uor Urubee ulfaz jo rekhte men shamil huen con ko jo poochho tuo chundan doshwar nuheen, pur tances uor tuzkecr bumui tutuluffooz meezi thenth Hinduwee ko duryaft kurna yihan tuk sunglakh hue jo aj tuk kisce se bu khoobee hasil nu hoo a uor nuhoga kyoon kur ki muharut ilmee goyaek tilismee chiree a hue ki iyon iyon ko ce ose pukra chahe tyon tyon wooh kafir hath se door bhagtee.

Hindee zuban kee tuhseel ke liye toomharee kya sulah Jue, most requisite?

In regard to the mere Arabic and Persian words which occur in the mixed languages, they are not so very difficult, but the masculine and feminine, with the discrimination pronunciation in the pure Hinduwee, to learn them is so arduous a task, that no one as yet hath properly acquired it, nay, never will, for perfection in science is like an enchanted bird, which the more one tries to catch, the farther it flies from him.

In acquiring the Hindoostance tongue, what is your advice, saf kuho to ki mueņ os ke bu moojib zuban sikhoon our toomharee is bat ka humeshu iḥsanmund ruhoonga.

Kojee øhdedar.

Kuho myan toom kuon pultun ke ho?

Tomhen koochh muuloom hue ki oos kee bhurtee puehle kuhan hoo ee thee?

Aj kul toomharee tumam pultun yuhan tu eenat hue ki uor kuheen?

Tom kya ohdurukhte ho uor kubse ohdedar hoo,e?

Toom se (or uese) ohdedaron ke tabui humare yuhan ke lushkur men ketne juwan uksur ruhte huen? speak candidly, that I may learn the language accordingly, and remain eternally obliged to you on that account.

An Officer.

Pray, Sir, to what regiment do you belong?
Do you know where it was first raised?

Is the whole regiment on duty here or not?

What office do you hold, and how long have you been an officer?

Under such officers as you in our army, how many men are generally placed?

Jud tom kuheen dihat men jao tuleenatee pur woh shukhs ya hakim jis ke yuhan tomharee chuokee puhru ruhta hue so toom ko koochh deta hue kudhee ki nuheen?

Toomharee shuruḥ kya hue toomhen mah bu mah pooree miltee hue ki nuheen?

Kuho to jis wuqt ko ee toomhare sipahiyon men se kisoo ruueyut pur koochh zoolm kure tub toom is ka kya fikr kurte ho jo phir uesee hurukut hone nu pawe?

Jo tomhare ruhte kuee ek admee kee turuf se surkar ke khuzane pur daka purta tuo toom muqdoor bhur dukueton ko

When you are stationed any where in the country, does the person or magistrate where you are on duty, ever make you a present of any thing or not?

What is your pay, and do you receive the whole monthly or not?

Well, when any of your soldiers is guilty of any oppression on the country people, what steps do you take to prevent such an offence again?

If in your presence several people were to attack the treasure of government, would you, to the utmost of your power, jeete jee pukurte ki troont durobust ko mardalte?

Fujur se puhur bhur sipahiyon, ka puhru ruhta hue, ya ki fujur se do puhur tuk?

Jo bat hum ne kuhee hue toom se so toomhen hur soorut se saf muuloom ho ee ki nuheen? juwab dene men kooch h chinta mut kuro jo ee ho be luga o kuho hum hurgiz boora nu manenge.

Khuer ub ja iye.

Khansaman ya Khidmutgar.

Somo to tomhara nam kya hue? uor upne saḥib ka bhee nam butla,o. seize the robbers alive, or would you kill the whole on the spot?

Does a soldier's continuance on guard last from sun rise till nine o'clock, or till twelve o'clock?

Do you clearly understand all that I have told you or not? in answering me be not in the least apprehensive, speak whatever you please without reserve, I will not take it in the least amiss.

Well, you may now go.

A waiting servant, But-'ler, or Steward.

Pray what is your name? let me know also your master's name. Kud se cos sahib ke cehan nuokur ruhe ho?

Toomhara wutun kuhan hue uor eehan se ketee door hoga?

Log uksur wuhan jate huen khooshkee kee rah ki turee kee?

Bharee jins cos mcolk men kya kya hotee hue? uor kis cheez kee ziyadu pueda ish hue?

Toomhare ma bap jeete huen ki nuheen, uor toom kudhee jate ho upne logon kee molaqat ke liye?

Tomhen koochh khubur hue ki tamba eehan ke bazar men kis bha o bikta hue?

Kya toom etee bat nuheen kuh suko ki ek puese ka tamba fueHow long have you been in that gentleman's service?

Where is your native country, and how far may it be hence?

Do people in general go there by land or water?

What is the most important article of trade in that country, and what things are produced in greatest abundance there?

Are your friends alive or not, and do you ever go to see your friends?

Do you know at what rate copper sells in the market here?

What, cannot you even say that one penny's worth of copper will sa bhur hoga ki nuheen?

In dinon toom jante ho ki ek ser doodh kete ko bikta hue shuhur men, uor bahur ketne ko. of a penny or not?

Do you know now adays at what rate a quart of milk sells in the city and in the

be the weight or size country, for how much?

Bus ub toom ja,o.

You may now depart.

When the reader is able to analyse and comprehend the foregoing dialogues on grammatical principles, he may then safely venture upon my large Collection, from which, and the Exercises in these sheets, he will quickly attain a facility of speaking the Hindoostanee on all occasions. The word yuhan, here, is so variously pronounced yihan, eehan, ihan, and even hian, that I sometimes let it pass, for obvious reasons as eehan, &c.

EXERCISES.

THE subsequent verbal, and free translations, will do more to unfold the idiom and syntax of the Hindoostanee to beginners, than a volume expressly written on the subject. Whoever shall persist for a few months, with other stories or extracts, in this manner, will not only acquire an extensive stock of words, but a great facility of producing extempore the most accurate, if not elegant, English versions, from any portion of a Hindoostanee work, and vice versa, as more particularly illustrated by the 9th exercise. A — is placed to represent any particle, which cannot well be translated, like ne, &c. that the reader may be able to follow every word, with ease and advantage, as he proceeds through the whole of the exercises.

I.

Do lurke bhookhe piyase kisee ke yuhan gu e, cosne hur ek ke hu oor kee azma ish ke waste ek turuf mez pur koochh shurab uor misree rukh dee, uor doosree turuf thora thundha panee uor rookhee rotee. Uql-mund lurke ne rotee uor panee se upne pet ko bhura uor piyas ko bojhaya, uhmuq lurke ne shurab kee lal rungut uor misree kee mithas jo dekhee, buhoot rughbut se conko piya uor khaya, pur fayudu koochh nu hoo,a, bulki oskee piyas ziyadu hoo,ee, mugur upne pet ko khalee huwa se bhura hoo a paya, lekin upnce chook ka elaj koochh nu kur suka, kyoon ki wuqt goozur guya tha. Such hue ki buhoot cheezen buzahir khoobtur huen, uor batin men hasil onka thora hue, chonanchi phoolna goolab ka, sath rung uor boo ke, ugurchi khoshnoma hue, lekin phoolna kupas ka insan ke hugq men duhchund moofeed hue.

Two children hungry, thirsty, some one's house went, he—each one's abilities of trial for sake, one side table on, some wine and sugar place gave, and other side, a little cold water and plain bread. The wise boy—bread and water with, his own belly—filled and thirst—quenched, the silly boy—the wine's red colour and the sugar's sweetness when saw, much delight with, them—drank and ate, but good any not was, nay his thirst more by came, though his belly—mere air with filled—found, but own mistakes remedy any not make could, because the time past gone had. True it is, that many things apparently excellent are, and interior in produce their little is, for instance, the blooming rose of, with colour and fragrance—although beautiful is, yet the flowering cotton of, mankind of respect in, ten fold beneficial is.

Two hungry and thirsty boys went to a person's house, who, in order to try their several abilities, placed before them on one side of the table some wine and sugar, and on the other side, a little plain bread and cold water. The intelligent boy filled his belly and quenched his thirst with the bread and water, while the foolish youth, attracted by the red colour of the wine and the sweetness of the sugar, eat and drank them with great avidity, but without the smallest advantage. On the contrary, his thirst increased, while he found his belly filled with mere air; but he could not rectify his error, because the opportunity was lost. The fact is, that many things apparently are excellent, yet their intrinsic value is small indeed; thus, although the rose blooms with all the charms of fagrance and beauty, still the flowering of the cotton tree is ten times more beneficial to mankind.*

II.

Jo dana lurka hue, upnee kitab upne ghur men be kuhe purhta hue, uor lurka nadan upnee kitab ko khel ke waste taq pur dal rukhta hue, ugurchi oske ma bap is bud chal se huzar munu kuren. Puehla lurka os useel ghore kee turuh hue, ki jis ke waste kora zuroor nuheen, uor doosra os khuchre monh-zor ke burabur hue jo lugam nuheen manta. Ghuruz ek lurka jo such poochho to goya zomboor ke shuhd ke peechhe hue, uor oske nesh kee turuf nuzur nuheen kurta, uor doosra nacheez teetree ke peechhe duorta hue, uor yoonheen upnee mihnut ko sirf oske rungeen puron pur burbad deta hue.

Whoever wise lad is, his book own house in without bidding read does, and a boy ignorant own book—play on account, a shelf on tossing place doth, although his mother father this bad conduct from, thousand prohibitions make. The first youth that noble steed's manner is, that whom for whip necessary not is, and the second that mule headstrong to like is, which bridle not obeys. In short, the one boy, if truth you ask, then as if bee's honey after is, and its sting towards sight not makes, and the other, worthless butterfly after running is, and thus his labour—merely its painted wings after, on the wind giving is.

* The moral is obvious, that one's own language, as the most useful, should be first cultivated and well understood; ergo, the vernacular tongues of the countries we visit as rational beings, should be attained before we commence their learned languages.

A boy who is wise, reads his book at home without orders, and an ignorant youth, for the sake of play, throws his book on the shelf, although his parents forbid such misconduct a thousand times. The former lad resembles the noble steed for whom no whip is required, and the latter is like that headstrong mule which does not obey the bridle. In short, one boy seems in reality to be in pursuit of the bee's honey, regardless of its sting; while the other hies after a worthless butterfly, and thus, for its painted wings alone, he gives all his labour to the winds.*

* Many military men, who, comparatively speaking, can

III.

Ek bura suodagur tha, coske do bete the thore dinon men, woch suodagur murguya, bap kee duolut dono ne bant lee, ek ne do teen muheene men upnee sub duolut coradee boore admiyon kee sulah se. Doosre ne suodaguree ikhtiyar kee, bhule admee ke kuhne se, ek fuqcer hoo,a, doosra duolutmund. Pus jo ko ee bhule kee bat manega coska bhula hoga, uor jo ko ee boore kee manega coska boora hoga juesa in donon ka hoo.a.

A great merchant was, his two sons were, few days in the merchant died, father's property both—share took, one—two three months in, his own whole wealth dissipated bad men of counsel by, the other traffic selection made, good men of advising from, one a beggar became, the other wealthy. Thus, whoever the have little to do with the Persian, have wasted days upon it, that might have produced much more solid advantage, had they been devoted to Hindoostanee, since hardly one in a hundred can expect situations, in which the learned languages of India are requisite, and even then the Hindoostanee is incispensable, for such obvious reasons, that he who runs may read.

be, and whoever wicked of (words) shall follow, his evil will be, as these two of was.

There was an opulent merchant who had two sons; the merchant died in a short space of time, and both divided their father's property between them. One of them in a few months dissipated the whole of his fortune, at the instigation of bad men, the other engaged in commerce by the advice of good people. The first became a beggar, the second, a rich man. Thus, whoever shall follow the counsel of the good, will prosper, and he who lends an ear to the wicked, will not succeed, as in these two examples here.*

IV.

Ek lurke ne tufawoot se dekha ki chumun ke kinare pur ek phool nihayut khoosh rung

* Had a taste for literary improvement sooner met with but a small share of the countenance that hath too often been given, by example, to dissipation, pride, ostentation, and folly in India, that country would have long ago produced better Orientalists than it can even yet do, and many more men able to converse with the natives, as gentlemen, in their several vernacular tongues.

phol ruha hue, jub lurka oske nuzdeek puhoncha to oos gool kee khooshboo uor rung ne yuhan tuk loobhaya ki be ikhtiyar ooske torne kee khwahish coske dilmen pueda hoo ee, joheen upna hath coske putton lug puhonchaya woheen osko buhot se kante paton ke neeche nuzur ae, mare duhshut ke, hath khuench liya uor khalee hath chula guya. Ittifaq-un coska chhota bha ee door se dekhta tha is bat ko duryaft kurguya, ugurchi comr men chhota tha pur dil ka bura, con kanton se nudura, nidhuruk phool tor liva, bulki sath coske ek phul bhee uesa tohfu hath aya ki jitna oos phool ke torne men dokh suha tha so bhee dil se bhola diya. Pus jo shukhs ki kanton ke dur se phool nu le suka oska dimagh kub moguttur hoo a uor kya phul cosne paya?

A child—distance from saw, that avenue's side on, a flower extremely well coloured bloom continuing is, when child its' vicinity arrived, then that blossom's fragrance and hue—here to allured, that without will, it's plucking of desire, his heart in created was, just as own hand its leaves to had conveyed, instantly him to a great many thorns, leaves beneath, sight came through fear—hand pulled back and empty handed went away. By chance his young brother far off seeing was this matter—conception made notwithstanding age in little was, but heart in big, those thorns of not afraid, boldly the flower plucked off, nay with it a fruit also so fine hand (to) came, that as much that flower's plucking in pain borne had, that even heart from forget made. Then whatever person, who prickles of fear from, blossom not take can, his senses when perfumed was and what fruit hath he got?*

A boy saw a very beautiful flower at the side of a walk; when he approached the place where it was, the fragrance and hue of the flower were such, as to create an irresistible desire in his breast to pluck it. Just as his hand reached the leaves, he discovered a number of thorns under them, and, struck with fear, he withdrew his hand, and went away without his object. The boy's younger brother by chance perceived at a distance what had past; and although he was very little, having a stout heart, he was not afraid of the prickles. He boldly plucked the flower, and along with it obtained also a very fine fruit, which soon made him forget the pain he suffered in procuring it. When a person is deterred from possessing a rose by the appearance of its thorns, his organs of smelling will never be regaled by its fragrance, nor will he derive the least advantage from any fruit, under similar circumstances.*

These interrogatives become idiomatical negatives in the Hindoostanee, and should be recollected as such by the learner.

V.

Do lurke nuo juwan ek hee sath ilm seekhne luge, ek lurka conh men buhcot uch-chha nekbukht tha, costad jo subuq cose purha deta so yad kurleta, uor upnee kitab upne ghur men purha kiya kurta. Dosra ghafil bura shureer tha, jo upne hum-comr kee minnut pur hunsa kurta, uor humeshu yih bat upne hum-muktub se kuha kurta, "too gudha hue," cose uksur yih juwab diya kurta, "yar thore dinon men dekha chahiye kuon ho." Akhir imtihan ka roz an puhconcha conh donon ko ilm ke durya men puerna pura, dana lurke ne is uhmuq ko buhcot peechhe juhalut ke girdab men, shurm se doobte hoo e chhora, uor pookarne luga. Ue yar! jo toomhare khiyal men be-wooqoof nuzur ate huen, so we uksúron ke nuzdeek uglmund ho niklenge, uor jo uese wuqt toom ne seekha to toomhare kam nuheen ane ka, la hasil hue. Ugur upne hum-jolee pur ub hum bhee thuthe maren to humaree baree hotee, mowafiq is musul ke, ki jo jeete so hunse, lekin dana, on ke nuzdeek nihayut bu eed hue, kya dostee uor kya uql se, uesee halut men ufsos kee juguh tuz heek kurna. Ub muen upnee bat ko muoqoof kuroonga, is nuscehut uor kuhawut se ki hona ek khoobee ka der kur bihtur hue nuhone se uor jitnee juldee ho suke boore kam ko chhorkur bhule kee turuf ana uch-chha huc.

* The rose may represent the flowery Persian; the ruit, a useful tongue like the Hindoostanee; and the thorns, such difficulties as must at first occur in the acquisition of either.

Two boys—young, one very society (in) science a learning began, one boy them of very good well-disposed was, the master, whatever lesson him to read gave, it remembrance made, and his book own house at, to read made a practice. The other inattentive very wicked was, who his comrade's labour at to laugh used, and always this observation his own school-fellow on to repeat used, "thou an ass art." He him to generally this answer to give used,

Friend! few days in to see behoves who may be. At last trial's day having come arrived, them both to science's sea in to swim behoved. the wise boy-this fool-much behind ignorance's whirlpool in, shame through sinkingleft, and to exclaim began. O friend! who your opinion in foolish sight coming are, the same they generality's presence wise turn out, and what such time you-have learned, it your use not coming of, without effect is. If own companion at, now we also jokes could crack, then our turn would be, according this saying to, that who wins may laugh, but wise men among very remote is both friendship, and also reason from, such situation in, regret stead ridicule to make, now I own remark-finished will make this advice and proverb with, that being one good of, late, better is, not being than, and the more speed be can, bad conduct having left, good towards to come, proper is.

Two youths began to study together, one was a good prudent young man, who read his book at home and acquired whatever his master desired him; the other was an idle wicked boy, who always laughed at his companion's labour, and used to say to him, what a fool you are! on which his school-fellow commonly replied, we shall see by and bye who is the greatest. At last the day of trial came, when they were both obliged to swim in the ocean of science; the wise boy left the blockhead far behind him, sinking through shame in the whirlpool of ignorance. The promising scholar then exclaimed, My friend! I think fools in your estimation will turn out wise men in other peoples' eyes, and that you have now learned this fact, when perhaps too late. Were I inclined to laugh at the folly of a comrade, it would now be my turn, agreeably to the proverb, "he may laugh who wins;" but it is inconsistent with both friendship and wisdom, to substitute ridicule for regret, on such occasions; I shall therefore conclude with beseeching you to recollect, that "better late than never," and to turn over a new leaf as soon as possible. *

* Were my young military readers aware of all the fatal consequences which may yet ensue from their ignorance or deficiency in the Hindoostanee, they would here anticipate that day of trial, which may otherwise terminate in the loss of honour, fortune, and life, and set seriously to work immediately; since to attempt to direct and command men advantageously in the hour of peril, with whose language one is not well acquainted, is a task, which even presence of mind in other respects cannot always accomplish with any prospect of success.

VI.

Do shukhs bahum hokur nikle ki kisee door des men ja ruhiye, thore dinon ke beech ek molk men ja puhonche. Ek ne duryaft kiya ki diljumu ee uor khoobee ke sath jo yuhan ruhiye to zuroor hue ki puhle yuhan ke ruhneharon kee bhakha seekhiye, ghuruz con ne seekhee, doosra itna mughroor tha ki uwamonnas kee zuban ko hiqarut se nu seekha, sirf durbaree uor alimon kee zuban tuhseel kee. Quzakar buud ku ee burus ke dono kisee bustee men ae, wuhan kee bhakha uor oos moolk kee ek thee, pur wuhan ke ruhne walon ne hungamu muchakur ghuer moolk ke hakimon ko qutl kurdala tha. We dono mosafir jode jode mukanon men bazar men the ki conheen khoniyon ne conhen pukra uor ulug lejakur hur ek se poochhne luge ki toomhara yuhan kya kam hue? Jis ne mohawuru uwam ka seekha tha khoobee se juwab diya œsko œnhon ne sulamut chhora, uor dosre mosafir ne jo sirf hakimon heen kee zuban se juwab diye, cos umboh ne jul kur khufgee se sir coska kat dala.

Two men together being set out, that a certain distant country in should go stay, a few days of space in, a country in having gone, arrived. One recollection made that, satisfaction and welfare with if here would dwell, then necessary is that first here of inhabitants of dialect, should learn, in short he—acquired (it), the other so proud was, that vulgar of language -contempt from not learned, only the court and literati's speech acquisition made. Chance by, after some years—both same village in came, that where of tongue, and that country's one was, but there of residents—tumult having made strange country's magistrates—execution performed. These two travellers separate places seized and aside having taken each one of asking began, that your here what business is? Who-dialect vulgar of, learned had, propriety with answer gave, him—they—safety (in) left, and the other traveller-who only the magistrates of tongue in reply gave, that crowdinflamed anger with head his cut off.

Two travellers set out together to live in a distant country; one of them found, that to remain there with safety, satisfaction and pleasure, it was necessary first to learn the common language of the inhabitants, and he did so accordingly. The other was too proud to acquire the vulgar tongue, he therefore despised it, and studied the language of the court and learned alone. By chance a few years afterwards, they both met in a village, where the people had risen upon the foreign magistrates of the place, and destroyed them. In their way from this massacre, they observed our two travellers in different parts of the market, and interrogated them separately as to their business there. He who spoke the vulgar tongue, answered them so mildly and clearly, that they allowed him to depart safe and sound; the other traveller, however, could only speak to them in the native language of the very magistrates who had been murdered, which enraged the populace to such a degree, that they cut off his head.*

* This is so possible and probable, that a resident in Turkey will do well to learn the Turkish speech before he dabbles in mere Arabic lore, lest an insurgent rabble make him shorter by the head, for not keeping an intelligible tongue in it. A heedless youth may affect to treat this tragedy as a farce; but he may yet find his self all in the wrong, when acting a comedy of errors on the stage of real life in British India, unless he now heeds the moral as he ought, and arms in good time against the risk of future mishaps.

VII.

Nuql hue, ki ek kishtee men do shukhs suwar hoo,e, ek con men muntiqee tha, doosra puerak. Muntiqee ne puerak se poochha, kuho yar toomne koochh ilm muntiq ka bhee seekha hue ki nuheen, wooh bola, ki muen ne ubtuk muntiq ka nam bhee nuheen soona, seekhne ka to zikr kya. Soonkur ufsos luga kurne, ki toom ne upnee adhee comr juhalut ke durya men doba ee. Itne men ek toofan numood hoo,a, puerak ne thutholee se muntiqee ko kuha, kuho sahib koochh puerna bhee ap ko ata hue ki nuheen, yih bola mootluq nuheen, phir cosne huef khakur kuha, ki toomne upnee saree comr burbad kee.

A story is, that a boat in, two people seated were, one them of a logician was, the other a swimmer, the logician—swimmer of asked, say friend you—any science logic of even learned have or not, he said, that I—as yet logic's name even not have heard, acquiring of then mention what, having heard, regret began to make, that you, your half life ignorance's sea in have sunk. Such (discourse) in, a storm appearing was, the swimmer—joking with logician to observed, say Sir, any swimming even you to coming is or not, he replied at all not, then he—sorrow feeling cried, then you, your whole life (to) the winds have given.

It is related, that two people were on board the same vessel, one of them was a logician, the other an expert swimmer. The logician addressed the swimmer thus, "Pray tell me, my friend, if you have also acquired the science of logic or not." He replied, I have not till this moment even heard of the name of logic, learning it therefore is out of the question entirely. When the enquirer heard this, he began to pity the other in these words: Alas! you have sunk the half of your life in the ocean of ignorance. On this a storm arose, the swimmer jocosely thus questioned the logician. Well, Sir, does your worship understand any thing of the art of swimming or not? He answered, I really know nothing at all about it. Then said the swimmer, heaving a profound sigh, you have indeed thrown away your whole life on the winds. *

* A profound Orientalist in India, without Hindoostance, might often be as unfortunate as the logician, if he were to

VIII.

Ek Padshah ne upne Wuzeer uor Meer-bukhshee se sulah-un poochha, mal uor lushkur ke jumu kurne men meree uul koochh kam nuheen kurtee, ugur mal jumu kuroon to lushkur nuheen ruhta, jo fuoj rukhoon to duolut nuheen ruhtee. Wuzeer ne urz kee, Khoodawund! duolut jumu keeje, jo fuoj nu ruhegee to koochh ncoqsan nuheen, kyoon ke, jub zuroor hogee rukh leejega. Jo meree bat ka ap ko bhurosa nu ho, to coskee yih duleel hue, ki ek burtun men thora shuhd rukhwadeeje, ubhee huzaron mukhiyan gird coske a jumu hongeen. Joheen shuhd ka basun rukhwaya, lakhon mukhiyan bat kurte oske gird a-liptiyan, tub osne kuha, ki, dekho huzrut, jo fidwee ne urz kiya tha, so ap ne dekha. Phir Meer-bukhshee ne kuha, ugur meree urz soono to fuoj rukhiye jo wuqt pur kam awe, cos wuqt mal hurgiz koochh fayudu nu kurega, ugur ap ko yuqeen nu ho to meree bat ko imtihan kur leeje, ek handee men shuhd rat ko is jugih rukhwa deeje, jo mukhi-confide in his learning alone to carry him over that extensive region, with honour and safety, through either the ordinary or extraordinary occurrences of life. yan cospur a-lugen, to meree bat jhooth hue, uor jo nuheen to such, coske kuhne pur rat ko shuhd ka basun jo rukhwaya, to ek mukhee bhee nu a ee. Khcolasu iska fih hue, jub upnee fuoj upne qubze se gu ee, phir rozi siyah men mal bhee khurch keejega to mooyussur wuesee nu hogee.

The following analysis of this eighth exercise, will serve as a most useful specimen for the Hindoostanee scholar, because I have endeavoured to blend the Oriental practice in this operation, as far as possible with our own. To make these completely assimilate is impossible; all therefore which we can expect is, that practical approximation which I have now attempted. In doing this, I employed four learned natives, and selected from their separate labours every thing which could aid the general design of the present exposition, without sacrificing either our or their notions of grammar too far to each other. To expect always uniformity in the construing or parsing a long sentence in any language, is, in fact, to look for consistency and perfection, where they probably never will be invariably found. The learner should not be surprised if his Moonshee objects to, or differs from, many parts of this analysis; since it is given rather as an imperfect specimen of what has been done, than as the faultless mode of what may be yet accomplished in Hindoostanee grammar. Lest the scholar prematurely and imprudently venture on grammatical disquisitions with his native teacher, I conceive it my duty to refer him to the Technical Terms in the Vocabulary, that he may not only acquire the words in question, but also learn to regulate his flights in Hindoostanee Philology among the natives, by the extent and quantity of his verbal plumage in that popular tongue.

Ek, one, an, a, ismi udud,* a numeral; but here tunkeer or nukiru, the indefinite article. Padshah, king, ism, a noun, fi ul ka fa il, the nominative of the verb. Ne, mazee mootu uddee ke fa il ka hurfi lazim, the active preterite's nominative's expletive, which, as it cannot be translated in English, has been expressed by a — in these sheets. It must be carefully discrimated from the negative nu, and the learner should always recollect, that ne throws every inflectible word into the inflexion. A little attention to the effects of this particle on nouns, and its occurrence, either expressed or understood, with the preterite of transitive verbs only, in the stories exhibited here, will soon make the subject plain enough to every capacity; especially if a proper reference be made occasionally to the remarks already made on this apparently puzzling, but easy and useful expletive. Upne, his, own, &c. zumeeri moshturuk, mostusurruf haluti izafut men, a general pronoun in the inflected genitive, termed by us reciprocal, reflective, or emphatic, and equivalent to the possessive adjective or genitive form of all such pronominal words. It is here introduced for coske, his, by a rule in both the Hindoostanee and Persian languages, which always requires the reflective pronoun, upna and khood, in the same member of a sentence after muen, &c. instead of mera, tera, coska, &c. This regimen will be met with so often, that the scholar cannot fail to discover very soon the nature of it in the course of his progress through this and other works. zeer, minister, ismi sifutee, mozaf mufool, a kind of concrete noun, agreeing with upne, and governed by se. Uor, and, hurfi utf, a conjunction, Meer-bukhshee, generalissimo, ismi sifutee morukkub, a compound concrete noun. Se, from, (with, to, of, at,) hurfi muunuwee moofrid, a simple postposition. sulah-un, deliberately, tumeez, an adverb, formed by the affix un in many Arabic words like qusd-un, purposely, uwwulun, firstly, &c. Poochha, asked, fiuli mazee motu uddee motluq wahidi mozukkuri muuroof, a transitive verb in the indefinite preterite masculine, singular number and active voice. The nominative to it is padshah, with its appropriate expletive ne, already explained. Mal, treasure, ismi jins, muutoof iluehi, an appellative noun, conjoined with the next substantive. Uor, * and, utf. Lushkur, army, ismi jins muutoof mozaf iluehi, an appellative noun, conjoined with the preceding and connected with the next, by-Ke, of, 's, hurfi muunuwee moofrid mootusurruf. ulamuti izafut, a simple inflected postposition, and the genitive sign. Jumu kurne, collection making, muşduri morukkub motuşurruf, inflected compound infinitive, or gerund. Men, in, hurfi muunuwee moofrid ulamuti zurf, a simple postposition, and a local or temporal sign. Meree, my, zumeeri motukullimi wahidi mowunnus haluti izafut men, the first personal pronoun in the feminine genitive singular, as a possessive or adjective form, agreeing with-uql, judgment, ismi mowunnusi suma ee, an arbitrary feminine noun. Koochh, any, (some, &c.) ismi tunkeer, an indefinite noun, like ek, though we would rather term it, in this place, zumeer or sifut, a pronoun or adjective. Kam, use, ism, and here the mufool, or accusative to the verb, as the sign ko is either understood, or the nom. is used for the accus. * Nuheen, not, hurfi nufee, a negative particle. Kurtee, makes, fiuli hal mowunnusi muuroof, the feminine present tense, active voice, in concord with the nom. ugl. Ugar; if hurfishurt a conditional conjunction, which requires the aorist or subjunctive. Mal, treasure, haluti fail burae mufool, the nominative used for the accusative, as illustrated in the note below. Juniu kuroon, collection would I make, fiuli morukkub mozaru motukullimi wahid, a compound verb in the aorist, first person singular. To, then, hurfi juza, the inferential subjunctive particle to ugur. Lushkur, army, haluti fail, nominative. Ruhta, remains, fiuli lazimee hal heen, not. mozukkur, a neuter verb in the present tense masculine, (to which hue is understood) to agree with lushkur. Jo, if, hurfi shurt a conditional conjunction. This like uor, and, other, is also a pronoun, to which the learner should always advert in those sentences where much of their explanation might depend on a recollection of this fact. Fuoj, army, ismi mowunnusi suma ee mufool, an arbitrary feminine noun in the accusative, whose ko is dropt. Rukhoon, I would, &c. keep, fiuli mozaru motuuddee motukullimi wahid, a transitive verb in the agrist first person singular. To, hursi juza. Duolut, riches, ismi jins mowunnusi qiyasee, a regular appellative feminine noun. Nuheen ruhtee, not remains, fiuli hal moowunnusi munfee, a negative present feminine; in concord with duolut. Wuzeer ne. the minister, both explained above. urz, representation, ismi mowunnusi suma ee mufool, an arbitrary feminine noun accusative. made, fiuli mazee motluq motuuddee mowunnusi wahid, a transitive verb in the indefinite preterite singular feminine, to agree with its mufool, accusative, urz. Kiya, kee a in the feminine should be kee ee, but one ee is dropt, tuhseeni tuluffoz ke waste, euphoniæ gratia. would subject the feminine genitive sign kee, and the feminine perfect, to great confusion, did not the context generally prevent it. It is a curious, and probably a peculiar fact, that transitive preterites rather assume the genders and numbers of their accusatives than nominatives, whence kee above, the nominative of which is wuzeer. Khoodawund, Sire, ismi monada hurfi nida muhzoof, a noun in the vocative whose sign is omitted, or, in other words, the nom. is used for the voc. Duolut, wealth. Jumu keeje, or keejiye, pray collection make, fi uli morukkub umri tuuzeemee, fa il mozmir, a compound verb in the respectful imperative, whose nominative is concealed. Jo, if, hurfi shurt a conjunction. Fuoj, the army, fail, nom. ruhegee, should not remain, fiuli mostuqbul mowunnusi gha ibi wahid, munfee, * a negative verb, in the third person singular feminine of the future. To koochh, then any. Nooqsan, injury, ism, noun. Nuheen, not, but the auxiliary hue, is, seems either expressed in, or understood to, this negative. Kyoon ke, because, hurfi tuuleel, an efficient particle. Jub, when, zurfi zuman burae shurt an adverb of time used conditionally. zuroor, necessary, sifut, an adjective. Hogee, will be, but here with zuroor, fiuli mostuquuli morukkub wahidi mowunnus, hurfi juza mooquddur, a compound verb in the future feminine singular, to which the inferential subjunctive particle is understood. This verb hona, is generally termed rabiti zumanee, a temporal conjunction, as what we consider substantive verbs are often called ruwabit connectors, or joiners, from the root rubt construction, &c. Jo, if. Meree bat, my observation, ismi jinsi mowunnus mozaf o

* Means a noun of number, as may be seen in the Vocabulary under ism, i, and udud, or noun, of, and number. Tunkeer and nukiru may be prosecuted in the same manner, as soon as the student finds a knowledge of the Hindoostanee technicals in Grammar very necessary.

* This word, having been already mentioned, requires no farther notice, a circumstance that will of course occur to many more, as the contrary practice would subject us to endless and useless repetitions, no less tiresome to the reader, than inconvenient for the limits of so small a work.

* This constantly happens, especially in short familiar sentences, or when the verb has a second case, and wherever a noun assimilates with a verb, as in the present instance, to form a species of simple verb, like kam-k. to avail, fikr-k. to make reflection, or to think, &c. in which the ko would prove very inconvenient. The learner will thus, in future, be able to reconcile the idea of mufool with the mere nominative of a noun.

* The Oriental mode of terming a verb munfee, negative, because connected with nufee, a negative, has no advantage that I can perceive; on the contrary, it tends to make a distinction where there is no real difference, and thus introduces an endless string of negative conjugations, which are the mere affirmatives repeated before or after a negative particle.

mgozaf iluehi, an appellative fem. noun, connected with meree in the possessive state. Ka, of, 's, hurfi muunuwee moofrid ulamut haluti izafuti ghuer mostusurruf kee, a simple postposition, and the uninflected sign of the genitive case, agreeing with bhurosa. Ap, you, (yourself, your worship,) zumeeri moshturuk tuuzeemee, the common respectful pronoun; but here equivalent to zumeeri mokhatub, the second personal. Ko, to, hurfi muunuwee moofrid o ulamut haluti mufool kee, a simple postposition and the sign of the accusative or dative. Bhurosa, confidence, ismi mozaf, fa il, a noun in the nom. connected with bat. Nuho, may not be, fiuli mozaru munfee wahidi gha ib, a negative verb aorist third person singular, contracted from nu-howe, like ho, ho,e, as detailed in the Verbal Table. To, then. cos, it, zumeeri gha ibi wahid motusurruf mozaf iluehi, the third inflected personal singular, forming the genitive case with-Kee, of, 's, as before, but here tanees men, in the feminine. Yih, this, ismi isharue qureeb haluti fa il wahid men, the proximate demonstrative in the nominative singular.*

* In Hindoostanee, every noun to which the genitive signs, ka, ke, kee; ra, re, ree; na, ne, nee, are affixed, is termed mozaf iluehi, and it

Duleel, proof, ismi wahid moowunnusi suma ee moosharun iluehi, moozaf, an arbitrary fem. noun, connected with both the remote and proximate demonstrative, though in Arabic sifuti mooshubbuh, a species of adjective. Hue, is, rabiti zumanee, the temporal conjunctive particle, which is not considered by the natives as a verb. Ki, that, kafi buyaniyu, the descriptive ki, which is of the utmost consequence in this language, as it frequently saves much circumlocution, though at other times it certainly appears to us more like a mere expletive. Ek, a, hurfi tunkeer, indefinite article. Burtun, a vessel, ismi jins muhdood, zurf, an appellative limited noun of reception. Men, in. Thora, a little, sifuti moofrid may either precede or follow the mozaf or governing noun; in the Persian, on the contrary, the mozaf must always precede the mozaf iluehi. Very little attention to this note will prevent the scholar's ever forgetting a matter which will otherwise often escape his memory. Duleel having been demonstrated by the isharu, yih, is here also termed mosharun iluehi, by the reciprocal effect which the Orientalists denote; by such words as fail, mufool; sifit, muosoof; izafut, mozaf; utf, muutoof; nida, monada, &c.

wahidi mozukkur, a simple adjective in the masculine singular. Shuhd, honey, ismi jins, muosoof, mufool, an appellative qualified noun in the accusative. Rukhwadeeje, pray cause to place, umri haziri moorukkub tuuzeemee mootu uddee bilghuer, zumeer ap cos men fail, a compound causal verb in the respectful imperative second person, having the pronoun ap as the nominat. noticed under keeje. Ubhee, just now, zurfi zumani takeedee, an emphatic adverb of time, compounded of 'ub, now, and hee, just, every, the. This particle hee, ee, in the plural heen, een, is of the utmost importance, and should be carefully observed wherever it occurs, that it may not be confounded with the postposition e, en, in moihee ko diya, he gave to me indeed, to my very self; conheen ko diya, he gave to their selves, to these very men. Huzaron, thousands, ismi udud jumu tusreefee burae haluti fail, a numeral used in the inflexion for the nominative plural, on principles already detailed. Mukhiyan, flies, ismi mowunnus haluti fa il jumu men, a feminine noun in the nominative plural. Gird, round, hurfi muunuwee moorukkub, ya zurfi mukani ghuer muhdood, moozaf, a compound postposition, or unlimited adverb of place, connected with—coske, it, ismi isharue bu eed mootusurruf haluti izafut men, the remote de monstrative inflected genitive, governed by gird. transposed, like many others, from the ordinary. construction, coske gird. A, having come, fiuli muutoof, a verb used as a conjunction. An is often met with for a by assuming n, either bura e tuhseeni tuluffooz, the euphony of speech, in this part of the verb ana, to come, or to prevent its being mistaken for the imperative or root of the verb, as stated in 81. Jumu, collected, sifut, an adjective, or rather a participial word, forming here a compound neuter verb with hona. The learner ought on this occasion and many others to recollect, that Oriental and occidental grammarians often see things in a very different point of view, he will never therefore wrangle or dispute with a Moonshee on such a theme, until he acquires an adequate command of language for such abstruse and difficult discussions. Hongeen, will be, figuli istiqbali gha ib jumu, mowunnus, a verb in the third person plural feminine future tense. The nasal n of such plurals as have another n, is commonly lost in the kusruti istiumal or hurry of practice; whence hongee for hongeen, or hongivan, and jatee huen for jateen, or jatiyan huen. Joheen, the instant, zurfi zumani takeedee, the emphatic adverb of time, corresponding with woheen, that moment, toheen, the moment. Shuhd, honey, ism, mozaf iluehi. Ka, of, 's, in concord with—Basun, a vessel, ism, fail burae mufool, a noun in the nominative instead of the act cusative, governed by-Rukhwaya, caused place, already explained. Had the accusative been used, the sentence would have been shuhd ke basun ko rukhwaya. Lakhon myriads, ismi udud kusrut ke waste, a numeral of frequency, or number, like huzaron. Mukhiyan, flies. Bat kurte making speech, ismi haliyu moorukkub fil hal ke muunee men, the compound absolute case denoting the immediate state of a thing. No portion of the verb is more useful than this, nor less understood by us. If we suppose all such expressions elliptical, and supply what is wanted by hooe kee halut men, of state in, the difficulty vanishes at once, and the state expressed by the verb becomes perfectly evident without any relation to the gender or the number of the nominative. I heard him (in the state of a speaker or while) speaking, muen ne cose bolte (hooe kee halut men) soona hue. os cheez ko muen ne girte (hoo e kee halut men) dekha hue, I saw the thing falling. These expressions must often prove ambiguous, because we cannot positively say here, whether the speaker or the thing was falling, and others may certainly occur still more equivocal than this. coske gird, it around, formerly explained, A-liptiyan, adhered, fiuli lazimee morukkub mazee motluqi gha ib jumu mowunnus, a compound neuter verb in the indefinite feminine perfect, third person plural, to which mukhiyan is the nominative. Most, if not the whole, of such compounds may be analysed by considering the first portion as the mazee muutoofu, pluperf. participle, thus-A, an, akur, ankur, anke, &c. having come, liptivan, they clung, but as this is of little moment to the mere beginner, it requires no further elucidation at present. Tub, then, zurfi zumani ghuer muhdood juza, shurt muhzoof, an unlimited adverb of time, correlative to a relative adverb here omitted. osne, he, zumeeri gha ibi wahid mootusurruf haluti fa il men mu i mazee mootu udde ke fa il ka hurf, the personal pronoun's third person singular inflexion, used for the nominative case along with the transitive perfect particle, or expletive ne before discussed. Kuha, said, fiuli mazee motluq gha ibi wahid, a transitive verb in the indefinite third person singular, requiring cosne for wosh, and the whole sentence as its accusative. Ki, that, hurfi buyan, and generally precedes such accusative sentences to kuha, which, by bat being understood, may become kuhee, though the nominative be masculine. Dekho, behold, umri hazir jumu, the imperative in the second person plural. huzrut, your worship, ismi monada, a noun in the vocative, like khoodawund. Jo, what, ismi muosool, the relative. Fidwee ne, servant, ismi munsoob fail, a derivative noun as a nominative with ne, like wuzeer ne. urz, representation, ism, a noun. Kiya tha, made, (made had, make did,) fiuli mazee mostuuddee bu eed wahidi ghaib, a transitive verb in the third person singular of the pluperfect, but here, as very often happens in the Hindoostanee, equivalent to the perfect only. Had not urz here been considered a component part of the verb, and jo uhwal, the statement, its accusative, kee thee, would have been preferred, for reasons already assigned. So, the same, juwabi muosool, the correlative particle after the relative. Ap ne dekha, your honour saw, formerly analysed. Phir, then, hurfi utf, a conjunction. Meer bukhshee ne kuha, ugur meree urz, the general observed, if my representation, all illustrated before.* Soono, you would hear, fi uti mozaru mookhatub jumu, the aorist in the second * Among polite people, the personal pro-nouns are used nearly on the same principles that we observe among ourselves. The speaker commonly puts his self in the singular, and the person addressed in the plural number. our presence it has become a practice, which has been gaining ground for a century past, among the natives, for the speaker to exalt his self also by assuming the plural number, to the great confusion of all grammar and propriety. We have very naturally proved as arrogant as our Indian subjects, and consequently adopt hum, we, for muen, I; and humara, our, for mera, my, on all occasions; nor can we relinquish this bad habit, without running the risk of voluntary degradation, among a race of men, who lose no opportunity of taking that trouble out of our hands, wherever they possess art or power enough to do so with impunity. learner, while aware of the above circumstance, should nevertheless, as much as possible, follow the regular grammatical mode in all translations or speeches where his dignity cannot be affected in the humble garb of muen, I, mera, my, as it might be when contrasted with his servant's consequential hum, we, humara, our. They occasionally carry their insolence so far person plural, which, except in the second person singular, is exactly the imperative, as exhibited in 61 and the Table. To, then, juza to the hurfi shurt ugur, the inferential particle to the conditional if. Fuoj, army, ism. Rukhive, pray keep. Jo, which. Wuqt, time, zurfi zumani ghuer muhdood, an unlimited noun or even, as to salute their masters with too, thou, and tera, thy, which is very seldom proper, except in some precative sentences that cannot well be mistaken or misconstrued as disrespectful. The third person is frequently substituted for the other two, which rather adds to the confusion in this department of the language; especially as the third person is also put in the plural, when speaking either civilly or respectfully of any individual. The dative is likewise, with many neuter or inverse verbs, equivalent to our nominative, as we must in general prefer the direct mode of translating expressions like hum ko muuloom hue, it is known to us, we know; cos ko shuoq hue, a desire is to him, he has a desire. Milna, to meet, accrue; hona, to be; lugna, to seem; ana, to come; with a few others, often require the inverse form just discussed, and consequently add still more to the apparent intricacy of pronominal construction in this tongue.

adverb of time. Pur, in, on, hurfi muunuwee mofrid, a simple postposition. Kam, use, ism. Awe, may come, fiuli mozaru gha ibi wahid, aorist third person singular, the nominative being fuoj, and the relative jo, which may nevertheless be the utf conjunction that. Kam-ana, in fact, is a species of inverse compound verb, a form of great use to express to avail, benefit, &c. os wugt, then, or that time, ismi isharu e bu eed motusurruf mui wuqt jis pur, men, ko, wughuere mooguddur huen, the inflected remote demonstrative with wuqt, to which men, ko, &c. are understood. This, in fact, is the cause of woh, &c. being inflected to cos, is, kis, when joined with wuqt, turuh, juguh, &c. page 106. Mal, treasure, ism, fail, a noun, nominative. Hurgiz, ever, hurfi nufee takeed, the emphatic negative particle, which has always nu expressed or understood. Koochh, any. Faidu advantage, ismi nukiru, an indefinite noun. Nu kurega, not will make, fiuli mostuqbuli munfce wahidi ghaib, the negative future in the third person singular. Ugur ap ko, if to you. certain, ismi șifuti moshubbuh, a concrete noun, but properly an adjective, in this place. Nu ho to meree bat ko, not may be, then my observation. Imtihan, trigl, ism, a noun. Kurleeje, ek handee men shuhd rat, make, a vessel in, honeu night. Ko, at, yuhan ulamuti zurf i zuman, here the sign of a noun of time. Is, this, ismi isharu e qureeb mootusurruf, the proximate demonstrative pronoun inflected. Jugih, place, (in) zursi mukani ghuer muhdood, an unlimited adverbial noun of place. We may again notice that men, in, is understood, and inflects vih to is, and juguh to jugih, by a rule in the grammar, stated in page 162, &c. Rukhwadeeje, cause place. Jo mukhiyan cospur a-lugen to meree bat jhooth, uor jo nuheen to such hue, if flies it on a-light, then my remark a falsehood is, and if not, then truth is. It would be a mere repetition to elucidate this farther, but the learner may profit by observing the partial coincidence here between the compounds, a-light from light, and a-lugna, from lugna; because this may lead him. to reflect beneficially on this mode of composition in his own and other languages, however much its nature and existence may escape ordinary observers, or be obscured by the corruptions of long usage. To arise, awake, alight, befal, become, mistake, and a hundred more, so nearly resemble ho-ana, jag-oothna, cotur-purna, a-purna, ho-jana, that no one can fail to discover the analogy here, or be at a loss to account for it in many tongues. oske, his, (he's) ismi isharu e bu eed mu i hurfi muunuwee moofrid mozukkur kee, a remote demonstrative along with a simple postposition, the inflected sign of the masculine genitive, agreeing with-Kuhne, speaking, musduri motusurruf, the inflected infinitive or gerund, governed by-Pur, according to, &c. As all infinitives, and most participles, are likewise nouns which fall under the first declension, the reader will advert to this circumstance, and be hereafter prepared to treat every part of the verb ending in a by that rule. Rat ko shuhd ka basun, night at honey's vessel. Jo, za id bura e tuzeeni kulam, an expletive by way of ornament to the sentence. Rukhwaya, caused place. To, zaid burae tuzeeni kulam, as before. Ek mukhee bhee nu a ee, one fly even not came. All plain enough, except blice, even, utf burae takeed, an emphatic conjunction. Khoolasu iska yihahue jub, the result it of this is when, nothing can be easier to an English scholar. Upnee fuoj upne gubze se guee, one's army one's power from hath departed. In this sentence, as in many others, the zumeeri moshturuk, or common pronoun ap, upna, assumes the power of one, any person, and in that point of view is a most useful word, though it certainly may also mean, here and elsewhere, your, my, &c. Phir, then, hurfi tuugeeb waste juza ke, a conjunction, connected with the inferential to hereafter. Rozi, day, ismi zurf zuman muozoof, * a noun of time, qualified by-Siyah, dark, sifut, an adjective. Men mal bhee khurch keejiyega to moyussur wuesee nu hogee, in, treasure even expenditure one should make, still procurable such not will be. As fuoj is feminine, these words wuesee, &c. follow in that gender. Kecjiye, keeje, keejiyo, keejo, keejega, keejiyega, a precative imperative, conditional reflective, or impersonal form of the Hindoostance verb, not easily explained. The natives term it umri istuqbalee or khozoo ee, the imperative future or precative; but whether this is compounded of the verb jana to go, be, or jee life, sir, with a vocative particle, may yet be fully considered in some other Work; it is however certain, that ap, self, your worship, one, (the French on) in the third person, either expressed or understood, seems its only proper nominative in such expressions. Muen rah pur chula jata tha, uor ek a ek jee men aya ki (ap) coske yuhan jaiye, I was going along the road, when suddenly it occurred to me that (myself') should go to his house. This last may also be rendered, ki muen coske yuhan ja oon, which so far proves the nature and extent of this subjunctive form.

* In the Hindoostanee, the muosoof, as in the Persian, naturally follows the sifut, but this order can be reversed in the former, without any effect on the adjective or noun; whereas, in the latter, an izafut is requisite as in rozisiyah, the present example, and in nek murd, or murdi nek, a good man, a man good; gora lurka, or lurka gora, a fair boy, a boy fair.

The learner should now collect the whole of the foregoing words of the exercise as a rigid literal translation, thus:

"A king—own minister and generalissimo of deliberately asked, treasure and army, of collection making in my judgment any use not makes, if treasure collection would I make, then army not remains, if army I would keep then riches not remains;" finishing it exactly as I have begun.

He may afterwards try his hand at an idiomatical English version in this way: "A certain king had occasion to consult his prime minister and commander in chief. He observed, that his judgment was embarrassed with the alternative of filling the treasury or collecting an army: for, said the monarch, if I amass treasure, my forces are disbanded; should I raise an army, I must part with my money." In these momentous times the discussion may both amuse and instruct the scholar, who will, I think, join issue with the old warrior, "That in days of calamity and darkness an army cannot always be had for either love or money."

IX.

The eye, nose, ear, and tongue, one day began to quarrel among themselves, each affirming that it was more advantageous to mankind than the other. The eye observed, without me day and night would prove alike, for nothing but darkness would reign on the face of the earth. In short, every one said a great deal in his own behalf, when the tongue made this observation: What you mention my friends may be all very true, yet surely none of you can be ignorant of the fact, that as my powers alone distinguish man from brute, it therefore behoves, that I be greater than you all in the estimation of the wise. Yes, cried the ear, recollecting itself, my forward scholar! after the lessons which you have received from me, as your master.

The subsequent literal version of the above, will clearly point out where, and how far both languages coincide with or differ from each other. This is the practice I so strongly recommend to every scholar at first, who really desires to acquire through time, and from the natives theirselves, a facility of blending the elegance and fidelity of translation as much as possible together, because I conceive it the one best calculated to insure complete success, after sufficient practice with their aid, in the manner now illustrated.

Ankh, nak, kan, uor zoban, ek roz luge jhugurne apus men, ek ek kuhta ki woh tha ziyadu fa idumund insan ko doosre se—ankh bolee, bina mere din o rat hote dono burabur. Bare hur ek ne kuha buhoot koochh ooske upne huqq men, jub zuban ne kiya yih kulam. Jo toon kuhte ho yaro howe sub buhoot rast, pur ulbuttu toomhon men ko ee nu ho suke na waqif is bat se. Ki meree qoodrut ukelee jooda kurtee insan huewan se, isliye chahiye ki muen ho uzeez toom sub se, beech khiyal uqlmundon ke. Han kan pokara, ap sochke, mere honhar shagird! buud tuuleem ke jo toom ne soonee moojh se, toomhara oostad hokur.

It will not prove a very easy task to produce a version more true to the original than the present, a reversion therefore would only waste time to no purpose. The very few places in which the two differ, must by this time strike every student's eye, who has not taken a premature, and consequently an unprofitable glance, at this portion of the work. I need hardly observe, that the more literal and faithful a translation is rendered in any language, there is the less chance of its being either elegant or even intelligible among the people, who are best qualified to judge of its merits, in both these points. When this English story was submitted in the above literal dress to the natives, it certainly did not require much explanation to make them fully comprehend the meaning and purport of the whole, which they, much more idiomatically and elegantly, expressed thus;

Ankh, kan, nak, uor zuban, ek roz apus men jhugurne luge, hur ek inh men se kuh ruha tha ki muen admee ke waste sub se ziyadu mofeed hoon. Puhle ankh bolee ki mojh bughuer donya men rat din burabur ruhta, siwa e tareekee ke, rooje zumeen pur koochh nu nuzur ata, ghuruz hur ek ne upne upne huqq men buhot kochh bura ee kee. Is men zuban ne yih bat kuhee, yaro jo toom kuhte ho so ho sukta hue, lekin jo muen kuhtee hoon, cose toom men se kojec inkar nukur sukega, dekho sirf meree goya ee se insan uor huewan men imtiyaz hotee hue, is liye chahiye ki muen aqilon ke nuzdeek sub se ziyadu uzeez ruhoon. Kan phir soon kur bol ootha, han shagirdi rusheed! vih bat such hue, pur buyd merce tuuleem ke.

The next exercise, which is a species of allegorical tale in the Oriental manner, is left without an idiomatical translation, as a task, or trial of skill, for the scholar, when farther advanced in his own and this language. The style is of course more elevated and flowery than any of the preceding, it will therefore serve as an excellent introduction to the higher and more difficult compositions, in prose and verse, of the Hindoostanee tongue, which the student must never attempt, until not only well grounded in the grammatical principles, but in the necessary stock of Arabic and Persian words for such an enterprise. In the Poetical Exercises, by making some allowance for the unavoidable transposition of words in a poem, the assiduous scholar will perceive nothing very formidable even in the learned or Court dialect of the Hindoostanee, because, if he knows the rudiments well, he can at once reduce these Odes, or any other, into plain prose, which, through aliteral version, must lose every appearance of intricacy and difficulty, that may at first have alarmed him. The Paraphrases will, it is hoped, prove no bad specimens of the poetical productions of the East, in an English dress, if we mean to express rather what the Poet would have written, as a European author, than what he has done as an Orientalist.

X.

Do juwan the, ek ka nam Istiqlal Mootuhummil tha, doosre ka Ghooroor Aram-tulub, conhon ne bahum milkur moolki nadanee ko chhora, uor qusri surfurazee kee tulash men kishwuri ilm kee rah lee. Chundan door nu burhe the, ki kohi pusund ko puhoonche, oos pur se upnee munzili muqqood ko kale koson Tub wuhan se cotre uor age burhkur jo nigah kee to ek doraha nuzur pura, dekhte hee hueran hoo e, donon ne duryaft kiya ki hur ek rustu isee muqam se sûrfurazee ke quşr ko jata hue, is waste ke wuhan do nishan the, ek pur khutti julee se saf yih likha tha, ki yih kam kee rah hue, uor doosre pur oosee khutt se, nam kee rah, lekin yih rustu ugurchi pechdar tha, pur chuora saf scothra. Buhoot se na-azmoodukar cos pur chulte the, uor coske donon kunaron pur gcolab phoola hoon buhar de ruha tha, uor bure bure durukht sayedar nihayut phuele hoo,e, aftab kee kuree dhoop se conko buchate-the. Ghuruz conlien boolboolon ke chuhchuhe uor loliyon kee khoosh ilhaniyan cos rahi door duraz ko yon tue kurwatee theen jo su oobut sufur kee mootlug muuloom nu hotee thee, uor ruste ke hur ek mor pur ek ek saqee turruhdar khooshwuzu imrut ka piyalu hath men liye hoo e, uiyash rahiyon kee mihmanee ke waste nuzur ata tha. We uish o ushrut ke khueme ki ja bu ja manund meenaron ke khure the, mosafir jo con men buethe ya sote the con-.kee khidmut men ek ek chuonree burdar mukhee jhulne ko hazir tha, is men rah ke mowuk-kilon ne Ghoroor ko isharu kiya uor turgheeb dee, ki ao humare peechhe peechhe chulo, conke kuhne ke bumoojib betu ummool chula uor Istiqlal se kuha, toom humaree moowafuqut kuro, scoonte hee is juwan ne cosse kuha ki sufuri asa ish tomhen mobaruk ho. Ghuruz Istiqlal kam kee rah ko uql uor tumeez kee doorbeen se bukhoobee dekhne luga, akhir duryaft kiya ugurchi yih rah behur kee sunglakh conchee neechee hue, pur seedhee uor qureeb to' hue, uor is juwan ke waste isse bhee uchhee ek bat bun a ee ki aftabi rastee kee kirn se higarut uor tu ussob kee ghuta jo moddut se chha ruhee thee, so wooheen phutne lugee uor ooskee roshnee se ja bu ja ruste men kitne mewe uor khoshu e ungoori mu ash uor insaf ke jo coljhe hoo e durukhton men paton ke ojhul lutke hoo e the nuzur ae, ulawu is ke con durukhton kee juron ke puthron se ku ee ek chushme diyanutdaree uor khood mookhtaree ke josh marte dekhe, yih sub koochh dhyan kur Istiqlal ne upnee hee şulah pur himmut bandh kam kee rah ko turjeeh dee. Yih bat such hue ki coske kanon ne nughmu o surotl kee awaz se keochh lotf nu othaya, uor oskee ankhon ko wuhan ke julwue rungarung se chukachuondh nu lu-. gee, pur sufur men zad rahl mooquwwee wuhan ke puhoonchne tuk ku mnu hoo a, lekin muhulli surfurazee men dakhil hoke jo phirkur nigah kee, to uphe humsufur ko usna e rah men dekha, uor quzakar wooh cos wuqt rustu chhorke kisee bostani rungeen men ek khoosh rung goldom ke peechhe be tuhasha duor ruha tha. Akhir is juwan ko coskee numood uor turuhdaree kee kushish ne yuhan tuk nach nuchwaya uor do dila kiya, ki duorte duorte narusa ee o ghuflut ke ghar men gira, uor woheen cos ghar ka moonh bund ho guya. Istiqlal yih majura e huebut ufza gusri surfurazee kee bulundee se dekh kur, upnee tudbeer kee khoobee o muzbootee pur bagh bagh hoo a uor afreen kee, phir upne dilmen kuha, kya khoob hoo a ki muen ne kam kee rah lee bur khilaf Gheoroor ke, uor bud sulahon ke bur uks umul kurke bur wugt munzili morad ko puhoncha.

Two youths were, one's name Perseverance. Patient was, the other's Pride Lazy, they together associating country of ignorance left and palace of promotion's search in Province of Science's road took. Very far not advanced had when Hill of Selection at arrived, it on from, own stage's end black miles at descried. Then thence descended and forwards marching when observation made, then a cross road sight came, seeing on, perplexed became, both conception made that each way this very place from, exaltation's palace to leading is, because that there two posts were, one upon writing conspicuous in plain this written was, that this useful road is and other upon the same writing in, famous way, tet this road though winding was still broad, clean, pleasant was-many novices it upon going were and its both sides upon, the rose blooming its charms to give remain did, and great great trees umbrageous much spread sun's beams fierce rays from them saving were. In short, them the nightingales warbling and damsels' melodious notes, the road long thus beguiling were, that toil journey's at all felt not was and way's every one turn at, individual individual cup-bearer comely well bred, nectar's cup hand in holding, jovial way-farers of entertainment for, sight coming was. The delight and pleasures tents that here and there like minarets standing were, travellers who them in seated or sleeping were, their service for one one fan-holder flies driving away for ready was, this on, the highways Genii, Pride to sign made and temptation gave, thus come us after after along, their bidding to according thoughtless went and Perseverance to said, you us like do, hearing just, this youth him to said, well path of ease you to welcome be. In fine Perseverance useful way reason and discrimination's spy-glass with well examine to began, lastly perception made, although this path rugged, stony up down is, nevertheless straight and short is, and this lad's sake for, him to also auspicious one circum-'stance happened, that sun of truth's rays' from, contempt and prejudice's lowering clouds, that long since overcasting were, the same that instant break to began and its light from here and there read on, how many fruits and clusters of the grapes of ordinary life and justice, which entangled trees on, leaves of covering under, hanging were, sight came, besides this, those trees' roots of rocks from, many a fountain honesty and self guidance of bubbling up saw, this all something reflection making, Perseverance own very counsel on resolution assuming, useful road to preference gave. This matter truth is, that his ears melody and songs from any delight not obtained, and his eyes to there of splendour, variegated from, dazzling not came, but journey in viaticum comfortable, there of arriving till wanting not was, and place of promotion in entered having, when turning lookagave, then own fellow traveller half way espied, and as fate would have it, he that time road having left, some garden flowery in a beautiful goldfinch after, without reflection to run continue did. At last this lad its appearance and beauty's attraction here to dance led and distracted made, that running running incapacity and neglect's abyss in fell and instantly the pit's mouth shut became." Perseverance this calamity terrour exciting palace of promotion's height from seen having, own determination goodness and firmness at rejoiced was and praise made, then own mind in said, how good was that I useful road in opposition Pride to, and bad advisers to contrary acted having, in time end of wishes to have arrived.

HINDOOSTANEE

This will prove one more opportunity for the learner to display his provess as an English composer, somewhat in the style of the celebrated Vision of Mirza, though the allusions here can forcibly strike those minds only, who seriously observed the preposterous policy in the College of Fort William, of allowing the students, for some years after its first establishment, to study any Oriental language they pleased. The consequence naturally was, that the idle and gay flocked to the Persian class, and deserted all the rest. Many expulsions became from time to time necessary, and terminated in an order, still in force, that every student should commence with the Hindoostanee at least, without which, from its great difficulty in the pronunciation alone, it would have been almost entirely deserted.

Whatever way be asserted on the brilliancy of fancy which sparkles through many literary works in the East, few men will dispute the palm in favour of the Oriental writers, for that correct taste and sound judgment, which are so conspicuous on comparison in the classics of the West. Among many other instances of bad taste, the most prominent in my estimation is the pedantic style which disfigures als most every prose production now extant in the Hindoostanee language, and which renders it often wholly unintelligible to every reader, who is not as deep in Arabic or Persian lore, as the learned man who composed the book itself. If excellence in a popular tongue consisted in writing any thing far above the conception of the people for whom it is intended, every body must allow, that the Hindoostanee authors and translators stand unrivalled in this species of In fact, to say the least that can composition. be observed on so absurd a perversion of talents and learning, most of the literary efforts of this description, that I have yet seen, might be very good Arabic or Persian, for any thing I know to the contrary, were they not disjointed and disfigured by the occasional introduction of a Hindoostanee postposition or verb, which. like the casual flash of lightning in a dreary night, serve but to render the surrounding darkness still more visible. This false taste is no where more discernible and preposterous than in the prefaces of Oriental works, which are in general composed in an affected idiom, so much beyond the level of ordinary capacities and acquirements, that very few of the men, who can comprehend the body of the publication itself, are qualified to wade through the wonderful display of erudition which announces its birth. Such a profound harbinger, one would imagine, is absolutely requisite in India, to stamp a proper value on any literary performance, of which, in the preliminary portion, at least, it may commonly be asserted with great truth, that it must be an incomparable book, because nobody can well understand the introduction to its contents. To expose and explode this monstrous abuse of a living colloquial language, by giving it a new and impartial bias, has been my constant study, for some years past, and I am not altogether without hopes of yet establishing my success, on the broad basis of public utility to ourselves, as the Rulers of British India, and to its inhabitants of every description also, as our subjects. If we are to indulge any prepossessions on the score of language or laws, I think sound policy and justice will point out the Hindoos as the most proper objects, being still the great, ancient, and useful mass of the people in our East Indian Empire. At all events, it cannot be disputed, that our Magistrates ought to be as well qualified to comprehend a Hindoo's complaint, viva voce et propria persona, as to understand a Mosulman of any rank or description whatever. In spite of the clamour which the soi disant FAITHFUL, and their abettors at home or abroad, may raise against all my exertions of the present nature, I shall persevere in the great work of reform which I have so successfully begun. As nothing can facilitate this object more than easy, familiar, and accurate translations from one tongue to the other, the learner is here presented with the first Fable in Dodsley's excellent Collection, as a specimen of all the rest, which have lately been published in that plain, general, useful, middle style, which ought ever to take the lead in a popular speech, whose worth depends much less on its literature, when contrasted with the languages of Europe, than on its general prevalence and utility, when compared with any other Oriental tongue, in the extensive regions of India. Those Mosulmans who, from local circumstances, and a habitual tendency to pedantry, know little of the wonderful pliancy and copiousness of the Hindoostanee tongue, independent of its modern sources, will no doubt object to many Hinduwee words that may be safely introduced into the broad, conciliating, unaffected style, which I have recommended. To them, from real experience, I can oppose a whole host of Hindoos, with a potent band of those Moslims also, who in Hindoostan maintain that intercourse with the bulk of the people, among whom they have resided for centuries, which is so favourable to the formation and existence of a grand popular language. When Mosulman's treat of abstruse and scientific subjects, they must lean to Arabic, as the Hindoos cæteris paribus will do to the Sunskrit; but in the ordinary concerns of life, and in the judicial, military, commercial, and revenue departments, such necessity and predilection are less frequent, except where local dialects or circumstances impose a preference, to the partial exclusion of some, or all the rest.

XI.

The Israelites, ever murmuring and discontented under the reign of Jehovah, were desirous of having a king like the rest of the nations. They offered the kingdom to Gideon their deliverer, to him, and to his posterity after him: he generously refused their offer, and reminded them, that Jehovah was their king. When Gideon was dead, Abimelech, his son by a concubine, slew all his other sons to the number of seventy, Jotham alone escaping; and by the assistance of the Shechemites, made himself king. Jotham, to represent to them their folly, and to shew them, that the most deserving are generally the least ambitious, whereas the worthless grasp at power with eagerness, and exercise it with insolence and tyranny, spake to them in the following manner:

Hearken unto me, ye men of Shechem, so may God hearken unto you. The trees, grown weary of the state of freedom and equality in which God had placed them, met together to choose and to anoint a king over them: and they said to the Olive-tree, Reign thou over us. But the Olive-tree said unto them, Shall I quit my fatness wherewith God and man is honourcd, to disquiet myself with the cares of government, and to rule over the trees? And they said unto the Fig-tree, Come thou, and reign But the Fig-tree said unto them, Shall I bid adieu to my sweetness and my pleasant fruit, to take upon me the painful charge of royalty, and to be set over the trees? Then said the trees unto the Vine, Come thou and reign over us. But the Vine said also unto them, Shall I leave my wine, which honoureth God and cheereth man, to bring upon myself nothing but trouble and anxiety, and to become king of the trees? we are happy in our present lot: seek some other to reign over you. Then said all the trees unto the Bramble, Come thou and reign over us. And the Bramble said unto them, I will be your king; come ye all under my shadow, and be safe; jobey me, and I will grant you my protection. But if you obey me not, out of the bramble shall come forth a fire, which shall devour even the cedars of Lebanon.

Bunee Israeel humeshu khooda kee badshahut men koorkooraya burburaya kurte the, is waste ki manund uor quomon kee con men badshah nu tha. Akhir Juedoon ki conka himayutee tha cos se kuha ki too badshahut kur, hum ne teree posht dur posht kee sultunut qubool kee, cosne juwan-murdee se upnee numana, bulki con logon ko jutaya ki badshah tomhara khooda hue. Jub wooh murguya, Ubee mulik, ki coska beta hurum se tha, cosne Jotham chhoot, Juedoon ke jo uor suttur bete the, con ko mardala uor Shuekhmiyon kee mudud se badshah hoo a. Tub Jotham ne, conkee himaqut ke jutane ko uor is bat ke sabit kurne ko, ki jo bharee bhurkhum hote huen conko uksur huokha kum hota hue, bur uks coske kumeenon ko raj kee khwahish buhoot hotee hue, ki is men zoolm uor ghooroor buhoot sa keeje, kuha is tuor se ki soono ue Shuekhmiyo meree bat ki khooda toomharee bhee soonega. Ek wuqt durukaton ne bhee upnee be purwaee uor buraburee kee halut se, ki jis pur khooda ne con ko rukha tha, bezar hokur, apus men ek badshah thuhrane ke liye mushwurut kee, uor zuetoon se kuha, humara too badshah ho. oos ne kuha ki muen upnee chikna ee kee khoobee ki jis se khooda uor khilqut khoosh huen oose chhorkur hakimee ke bojh se nakhoshee othaoonga uor rookhon pur hookoomut kuroonga? Buud coske unjeer se kuha ki too humaree surdaree qubool kur. osne bhee juwab diya ki muen hookoomut kee kurwahut ke liye upne uch-chhe phulon kee mithas chhoroonga, uor durukhton ka surdar bunoonga? Phir gachhon ne ungoor se kuha ki too şahibee qubool kur. Wooh bola ki much upnee shurab kee luzzut, ki jis se ullah uor ooske bunde khoosh huen, tujoonga, uor peron kee badshahee ke waste dookh durd riyasut ka suhoonga? hum upnee upnee qismut pur razee huen, ja o kisee uor ko sultunut ke liye dhoondho. Tub sub brichhon ne muko ee se kuha ki a too humara badshah ho. osne kuha ki muen ne toomharee badshahut qubool kee, toom sub mere saye tule chuen se ruho, ugur mojhe manoge to punah men rukhoonga, nuheen to mere kanton men se ek ag pueda hogee, ki toom sub ko Lubnan ke surw sumet jula kur khak kurdegee,

It being pretty generally conceived, that there is no such thing, as a Hindoostanee story without either Arabic or Persian, I now submit the following to the Public. In it there is not one word of these languages; still the Hindoostance here preserves its character and regimen so perfectly, that I am convinced the whole will be understood by all classes of men in India, who have yet learned what Hindoostanee means.

XII.

Ko ee kuheen ko chithee likhta tha, ek tiha et cos ke pas a buetha, cos ke likhe ko luga dekhne, tuo cos ne chithee men likha, jo buhootsee baten likhnee theen so nuheen likhee gu een, kyoon ki mere kune ek niput chibilla buetha hue, is liye nuheen likheen. Wooh bola, upne bhed kee batcheet jo likhnee ho so likhte kyoon nuheen, muen to koochh toomhara likha hoo a nuheen dekha, tub is ne kuha, bhula jo toom ne nuheen dekha, kuho to, yih kyoon kur jana jo muen yoon likha hue. Is bat se buhoot lujaya, ankhen heeche keen uor sir oopur nu oothaya.

A person was writing a letter to send somewhere, when another came and sat down beside him, who began to look at the letter. He then inserted in the epistle, thus, "I had a number of circumstances to state, which have not been put down, because there is a very silly fellow sitting by me, on this account they are omitted." The other said, "Why don't you write any secrets which you intended; for my part I have not seen a syllable of your writing." On which the writer observed, "Well, if you have not seen it, pray inform me how you know that I have written so and so?" At this the other was so much abashed, that he fixed his eyes on the ground, and could not lift up his head, to look the writer in the face.

I would recommend the next story, of the man who heard badly, to the serious attention of all indolent dialogists, who will not often be in a better situation, with those they address, than the deaf man was in with his friend. In fact, to expect much good from mere dialogue knowledge, is nearly as preposterous, as to wonder why a blind man does not recover his sight by placing a pair of spectacles on his nose.

XIII.

Kisee suodagur ka ek shukhş buehra ashnatha, quzakar suodagur beemar hoo a.-Buehra ooskee yadut ko chula, rah men chulte hoo e yih bundish bandhee, jo sahib sulamut ke peechhe puehle yih poochhoonga. Kuho sahib mizaj kucsa hue, wooh kuhega uch-chha, muen kuhoongaameen, phir poochhoonga ghiza kya khate ho, wooh kuhega dal khooshka, muen kuhoonga nosh jan, tis pur yih suwal kuroonga, toomhara mo alij kuon hue? Wooh kuhega Mitza fulan beg, muen kuhoonga, khooda ooske hath ko shufa e kamil bukhshe. Akhirush yihee munsoobu thuhrakur ooske ghur puhooncha, sulamoon ulek kurke nuzdeek ja buetha. Luga poochhne, kuho yar tubiyut kuesee hue, mureez ne kuha kya poochhte ho mare tup ke murta hoon, soontehee bola ameen, khooda uesa kure. Becharu becmar ek to becmaree se julta hee tha, is bat ne uor bhee julaya, phir poochha, yar ghiza kya khate ho? kuha khak; bola nosh jan bad, yih soonkur uor bhee doona khufu hoo a. Phir kuha, soono dost toomhara mogalij kuon hue, ghosse men to bhara hoo a tha hee bola, Mulik ol muot; kuha b hoot mobarik, khooda ooske hath ko juld shufa bukhshe.

A certain merchant had a friend who was hard of hearing; by chance the merchant fell ill. The deaf man went to enquire after him, and, while going along the road, he made up this discourse. Then after salutation I will first ask this-" Well, Sir, how are you?" he will say, "better;" and I shall rejoin, "very good." When I inquire as to the diet he uses, he will say, "rice-pudding;" to which I shall answer, "may it do you much service." I shall afterwards put the question, "pray who is your physician?" he will of course tell me, "Dr such a one is," and I may safely add, "may God prosper his hands in the accomplishment of his work." At length having settled this plan he reached the house, and, after the usual compliments, he seated himself near " My friend," says he, " how are the patient. you?" the sick man replied, "do not you see that I am dying of a fever;" on hearing which he observed, "excellent! I hope God will keep you so." The poor patient was already peevish enough with his disease, but this made him much more so. The deaf man next asked, "what is your diet my friend?" and was answered, "fiddlesticks;" "may they do you much good" the other rejoined; on hearing this he became in fact doubly enraged. His visitor then inquired thus, "do you my good fellow, say which of the faculty attends you?" boiling with indignation, he cried, "his worship Dr Death." "I give you joy," quoth the deaf man, "and may the Lord speed his prescriptions."

The following story, translated from the Persian, will serve as a useful exercise for beginners; I have therefore given it without an English translation.

· XIV.

Ek shukhs ne kisee durwesh ke pas jakur teen suwal kiye, ek to yih, kuhte ho ki khooda hazir hue muen to kuheen nuheen dekhta hoon, jo hue to moojhe dekha o wooh kuhan hue. Doosre yih, ki admee ko tuqseer ke liye uziyut kyoon dete huen, jo koochh kurta hue so khooda kurta hue, insan ko hurgiz koochh qoodrut nuheen, kyoon ki be chahe khooda ke ko ce koochh kur nuheen sukta, dur soorut ugur insan ko qoodrut hotee, tuo sub kam upne waste bihtur kurta. Teesre yih, ki dozukh kee ag men Shuetan ko khooda kyoon kur jula ega, kyoon ki khumeer ooska ag hue; pus ag se ag ko kya dur? Durwesh ne ek dhela muttee ka oothakur ooske sir men mara, wooh rota Qazee ke vihan chula guya. Ya huzrut! fulane Durwesh se teen suwal muen kiye, tis ka moojhe koochh juwab nu diya, bulki matee ka ek dhema mere sir men uesa mara jo ubtuk durd kurta hue. Qazee ne Durwesh ko bolake kuha, kyoon iske, toom ne, sir men matee ka dula mara uor iske suwal ka juwab nu diya. Durwesh ne kuha dhela hee iska juwab hue, yih kuhta hue mere sir men durd hue, wooh kuhan, kuesa hue, mojhe dekhade, tuo muen khooda ko dekhadoon. Kyoon meree nalish huzrut ke pas kee, jo kiya khooda ne kiya, be irade khooda ke ise nuheen mara, moojhe kya taqut jo muen maroon, surisht iske khak se hue, khak se kyoon kur isko dokh puhoncha? Woh shukhs nadim hoo a, Qazee ne juwab Durwesh ka pusund kiya.

XV.

Ode from Wulec.

1.

Khoobroo khoob kam kurte huen, Yek niguh men ghoolam kurte huen.

Dekh khooban ko wuqt milne ke, Kis uda se sulam kurte huen. 3:

Kum nigahee soon dekhte huen- wule, Kam upna tumam kurte huen.

4.

Kholte huen jub upnee zoolfan ko, soobuh sadiq ko sham kurte huen.

5.

Kya wufadar huenge milne men, Dil se sub ram ram kurte huen.

6.

sahibi lufz cos ko kuh nu suke, Jisko khooban kulam kurte huen.

7.

Dil lejate huen ue Wulee mera, Gol-rokhan jub khiram kurte huen.

Paraphrase.

1.

What havock yon beauties display,

Where thousands of hearts they enslave:
One look is enough for the gay,—

And more than enough for the brave.

2.

Behold how the fair ones draw nigh, So graceful their motions appear; Each step is adrhir'd with a sigh, Each sigh is condens'd to a tear.

Though glancing they carelessly dart,
Fell arrows of scorn from their eyes,
Those lodge in so mortal a part,
Our souls are their victims and prize.

4.

If damsels, Aurora! combine,

To spread their dark locks o'er thy car,

The curtains of Night will be thine,

Each face—a bright evening star.

5.

In loving how can they be true,
While honey distills from each tongue;
We captives bid freedom adieu,
They spare not the old—nor the young.

6.

The bard whom those maidens address,
In silence quaffs all that they say;
Nay—wisdom is forc'd to confess,
His wits have been ravish'd away.

7.

Lo! Wulee the pride of our swains,

Hath lately forsaken his lyre—

To gaze on the maids of the plains,

Whose gait fills his breast with desire.

Sonnet by the Late Nuwwab Asuf cod Duolu.

1.

Yih ushk chushmon men ub jum ruhe nu ruhe, Hobab war ko ee dum ruhe ruhe nu ruhe;

2.

Too upne shewu i juor o jufa se mut gozre, Teree bula se mera dum ruhe ruhe nu ruhe;

3.

Qumur ko hota hue hur mah men kumal o zuwal,

Tere bhee hosn ka alum ruhe ruhe nu ruhe.

4.

urq hue rookh pur tere khoosh nooma sunum, lekin,

Humeshu gool pur yih shubnum ruhe ruhe nu ruhe.

5.

Yih wusf teree jooda ee ka kya likhe Asuf?* Yih ittifaq hue bahum ruhe ruhe nu ruhe†

* What can Asuf say of thy absence,—how describe it?

† The constant reiteration of ruhe in the Hindoostanee veries, has rather a monotonous appearance than effect, when pronounced with the impressive cadence and emphasis that are here required; but how shall I transfuse the

`6.

Juhan men too mera pyara humeshu qa im ruhe,

Lubon pur dum hue mera thum ruhe ruhe. nu ruhe.

Translation.

1.

Are lucid drops in either eye,
Love's magic gems set there?
Or do they glisten, sink and die—Mere twinkling spheres of air.

elegance which the intervening negative nu diffuses over this portion of the original, in which similar expressions are no less beautiful than significant. Ruhe ruhe nu ruhe, transcends my powers of communication in our own language, I shall therefore either cherish the hope, that future trials will prove more fortunate, or not contented in the interim, with comparing it to those passages, so well known in the unrivalled soliloquy of Hamlet, "To be or not to be," &c. which I fancy will fade in every version from our mother tongue.

The words literally considered will run thus, ruhe, if it stay; ruhe, it will stay; nu ruhe, should it not remain; nu ruhe, it will not remain. By phrases of this sort the great uncertainty of any circumstance is denoted.

Each killing charm at once display, Here, tyrant! strike thy dart; Take full revenge—but near me stay, 'Tis worse than death to part.

3

Thy rival planet if we see, Through monthly changes run, From waning where is beauty free, Though radiant as the sun?

4

True, on thy cheeks youth blacking glows. But, oh, frail mortal hear!
You virgin dew which decks the rose,
Just shines—to disappear.

5.

Yet, Asuf, why the boon de That chance alone can give Sure, absence wounds his low Who slighted,—hates to live 6.

May thou, beloved! here reads.

In bliss, like saints above;

Take this last breath? retain.

To sigh—how much I leve

XVI.

An Ode from Suoda.

1.

Ghuer ke pas yih upnahee gooman hue ki nuheen, Julwugur yar mera wurnu kuhan hue ki nuheen?

2.

Mihr hur zurre men moojh ko to nuzur ata hue, Toom bhee took dekhiyo sahib i nuzran, hue ki nuheen?

3.

Dil ke poorzon ke hughul men muen liye phirta hoon,

Koochh ilaj on ka bhee ue sheesheguran hue ki nuheen?

4.

Pas i namoos mojhe ishq ka hue ue boolbool, Wurnu cehan kuonsa undazi fighan hue ki nu-

5.

Age shumsher toomharee ke bhula yih gurdun, Moo se bareektur ue khoosh-kumuran hue ki nuheen:

6.

Jorm hus ooskee wufa ka ku jufa kee tuqseer, Kojee to bolo yuhan moonh men zuban hue ki nuheen?

Poochha Suoda se muen ek roz ki ue aware, Tere ruhne ka moojuiyun bhee mukan hue ki nuheen?

8.

Yek bu yek hoke bur-ashcoftu luga yih kuhue, Koochh toojhe uql se buhra buee miyan hue ki nuheen?

Dekja muca qui protessione de some hue ek simula

hulqe-zum hoko perderan his a sebagi hue ki robbengi

Freely Translated.

1.

I often wonder, whether the radiant object of my adoration smiles upon others of rade yet where is the spot that Go

2.

You glorious orb to me to the state of the beam; do you also, O ye energy case the stay by a hold if this be really so or not.

3.

I am wandering about with the ragments of a broken heart in my hand, say, the coord if there be any balm for converting to the converting Songstress of the night, I also feel the mild influence of divine love, were it otherwise, what degree of noisy praise is there that my voice could not reach?

5.

Before thy faulchion, this neck of mine indeed is more slender than the finest hair, is it so or not, O ye daughters of genuine devotion!

6.

Is the justice of providence to blame, or is it the fault of my wayward fate? do let some people say here, if a tongue be in their head or not.

7.

I one day asked of Suoda, O wanderer! hast thou or not any fixed residence on earth?

8.

All at once becoming enraged, he began to say, "Silly body, is there one atom of sense in thy possession or not?"

9.

I have long, ince with my mind's eye espied a weary wight at the palace gate even of the mighty Freedoon, who knocking roars out— "Is there any one here or not?"

Closely Translated.

1.

In my foolish imagination I conceived another possessed not

The radiant object of my love—else where is he not?

2.

The support of the universe in every atom shines to may be a option;

I of a colligious on a moment—and see 3.

A broken heart, I wandering, carry within my bosom!

Have you a cure for this, ye skill'd in .... or have you not?

4.

O nightingale! I feel the reverence due to 1c-; Else what is thy cause or Determine to at I have not!

5.

Say, is my love to blame? or a land tall?

Tell me who can—is there a to provide quesk of not?

6.

Before the sword divine, this little week!

Is smaller than a hair—say, angel, an not

I one day enquired of Suoda the pilgrim—
"Hast thou a fixed dwelling-place or not?"

8.

Empassioned at the question, abrupt he an--swered-

"Hast thou the light of reason, friend, or not?
9.

"Behold! at the palace-gate of the (late) monarch Fureedoon,

"A man calls aloud—is any one have or not?"

Paraphrase.

1.

What else, I oftimes pensive ween,
Can various creeds and tenets mean,
Whence flow the ardent pray'r,
But that of Mooslim, Pagan, Jew,
Must, 28 the Christian's, each be true;
For God 14 every where.

2.

Thus in one circle we divine.

The radii from its bounding line

Concentric still unite;

So from the wide extended round

Of all religions, will be found

One only Lord of light.

Yon solar orb in every ray Shines forth the glorious god of day,
Oft with refracted beam;
On shifting clouds does he retire?
Or can they quench his awful fire?
Speak, sages! do I dream?

4.

With broken heart and wounded soul, I wandering seriod from pole to pole, the balance beautiful to the voices;

Still not one doctor can be help

Like death to core my reconstruind

O come and bring repose!

5.

Sweet bird of eve, thy plaintive note
Could never drown my louder throat,
If rev'rence due to love,
Did not silence my moans and same.
And bid me turn these streaming my and
To the great God above.

6.

Is like the cobwell's finest v reco That floats upon the air; Look, angels! tell me ay or may. Ye surely can the truth display. And will the whole declars. 7

That providence is just I own,.
Though fortune sternly on me frown;
The fault perhaps is mine:
Come, cherubs! teach the soothing plan
Of cann content to wayward man,
And let me not repine.

8.

Once I the pilgrim Suoda spied,
And then in earnest to him cried,
"Hast thou no fix'd retreat?"

Enrag'd, responsive, thus he spoke,
"Sure, silly friend, you only joke,
"Or never heard of fate.

9.

"With reason's eye here take a glance—
"Through time and space's vast expanse,
"(Nor blink it with a tear)
"At ene. by Cesar's palace doors,
"Who knocking there incessant roars,
"Is any book here?"

The freedom of paraphrase has led me to introduce one straza, viz. the 2d, which is not in the original to compensate for the loss of another, by condensing its 7th and 8th here, into the latter only, as the reader will easily perceive on comparing both together.

XVII.

Ghuzul, Mirza Kazim Ulee Juwan* kee.

1.

Ueyam huen juwanee ke jub tuk buhar hue; Peeree jo a ee phir to khizan ashkar hue.

Ghuflut nuheen hue khoob ghuneemut yih wuqt

 $\Sigma r = 2 \sin \beta a \phi \sin \beta c \sin d$ , ugur hoshiyar hue.

Mooje scattered have graphs of plant upon the reductive back that has been all per experiences.

4.

Gur hue tumeez furq soofued o siyuh men kur, Eksan nu yar gurdishi luel o nuhar hue.

5.

Tuhseel kurke ilm kee, uch-chhe umul too kur, alum men admee ka isee se voo * Juwan is the assumed provided and red Tukhullos, which the provided of of food of, that very few of the hard radius is customary to introduce the hard nation which last stanza of every ode, in the most copy provide and neatest manner, as in the poem and well-fore us.

Chahe ugur uzeez ho, pueda kumal kur, Uor be kumal chushmi khula iq men khwar hue.

7.

Namurd keene kee jo zooban kurte huen duraz, Formut, conhon kee tegh o qulum ka shi ur hue.

8.

Kurte huen nek namee ko dum se husud ke qutl, Hur ek con men ghatee hue uor nabukar hue.

9.

Nuosheerwan o Hatim o Roostum se ub liue kuon? Name niko omhon ka suda yadgar liue.

10.

udl o sukhawut uor shuja ut kur ikhtiyar, Ek ek kee juhan men bina pa edar huc.

11.

Muḥwe jumal coska ho, jisko nuheen zuwal, Dil hosni arizee pu tera bequrar hue.

12.

Peekur mue, ghoroor nu bud must hoojiyo, Joz durdi sur nu uor koochh ooska khoomar hue.

13. .

Jis ko, Juwan! kisee se kosdoorut nuheen hue koochh,

Dil oska a cene kee numut be ghobar hue.

A verbal Version of the above.

An Ode, Mirza Kazim Ulee Juwan by.

1

Season is youth of when till, spring is;

Age when arrived, then indeed autumn evident is.

2.

Inattention not is good, blessing this time reckon, Hear thou ear of soul-with counsel, if wise be.

3.

Hairs white bring will the message fate of when; Than any thing not be able will, now power is.

4.

If be discrimination, difference white and black in make,

Alike not, friend! revolution of night and day is.
5.

Acquisition made having science of, good deeds thou perform,

World in man of, this indeed from, honour is.

6.

Wish may if dear to be, exist perfection cause. World worthless (man) eyes of people in despicable is.

Cowards malice of who tongue making are long, Calumny, them of sword and pen of employment is.

8.

Making are reputation to breath with envy of slaughter,

Every one them of assassin is and worthless is.

9.

Nuosheerwan, and Hatim and Roostum of, now is what?

Name good their, ever memorial is.

10.

Equity and generosity and bravery make choice, Each one of, world in, foundation firm is.

11.

Absorbed (in) glory its be, which to not decay. Heart, beauty fading on, thy unsteady is.

12.

Drunk having the wine of pride, not intoxicated be.

Besides a headach no other else its crop sickness is.

13.

Whom to, youth! something with stain not is any, Heart his, mirror of manner without spot is.

A Free Translation.

1.

While the season of youth continues, we may really enjoy it as the spring of our lives, but when age comes on, we must perceive winter's approach through the falling leaves of autumn.

2.

Oh! consider the present time as a precious blessing, which folly alone can despise; and if you be prudent, now lend an attentive ear to my admonitions.

3..

When grey hairs summon man to the grave, it will be too late to reform, youth is therefore the season for mental exertion.

4.

If you can discriminate light from darkness, O my friend! then immediately learn a most useful lesson from the regular vicissitudes of day and night.

5.

Now store your mind with science, and perform worthy actions, since from these alone a man is esteemed in the world.

Should you court popularity, cultivate your genius and talents, for the illiberal and illiterate are despicable in the eyes of mankind:

7.

~ Cowards who dart their tongues envenomed with malice, employ their dagger and pen in calumny's service.

8.

They who blast innocence with the breath of envy, are all to a man worthless assassins.

9.

Though not a vestige of Nuosheerwan, Hatim, and Roostum, now remains upon earth, still the fame of their great actions will prove eternal.

10.

Practise justice, generosity, and every noble virtue, because each of these will prove more durable than a monument of brass.

11.

As the mind loses its energies by admiring perishable beauty, do you contemplate that glory which alone is a stranger to decay.

12.

Never allow the favours of fortune to intoxicate you with pride, lest you subject yourself to its giddiness and distraction.

He whose heart, O youth! is free from every stain, has a conscience clear as the limpid stream.

Paraphrase.

1.

Fair youth is the season which mortals should prize,

As the spring of both body and mind,
Through summer and autumn, see life swiftly flies!

With old age, its cold winter, behind.

2.

Awake! now sweet Hebe benignantly cheers, Like Aurora, the morn with her rays! O hear, my young friends, ere the dark night appears!

For improvement, these—these are the days.

Exert every nerve where the soul is in tune,
The high summits of learning to gain;
Should time's hoary locks bring death's warning at noon,

Then indeed you may labour in vain.

If reason or genius your bosoms yet fires, With advantage contemplate this truth! As daylight itself before darkness retires, Clouds may lower on the sunshine of youth!

5.

Now quickly employ every moment you can, Adolescence with honour to crown, For science should ever distinguish the man Who aspires or to rank or renown.

6.

In arts and accomplishments emulate all, Persevere to fame's temple, in view; While envy and ignorance shamefully fall, Merit's bays, there, are waving for you.

7.

The dictates of malice let cowards obey,

Armed with pencil, stiletto, or pen,

Leave slander's base weapons, which innocence slay,

To assasins—the basest of men.

True worth is a lamp, with celestial flame,
That will shine when this globe shall decay.
Though monuments sink in the dust,—a good name

Is the dawn of eternity's day.

By just and magnanimous actions the brave Gather laurels unfading on high; From earth far removed, and the sting of the grave,

In heaven,—where they never can die.

See pleasure and fortune both fade like the rose,

When its dew drops of morn disappear!

But glory's immortal fresh blossoms disclose,

Like the myrtle, spring's charms through the year.

11.

Indulge not too freely in pride nor in wine, Those false lights of this visible gloom! Which coxcombs and profligates borrow to shine, As mere glow-worms in vice's dark tomb:

12.

While juvenile minds, which no passion inspires, That an angel might blush to descry, Reflect the pure image that virtue admires, In the tear of mild sympathy's eve.

XVIII.

Ghuzuli Hafiz.*

• 1.

hijabi chihru e jan meeshuwud ghoobari tunum, Khoosh an dume ki uzan chihru purdu bur figunum.

2.

Choneen qufus nu suza e choo mun khoosh ilhan ust,

Ruwum bu goolshuni rizwan ki moorghi an chumunum.

3.

uyan nu shood ki kooja amudum kooja boodum, Diregh o durd ki ghafil zi kari khweshtunum.

4.

Chigoonu tuof koonum dur hureemi alumi qoods, Ki dur surachu e turkeeb tukhtubundi tunum.

* The intimate connection between the Hindoostanee and Persian languages, renders every apology for the appearance of the above Ode from Hafiz unnecessary, because we can no more separate the grammar of these tongues entirely from each other, than we can totally disjoin the Greek and Latin rudiments.

Mura ki munzuri hoor ust muskun o mawa, Chura bu koo e khurabatiyan boowud wutunum.

6.

Ugur zi khooni dilum boo e moshk mee ayud, ujub mudar ki humdurdi nafu e khootunum.

7.

tirazi pueruhune zur kushum mubeen choon shumu,

Ki soz hast nihanee durooni pueruhunum.

8.

Biya o hustiye hafiz zi peshi oo burdar, Ki bawoojoodi to kus nushnuwud zi mun ki munum.

A Free Translation.

1.

The shade of this body obscures the radiance of my soul, welcome that our, when I may tear the veil from its celestial countenance.

2

Such a cage doth not become a warbler like me, who soars, as a bird of Paradise, to the regions of bliss, .3.

I know not where I now am, nor where I formerly was; woe is me, I have neglected my own self!

4.

. How can I wing my flight round the temple of the pure empyrean, while confined within the bars of this terrestrial frame?

5.

Why should I, who aspire to the asylum and abode of cherubs, find a mansion here among the haunts of degraded forms?

6.

Should my heart's blood be stained with the dark hue of musk, be not surprised, for I am a fellow-sufferer with the musk-deer of Khotun.

7.

Do not contemplate the gay form of my orient robes alone, while I like a taper am consuming with the internal fires, which this breast of mine conceals.

8.

Come, my soul! draw the curtain of delusion from the eyes of Hafiz, for while thou art, no body shall learn from him, that he can really exist without thee.

XIX.

Ghuzul Meer Ummun Lootf kee.

1.

Hue ot julwu e jan ka gilee budun mera, Khooda kure ki core khak ho yih tun mera.

2.

Qufus men domiya ke kya bole mojh sa khosh ahung, ndun men chuhchuhe maroon, wooh hue chumun mera.

3.

Nu sumjha yih ki kuhan tha uor ub kuhan aya. Huzar huef ki ghafil hue fuhm o zun mera.

4.

Kuroon muen kyoon ke bhula lamukan kee suer, ki ub

Phunsa hue qued men khakee budun kee mun mera.

5.

Humara ghur to hue hooron kee ankh kee pootlee, Gulee men muekushon kee kyoon ki ho wutun mera.

6

Khuta nuheen jo mere khooni dil se moshk kee boo,

Mile tojhe ki hue dil nafu e khootun mera.

Yih nuqshi jamu e zurkush mera nuheen jon shumu,

Ki huega purdu,e fanoos pueruhun mera.

8.

totha too hustee ko Hafiz kee ake uz ruhi Louf, Ki ko ee soone nu tere samhne sookhun mera.

Paraphrase of the above.

1.

Hail, heavenly spark! that glorious day,
When thou, releas'd from circling clay,
May soar to realms of bliss:
No longer shall this frame confine,
A soul inspir'd by love divine,— Pure bird of Paradise!

2.

God's mystic scheme I vainly scan,
And grasp his mind infus'd in man;
These—far transcend my song.
Thro' death's deep gloom, how wing my flight,
To that eternal source of light—
Eclips'd front me so long?

3. `

Eccentric spirit! why first roam—
To earth—from heav'n thy native home,
Where kindred angels dwell?

How like the bounding musky deer,
Thou still art doom'd to anguish here—
This yearning heart can tell. *

4.

Those radiant orbs, earth's vernal bloom,
Lose all their charms, while I consume
With melting sighs on sighs:
Yes, bright Intelligence! I see,
My Self† cannot ascend to thee,
Till mortal Hafiz dies.

- * The animated allusion to the musk-deer by Hafiz, in this verse, can be relished by those only who will examine the natural history of this animal. If we add to this, the coagulated contents and general structure of the muskbag, evident upon dissection, we shall find they are not very dissimilar to a heart, supposed to have its blood curdled and scorched by the ardour and anguish of disappointed love.
- "† The reader will perceive my notions of Self, both in Metaphysics and Philology, in this extract, from the Persian Grammar, by Sir W. Jones, whom in this respect I implicitly follow.

I here use his self and their selves instead of the corrupted words himself and themselves; in which usage I am justified by the authority of A Translation of the above Paraphrase.

1.

Ue purinde khoold ke is dami khakee se riha, Hoke orjae too oos ja tha juhan basa tera.

2.

Upnee pholwaree qudeemee kee kure phir deed too,

Juon se din men, toojhe wooh din moobaruk holega.

3.

Ue ki too jeeta hue ishqe ezudee ke shuoq men, Kur sukega phir nu toojh ko qued pinjra khak ka.

4.

Rooh insan kee lutafut ke subub pata nuheen, Phir milega kisturuh moojh ko nishane kibriya.

Sidney, and of other writers in the golden age of our language; self seems to have been originally a noun, and was, perhaps, a synonimous word for soul, according to Locke's definition of it: "Self is that conscious thinking thing, which is sensible or conscious of pleasure and pain, capable of happiness and misery." If this observation be just, the Arabs have exactly the same idiom; for their nufs, soul, answers precisely to our self, as—subiyoon ruma nufsuhoo fee nuhrin, a boy threw his self into a river.

Jo chhipa ankhon se ho kis turuh se awe nuzur, Dekhiye kyoon kur cose, upna kuhan yih murtubu.

6.

Uor jo yih chahoon ki coska bhed kooch za hir kuroon,

Monh nuheen rukhta hoon uesa, upnee goya ee so kya.

7.

Muot ka muedani teeru tue kurega kis turul, Uese undhiyare se kyoon kur ja ega toojh se ora.

8.

Is kuṣafut men jo tha too, kub phir awega nuzur, Chushmu e nooree qudeemee hue jo mooddut se chhipa.

9.

Huen muluk humjins jis men cos wutun ko chhor kur,

Bhoola bhutka duhr men phirta hue kyoon ue bewufa.

10.

Mozturub ahoo, e moshkeen sa jo dookh bhurta hue too,

Bun men yuhan cosko dile khustu hue mera janta.

Jub muen juljata hoon upnee ahi atushbar se, Ye sitare poor ziya uor baghi domiya poor fiza: 12.

Tub niput be rootbu uor nacheez ate huen nuzur, Yuune ub hasil nu koochh howega inse mooddua.

13.

Ue khooda! tub tuk nuhogee jan kee toojh tuk puhooneh,

Jub tuluk jawe nu mur yih Hasize khakee mera.

XX.

1.

Baten kidhur gu een we teree bholee bholiyan, Dil leke bolta hue jo too ub ye boliyan.

2.

Hur bat hue luteefu o hur yek sækhæn hue rumz, Hur an hue kinayu o hur dum thutholiyan.

3.

hucrut ne cosko bund nu kurne dee phir kubhoo, Unkhiyan jis arsee ne tere moonh pu kholiyan.

4.

Undam i gool pu ho nu quba is muze se chak, Jyon khoosh-chhubon ke tun pu musuktee huen choliyan.

Kin ne kiya khiram chumun men ki ub suba, Latee hue bo e naz se bhur bhur ke jholiyan.

6.

Saqee puhonch shitab ki toojh bin is ubr se, Purte nuheen tugurg burustee huen goliyan. •

7.

Kya chahiye tojhe sur i ungosht pur hina, Jis be gonuh ke khoon men chahen dooboliyan.

8.

Jyon burf hogu e huen khoonuk ub bootani hind, Nisbut oonhon kee gurm huen kabool kee loliyan.

9.

Suoda ke dil se saf nu ruhtee thec zoolfi yar, Shane ne beech pur ke girhen oskee kholiyan.

Literal Translation.

Where are thy kind innocent expressions now, that, having captivated my heart, thou talkest to me thus?—All thy words are gibes, and every sentence is raillery.

Not a moment without sarcasm, and each breath has become a taunting joke.

Admiration hath not yet allowed the mirror to sleep, that opened its eyes on thy countenance.

The capsule of the flower doth not burst with such charms, as when the garment of the fair gives way.

Who hath been walking in the garden, that now the zephyrs come overloaded with the perfumes of blandishment?

Come quickly, my beloved, for without thec the clouds are not discharging hail, but bullets.

Why shouldst thou dye the tips of thy fingers with hina*, while they can be dipped in the blood of victims (to thy love)?

The damsels of India have become as cold as ice, and are rivalled in affection by the maids of Kabool.

The tresses of my love were not in concord with Suoda, till the comb, interposing, unravelled their (prejudices) contortions.

* The ligustrum indicum, or eastern privet, called also menhdee, and much used for staining the nails, hands, and feet, of a red colour

Paraphrase.

1.

Was thy innocent prattle divested of art, That formerly ravish'd my ear,

With the view of insidiously stealing this heart?
Ah! whence these harsh words I now hear?

2.

Why thus constantly poison whate er you express, With scoffs, gibes, and taunting unkind?

Can satirical wit on a lover's distress

Become a benevolent mind?

3.

Since the morn I beheld thee so lovely and gay, These eyes have been strangers to sleep;

All the night for my fairest I ravingly pray, Whole days, can do nothing but weep.

4.

Not a bud where the lily just peers do I see, So charms its admirer above,

As the muslin receding can fascinate me, To gaze on thy snow-balls of love.

. 5.

When Aurora from Phœbus comes tripping it by, Her shape, breath ambrosial, and air, Are so much my dear nymph's, I distractedly cry, Whence, whither thus early, my fair?

Though you clouds burst with peals we have nothing to fear,

Since the skies will relenting avert,

While such innocence, beauty, and goodness, are near,

Each shaft but thy own from my heart.

7.

If kind nature, not art, lilies, roses, can grace, With pencil and colours divine, Shall paint sacrilegiously beauties deface, Each bloom sees with envy in thine?

8.

How, ye damsels of Hind, prove more frigid and cool,

Than hills cover'd over with snow,

As our genial warm plains, while the maids of Kabool

With love amid icicles glow.

9.

Are those locks not intended to rivet thy *chain?*Fly, Suoda, inchantment is there!

What comb hath the power to release thee again,

From jetty fell ringlets of hair?

By way of variety, and to accommodate my juvenile military students with something more immediately in their department, I shall in this place present them with the words of command, generally adopted in the British Indian armies, and also with a few of the Articles of War, in the Hindoostanee language, as knowledge of these will serve to introduce them to all the rest, to be found either in those works I have already published, or in some future publication, for the particular use of East India cadets.

Preliminary and Supplementary Observations, by the late Lieutenant Robert Webster, of the Bengal Military Service, and by the Author of these Sheets.

The following Military Terms, made use of by the natives in their own and our armies, may be of service to any young officer who is appointed to a Sipahee corps, immediately on his arrival in India. After becoming master of them, he might attend every drill, observing carefully the expressions which the drill-serjeant makes use of in explaining the English words of command, when teaching the recruits their exercise. The whole should then be noted down, very carefully and alphabetically, in a memorandum book, the officer paying due attention to their orthography. When he thinks he has obtained a sufficient number of words to be able to instruct a squad, he might, with kis commander's leave, take charge of one, which he should exercise, morning and evening, for near two months; pronouncing the words of command at first slowly and distinctly with the extent of his voice. Rapidity of utterance will come of its own accord afterwards. By so doing he will get acquainted with the men, and they accustomed to his command, the advantages attendant on which are well known to every officer, but more especially to those who belong to the native regiments.

The military scholar will do well to recollect, that many useful words must be omitted in the Vocabulary, from their having no such expressions in the Hindoostanee. In these instances, however, he must use the English word more or less corrupted, according to circumstances, with which a little practice will soon familiarize the learner. Some few of the corruptions in question will appear in the Second Volume, which will afford no bad clue to all the rest, and those in Italics here, are commonly preferred in our armies. It cannot be expected that the natives, in every regiment of the service, will make use of all the words of command exactly as they occur in these pages, since every one will take a certain latitude in las own translation of the English. At all events, those used by the late Lieutenant Webster will be generally understood, and may serve as a good model for others, who may feel inclined to bring this department of military duty to the perfection which it certainly merits, in every point of view, in our armies. Many of the words which are inserted in the Second Volume, are probably omitted here, and a few in the present list belong exclusively to the artillery, as I at first intended to have given, not only all their terms, but those belonging to the sea service also.

After examining the written materials that my friends had collected for the above purpose, I found such a chaos of corruptions and intermixture of tongues, as to make me relinquish the attempt, at least for the present. I may at some future period be induced to prenare positive more complete military and naval vocabulary, than I could accomplish now, a contrary if the fortunate enough to receive any intermed to assume and one negative ment in such a man, with private satisfact on and positive advantage.

 $\Lambda$

Accourge ents, keel kauta, saz saman.

Land et a shuel, (to take) shust-bandhaa

Astronce to, samere the ha, burhus

Ambush, danw, gaia, ghat.

Ammunition, jungee tonta, baroot golee, saman jungee.

Angle, goshu, kona.

Λn♥il, ghun, niha ee, sundan.

Approaches, morchu, morchal, urgura.

Alarm, pokar, hank pokar.

Armistice, wuqfu, moshlut, thuhrawa.

Armour, buktur, jhool, chara eenu.

Arms, huthiyar, hurbu, silah,

Arsenal, silah-khanu.

Articles of war, lushkuree a een.

Artillery, topen, top-khanu, (man) golundaz.

Attack, hulla, dhawa, churha,ee, humlu.

To attack, (in front) moohra marna, (the rear) pichharee-marna, (in flank) kumur- (ya) nee-marna, v. flank.

Axle-iree, dhooree.

Axe, tubur, tubul, koolharee, (pick) guentee.

B.

Baggage, bon gah, cheezbust, buheer.

Barrel, peepa, (gun) nulee.

Rarrier, urgura, phatuk.

Base, in a jur, beoniyed.

Bastion, boorj.

Battery, morchu, dumdumu.

Belt, purtula, dab, duwal.

To blockade, gher-lena, nakabyndee-k. moha siru-k. gird-k.

Blunderbuss, dhumaka, qurabeen.

Body of men, guroh, risalu, ghol, tomun.

Demb, hooqqu, ghoobare ka gola.

Bombardier, golundaz.

Breach, koombhul, boogharu, durar, phoogshigaf, (practicable) chulta boogharu.

Breast-plate, chupras.

Brigade, dustu.

Brimstone, gundhuk.

C.

Carriage, ruhroo, ruhkulu, tukht.

Camp, pura o, lushkur-gah.

Cantonments, chhaonee.

Cavalier, dumdumu, v. troeper
Capitulation, quol qurar.
Carabine, qurabeen, dhummer.
Cartouch, tosdan.
Cartridge, tonta, (light) mit osee. salmo se

• 'grape, christ
Casceent, murinete
Cavalier, took-sawai
Centre, beech, mif, quib.
C. salton et arms, me bine, sectoria.
Commade, chadur-dopment bine, sectoria.

* To ware a sheet or cloth of any kind round the head repeatedly, implies that the people who do so, consider their selves in the power of the enemy, and mean to submit accordingly. This in day light answers every purpose; but the rude state of military tactics in the East, has not yet provided an adequate expedient, during hostile attacks at night. The natives would, under such circumstances, give over firing, call out uluman, uluman, or uman, uman, and probably wave a light or torch circularly in the air, to show that they had submitted, and expected mercy accordingly. In the day time, even when a man leaves the ranks and approaches the enemy unarmed, he is considered as sacred as a person among us Chamber of a gun, top kee kothee.

Chain, zunjeer.

Chatterge to, lura ce mangna, mooqabulu-chahna, (as a sentry) tokna, roktok-k.

Colours, nishan, jhunda, bueruq.

Commission, cohdedaree-sunud.

Company, biradurce.

Compliment, sulam.

Convoy, gafilu, budrugu rusance.

To countermarch, kawa deke phirna

Court-Martial, lushkuree udalut.

Cuirass, chara eenu, jhool.

Cymbal, jhanjh, munjeera.

D. 2

Decamp to, chule-jana, ooth-j. kooch-k.

Defences, ar, ot, urgura, buchao.

Defile, duru, naka, ghat, gulee.

Deserter, bhugora, firaree.

Detachment, ghol, risalu, v. brigade, &c. tu eenatee.

Division, tola, tolee, v. body.

Discharge, burturfee kee chithee, (to) nam-katna juwab-d.

Drum, tumboor, tublu.

bearing a flag of truce, and will be received in the light of a pacific messenger demanding a parley, &c. from the adverse army. Drummer, tumboor-chee.

Duty, baree, khidmut, kam, nuekbeen, chuokee

E.

Embrazure, rund, top ka jhuroka.

To Enfilade, aga-marna, or baudhna.

Encamp to deru- or mookam-k.

Evolution, har! 1!

Exacts, gawald.

P

Fascin' il mka and bacter'

Fethers, we harmen

Fer of Mandows, distillio, buhami

Field piece, top ruhkulu, top julchee

Flank, bughul, kumor, bicare loan

File, pant, pura, qutar.

File off to, qutar qutar-or kawa de ke-chulna.

Forlorn hope, * commedwar sipahiyon ka jutha, janbazon ka ghol.

Forage, kuhee, rusud, luhna, seedha, panee.

Form to, bunna, bunana, pura-bandhna.

Fort, quluu, gurh, gurhee.

* Were this translated literally, the inauspicious name alone would prevent the natives from comprehending what was intended by the expression among us. It is in cases of this nature, where not only the skill of a linguist is Fosse, khunduq, pueghar. v. ditch.

Eurlough, ruza, chhoottee.

G.

Gabion, inkree.

Gate, phatuk, durwazu.

General, surdar, bukhshee, (in chief) meer-bukhshee.

Gin, thekee.

Glacis, poshtu, dugram,

Grenade, hooqqu, (thrower) hooqqe-baz,

To Ground, solana.

Guard, chuokee, puhru, (advanced) hurawul, qurawul, ugaree, (rear) chund wul, pichharee.

To Guard, nigahbanee-k. khubur-lena, hifazut-k.

Guide, hurkaru, duoraha, rah-bur.

Gun-carriage, urabu, v. carriage.

H.

Helmet, top, khod:

Hide, cham, chursa.

Howitzer, urabu.

Hospital, beemar-khanu.

Hurdle, thuthur.

requisite, but that discrimination also, which can be attained from a real knowledge of the manners and customs of the people, through their vernacular tongue alone.

I.

Infantry, puedul, piyade.

Intrench to, morchu bundee ar sefabut koochu-k

K.

Knapsack, jhola.

Estable chuniach, d. cc.
Laboratory, haroste or kar kina samber salwoo, v. no sage,
do m., um, sus.

1,4

Bragarine to Michaeller of St. 1986.

Match, jamgee, diya sufaee.

Mine, soorung, (to spring) soorung-marna.

Mortar, hooqqu, ban, ghobara.

Motion, hurkut. Mould, sancha.

Mutiny, dunga, fusatl, hungamu, fitnu,

Ο.

Oblique, kona kanee, tirchha.

Officer, surdar, conde-dar, v. general.

Ordnance, chuo chukkee, v. gun.

Outpost, aspas kee tu eenatee.

Ρ.

Parade, quwa id-gah, v. exercise.

Parley, juwab suwal, (to beat) kupra-hilana, v. chamade.

Party, jutha, risalu, tu eenatee.

Pass, nikasee kee chithee, dustuk rahdaree, purwan, (strait) dura, ghat, v. dejile.

Patrole, gilawa, tilayu.

Park, top-khanu.

Palisade, kutghura.

Peace, mel, sooluh.

Picket, mekh, khoontee.

Picquet, tilayu, girdawuree, itaqee.

Pivot, khoont.

Pioneer, bel-dar.

Plan, nuqshu.

Platform, chubootru, muchan.

Port-fire, muhtabee, huthsphool, v. match.

Pole, phur, joo a, bum.

Priming wire, sozun, sooa.

Priming (powder) runjuk, (pouch, &c.) runjuk-dan.

Q.

Quadrant, ostorlab.

R.

Rammer or pounder, moosul, doormoos.

Rampart, fușeel, kumur-koța, deewar.

Range (of shot, gole ka) tuppa, pulla, mar, chot.

Rear, pichhwara, peechha.

To recoil, puluțna, huțana.

Redoubt, morchu.

To relieve, budul-lena, budlee-kurna. Rendezvous, udda, mujmu. Reserve, phaltoo, oobaroo, fazil. Retreat, puhloo-tihee, (to) hutna. Rocket, ban. Roll, ismnuweesee, furd, fihrist.

Sally to, khorooj-k. oobhurna. Sand bags, baloo kee thuelee. Sash, jalputka. Scaling lædder, kumund, v. ladder. Shovel or spade, belchu, koodal, phuora. Sight, mussa, mukhee, deed-ban. Sling, duwalee, v. bek. Sponge staff, sombha. Squadron, ghol, dustu, jhoond. Stockade, kumur kota, v. palisade. Sword, kirch, neemchu, tulwar.

T.

Target, chand. Tarpaulin, ghuta top, mom-jamu. Tent, deru, khuemu, tumboo, pal. Touch-hole, runjuk-ghura, (ya) -soorakh. Tompion, dutta. Trigger, lublubee, kul. Troop, tomun, risalu. Trooper, suwar.

Trunnions, purkan.

Tumbril, petec.

V.

Vanguard, hurawul, agaree, mohra, v. guard.

U.

Uniform, sipahiyanu bana

W.

Wadding, kusun, nuwalu.

War, jung, lura ec.

Weapons, hurbu, huthiyar, v. arms.

Wing, puhloo, bughul, kanee, (right) muemuna, (left) muesura.

Y.

Yoke, joo a, joowat, juwalee.

Order arms, bundooq ootaro.

Fix bayonets, sungeen churha,o.
Shoulder arms, bundooq kandhe pur rukho.
Present arms, sulamee ka hath.
Charge bayonets, sungeen ka hath.
Make ready, ghora do pa e pur churha,o.
Half-cock firelocks, ek pa e pur ghora rukho.
Present, shust lo (ya) bundooq jhooka,o.
Fire, chhoro, dagho, or maro.
Handle cartridge, ton e pur hath rukho.

Open pans, phirjoola- (ya) piyalu-kholo.

Prime, runjuk pila o.

Load, tonta bhuro.

Draw ramrod, guz nikalo.

Ram down cartridge, tonta guz se maro.

Return ramrod, guz phir do.

Seize the firelock with a firm grasp, bundooq moothiyake pukuro.

Prime and load, runjuk pilao, tonta bhuro.

Recover arms, kan se mar.

Dress by the right, duheene nuzur kuro, burabur hoja,o.

Dress by the left, baen nuzur kuro, burabur hoja,o.

Eyes to the right, duheene nuzur.

Eyes to the left, baen nugur.

By the right backwards dress, duheene dekh peechhe hutke burabur hoja,o.

By the left backwards dress, ba en dekh peechhe hutke burabur hoja o.

By the right forwards dress, duheene dekh age burhke burabur hoja,o.

By the left forwards dress, ba en dekh age burhke burabur hoja o.

To the right face, duheene phiro.

To the left face, baen phiro.

To the right about face, duheene se adha chukkur phiro.

To the left about face, baen se adha chukkur phiro.

Rear ranks take open order, pichharee kholo.

Rear ranks take close order, pichharee milo. •

Pile arms, bundoog je oorce kuro.

Ground arms, bundooq sola o.

Stand at ease, hath mila o (ya) maro.

Attention, jang se hath milao.

Keep up your heads, sir oothao.

Ordinary time, march, thumbe qudum se age chulo.

Step short, eree angoothe ke pas rukh dheere qudum chulo.

Quick march, juldee qudum oothao.

Step out, lumba qudum rukho.

Change the step, qudum budlo.

Halt, khure ruho.

To the right wheel, duheene khoont pur samne se chukkur khao.

To the left wheel, baen khoont pur samne se chukkur khao.

On your right backwards wheel, duheene khoont pur peechhe se chukkur khao.

On your left backwards wheel, baen khoont pur peechhe se chukkur maro.

- The company will step back six paces, kumpunce chhu qudum peechhe hutega.
- To the left or right oblique, baen ya duheene tirchha qudum chulo.
- Point your toes, panw ke punje duba o.
- To wheel on the center, beench ke khoont pur chukkur marna.
- Mark time, upnee juguh khure ho qudum ootha.o.
- To march in file, qutar qutar chulna.
- The company will advance, kumpunce age burho.
- To recruits will go to ball practice every evening, hur roz sham ko niye sipahee chand maree ke waste ja enge.
- There will be an inspection of arms to-morrow morning, see that they are all very clean, fujur kul kante kee dekhaee hogee, dekh ki sub uchhee turuh saf ruhen.
- Take care that the supernumerary arms are cleaned every day, khuburdar ki surunjam jo oobaroo (ya ufzood) hue roz roz mula jawe.
- Bring me a written report of the company daily, kumpunee ka uhwal roz roz humare pas likh-laya kuro.
- When were you enlisted? toom kub nuokur hoo e?

Press the butt well to the shoulder, koonda monddhe pur uchhee turuh duba o.

Pull the trigger strong with the middle finger, beech kee unglee lublubee pur zor se dabo.

Tell off the company into three sections, kumpunce ko teen tolee kuro.

The company will wheel in echellon of sections, pultun tirchhee tolee hoja egee, or pultun seerhee ka kam kurega.

At what time does the battalion march tomorrow morning? fujur kis wuqt pultun kooch kuregee?

How many men are for picquet? aj rat ketne juwan tilaye kee nuokuree ke waste huen?

Articles of War.

Article IV. Section 2.

Any officer, non-commissioned officer, or soldier, who being present at any mutiny or sedition, does not use his utmost endeavours to suppress the same, or coming to the knowledge of any mutiny, or intended mutiny, does not without delay give information thereof to his commanding officer, shall be punished by a court-martial with death, or otherwise, according to the nature of his offence.

IV. 2.

Chuothee aeen doosre bab kee.

Jo ko ee chhota bura cohdedar ya sipahee, kisee dunge ya fusad men hazir hoke, upne muqdoor bhur cosee ko mulmet nu kure; ya kisoo dunge ya cos ke irade se waqif hoke, troont upne surdar ko iskee khubur nu puhconchawe, tuo suza coskee court-martial kee tujweez se qutl hoga, ya uor turuh kee tumbeeh upnee tuqseer ke la iq pawega.

Article V. Section 2.

Any officer or soldier who shall strike his superior officer, or draw, or offer to draw, or shall lift up any weapon, or offer any violence against him, (being in the execution of his office) on any pretence whatsoever, or shall disobey any lawful command of his superior officer, shall suffer death, or such other punishment as shall, according to the nature of his offence, be inflicted upon him by the sentence of a court-martial.

V. 2..

Panchween a een doosre bab kee.

Ko ee cohdedar ya sipahee, jo upne se bure ya qudeem cohdedar ko mare, ya tulwar cos pur khuenche, ya khuencha chahe, ya kisoo huthiyar ko oothawe, ya kisee turuh kee zuburdustee numood kure, kisoo hoojjut se; ya upne se bure ya qudeem oohdedar ka ko ee wajibee hookm nu mane tuo wooh mardalaja ega, ya uor ko ee uesee siyasut jo oos ke goonah ke mowafiq hogee, so court-martial kee tujweez se oos ko deeja egee.

Article IV. Section 5.

Whatsoever officer or soldier shall be convicted of having advised or persuaded any other officer or soldier to desert the service, shall suffer such punishment as shall be inflicted upon him by the sentence of a court-martial.

IV. 5.

Jo ko ee cohdedar, ya sipahee, kisee uor cohdedar, ya sipahee ko nokree se bhagne ko kuhe, ya sikhawe, uo yih cos pur sabit ho; tuo cosko uesee siyasut milegee juesee court-martial kee tujweez se thuhra ee ja egee.

Article III. Section 10.

Every non-commissioned officer or soldier, who shall be convicted at a court-martial of having sold or lost, or spoiled through his neglect, his horse, arms, clothes, or accourtements, shall undergo such weekly stoppages (not exceeding the half of his pay) as a court-martial shall judge sufficient for repairing the loss or damage, and shall suffer imprisonment, or such other corporal punishment as his crime shall deserve.

III. 10.

Teesree aeen duswen bab kee.

Hur ko ee huwaldar, ya uor ko ee chhota ohdedar, ya sipahee, jo upne ghore, huthiyaron, kupron, ya sipahiyane surinjamon ko beche, kho e, ya upnee ghuflut se bigare, uor yih courtmartial men oos pur sabit ho; tuo uesa dand hur athware ooskee adhee tulub se liya ja ega, jucsa ki court-martial thuhrawe, oos nooqsan uor kumtee ke poora kurne ko; uor qued bhee hoga, ya etnee mar kha ega, jetnee ooskee tuqseer ke la iq ho egee.

Article I. Section 11.

All non-commissioned officers and soldiers, who shall be found one mile from the camp, without leave in writing from the commanding officer, shall suffer such punishment as shall be inflicted upon them by the sentence of a court-martial.

I. 11.

Puehlee a een egarwen bab kee.

Sub ko ee huwaldar, ya uor ko ee chhote cohdedar, ya sipahee, jo lushkur ke mooqam se adh kos pur pa e jawen, upne surdar kee rookhsut kee chithee bina; tuo oon ko uesee tumbeeh milegee juesee court-martial kee tujweez se tuhhra ee ja egee.

Article II. Section 11.

No officer or soldier shall lie out of his quarters, garrison, or camp, without leave from his superior officer, upon the penalty of being punished, according to the nature of his offence, by the sentence of a court-martial.

II. 11.

Doosree a een egarwen bab kee.

Litahiye ki kò ee oohdedar, ya sipahee upne surdar kee purwangee bina, kuheen bahur rat bhur nu ruhe, upne dere, qilue, ya lushkur ke mooqam, ya chhuonee se, nuheen to, suza pawega, upnee tuqseer ke moowafiq court-martial kee tujweez se.

Article 111. Section 11.

Every non-commissioned officer and soldier shall retire to his quarters or tent at the beating of the retreat; in default of which he shall be punished, according to the nature of his offence, by the commanding officer.

III. 11.

Teesree a een egarwen bab kee.

· Hurek huwaldar, ya uor kisoo chhote chdedar o sipahee ko chahiye, ki sham kee top ya tumboor bajne pur, upne upne dere men, ya thikane pur jaruhe, nuheen to upnee tuqseer kee see suza wuhan ke surdar se pawega.

Article IV. Section 11.

No officer, non-commissioned officer, or soldier, shall fail of repairing at the time fixed, to the place of parade, of exercise, or other rendezvous appointed by his commanding officer, if not prevented by sickness, or some other evident necessity; or shall go from the said place of rendezvous, or from his guard, without leave from his commanding officer, before he shall be regularly dismissed or relieved, on the penalty of being punished according to the nature of his offence, by the sentence of a court-martial.

IV. 11.

Chouthee a een, egarwen bab kee. Ugur ko ee chhota ya bura ohdedar, ya sipahee qossoor kure bur wuqt puhonchne men quwa idgah pur, ya uor jugih jumu hone kee, ki jo surdar ne thuhra ee ho, bughuer beemaree, ya uor ko ee zuroorut zahiree; ya osee jugih se ya kisee chuokee puhre se upne surdar ke kuhe bina, ya mowafiq dustoor upnee budlee ya chhoottee ke age oothjawe; tuo court-martial kee tujweez se juesee ooskee tuqseer thuhregee wueseehee suza oos ko milegee.

Article V. Section 11.

Whatever commissioned officer shall be found drunk on his guard, party, or other duty under arms, shall be cashiered for it; any non-commissioned officer or soldier so offending, shall suffer such corporal punishment as shall be inflicted by the sentence of a court-martial.

V. 11.

Panchween a een egarwen bab kee.

Jo ko ee bura ohdedar, upnee chuokee puhre pur, ya tu eenatee, ya kisoo uor khidmut pur, huthiyar bandhe hoo e mutwala paya jawe; tuo is bat ke waste burturuf hoga, uo ko ee chhota ohdedar, ya sipahee jo uesa goonah kure, etee mar kha ega jetee court-martial kee tujweez men thuhra ee ja egee.

The 6th Article of the Regulations relative to Native Recruits, published in Minutes of Council of the 8th of August 1796.

Prior to enrolment, the following Articles of War shall be read and explained to him, (the recruit) viz. the 2d, 3d, 4th and 5th Articles of the 2d Section; the 1st, 3d and 4th Articles of the 5th Section; the 2d and 3d Articles of the 10th Section; and the 1st, 2d, 6th, 13th, 16th and 20th Articles of the 11th Section.—At the same time, the following Declaration is to be made to him, and the following Oath administered to him, in the front of the colours of the battalion, according to the tenets of his belief.

Chhuthween babut hookmon se jo nikie the ungrezee fuoj ke niye sipahiyon ke waste, August kee athween tareekh, sutruh suo chhe anwe sal ungrezee.

Hur ek nu e sipahee kee istanuweesee ke age chahiye ki oos ko soona ee uo boojha ee jawen ungrezee fuoj kee yehee a eenen; yuune doosree, teesree, chouthee, o panchween aeenen doosre bab kee; puehlee, teesree o chouthee a eenen panchwen bab kee; doosree o teesree a eenen duswen bab kee, puehlee, doosree, chhuthween, terhween, solhween, beesween a eenen egarwen bab kee. Tis pur bhee pultun ke nishan ke samne chahiye ki oosko age ka shurt namu zahir kiya jawe, uor age kee qusm oose khila ee jawe oos ke deen o dhurum ke i utiqad ke moowafiq

Declaration.—" In time of peace, after having served three years, on making application for your discharge, through the commanding officer of your company, it will be granted to you, in two months from the date of your application, provided it will not cause the vacancies in your company to exceed ten, in which case you must remain until that objection be removed; but in time of war, you have no claim to a discharge, but must remain, and do your duty, until the necessity of retaining you in the service shall cease."

Shurt namu.—scoluh ke wuqt teen burus kee khidmut kurne ke buud, nokree se juwab mangne pur, upnee company ke surdar kee muurifut, toomharee durkhwast se do muheene ke beech men toomko milega: is shurt se, ki toomharee company men dus admee se ziyadu kum nu hon; nuheen to, toom ko ruhna hoga, jubtuk yihee rokajo jata nu ruhe; pur lugi ika frugt ikamhara koochh duuwa nuheen inio burturfee ka, bulki toom ko khwah mu kayad suhiik hoga, upnee khidmut pur, jublug toopi kooniktee men rukhne kee ghuruz muoqooli na too

Oath.—" I, A. B. inhabitant of village Pergunnah Subah son of do swear, that I will never forsake or abandon my colours, that I will march whereever I am directed, whether within or beyond the Company's territories; that I will implicitly obey all the orders of my commanders, and in every thirtz behave myself as becomes a good soldier, and faithful servant of the Company, and failing in any part of my duty as such, I will submit to the penalties described in the Articles of War, which have been read to me."

Lushkuree qusum namu.—Muen fulanu, ruhne wala bustee fulanee ka, Rurgune fulane ka, soobu fulane ka, beta fulane ka, qusum khata hoon ki muen hurgiz upne nishan ko nuheen chhorja,oonga, o kooch bhee kuroonga juhan kuheen ka hookm pa,oon, ya Company ke umul bhur ho, ya bahur, uor upne surdaron ke sub how tun o mun se manoonga, o hur ek bat men upne tu een nibahoonga, juesa bhule sipahee, uo Company ke wufadar nuokur ko phube; uo wuesahee hoke jo kisoo thoreesee upnee khidmut men qoosoor kuroon, tuo muen qubool kuroonga suza en jo likhee hoo ee huen a een lushkuree men uor mere rooburoo purhee gu een huen.

In the passage to Ind., as the subsequent Collection, however imperimentary prove highly useful to the Hindoost in children, it is here at his service, under the to the subsequent.

A Naval Vocabulary, English und Hindoostanee.

If mist be well known: ... v person, that in the high state of perfection to which naval tactics have been brought among Europeans, and the very low state in which they have always been among the natives of India, (or I may perhaps say, Asia) we must have a great many different articles, which they knew nothing of when they came into our ships at first. The conclusion I mean to draw from this is, that an immense number of English, Portuguese, and other names, are still used for many' parts belonging to a ship. Many of these words even are mutilated, sometimes so much as to render it difficult to say whether they be mere corruptions or not. As an example, though bumba be a very different sound from pump, still I have little doubt of its being me latter word, only sounded ever after, according to the impression it first made on the ears of the natives; because b and p are not only congenial consonarts, but the Indians are fond of affixing the final a to many words corrupted and adopted from other tongues. That mumbu signifies a spling; fountain, or gush of water, in Arabic, the Compiler will allow, without in the least-invalidating thereby his own conjecture. Another remark worthy of attention is, there are many parts of a ship which a British officer seldom, perhaps never, has occasion to speak of to a native of India, hence there are no Hindoostanee names used for such parts. This last intimation was necessary to prevent the Compiler from being blamed for leaving out the names of many, otherwise essential, parts of a ship.

· He claims very little merit to himself, but cannot forbear mentioning, although unauthorized to do this, how much he is indebted to · Captain William Ramsay, of the Country Service. Who was so kind as to give him verbally, not only the English part of this Vocabulary, but also the Hindoostanee, pronouncing the whole of the words exactly as he had been accustomed to hear them used in actual practice. Notwithstanding all our care, many of the names must be rather incorrect, from the impossibility of learning, with sufficient precision, any language by the ear alone; but I am confident, from the experience of Laptain Ramsay, that any person, pronour new words as they are here spelt, cannot full termake his hearers understand him. He, v. e wsz. must not expect this desirable consequence, until he knows the key to the orthograph resent Work, to insert it in the last Indian Guide, had the papers reached him in sufficient time for that purpose. To the friend from whom he at last received them, the British Indian naval world are indebted for the present Vocabulary, which has long been one desideratum among the many sea-faring people of all nations who frequent India. They will not only find these pages highly useful from port forces mariners, in distant royages, in wait themselves of the peoples services from that part of the world, no man can doubt of this small work producing the most beneficial consequences. At all evers, it may serve as the foundation of something outsin more useful, in this hitherto neglected dipartment of the Indian tongue. The few chrases which have been given, will be no bad speciminate which have been given, will be no bad speciminate which are still wanted to rende. World complete guide at sea, as well as on shore, wherever the Hindoostanee language may be concerned in the safety of vessels and their navigators.

Sir Home Pophan was some years ago at the trouble of compiling a naval vocabulary for the use of the fleet under his command in those seas; we cannot therefore well despair of seeing some valuable work yet published, expressly upon the subject in question. Though no body will dispute that the language of Indian sailors is at best a medley or jargon, still any man may assert, that bad as it is, and nothing can well be worse, it is nevertheless better than no medium at all. When we recollect, that all sciences must be rude and crude in their first outset, lary. Besides, if the lives of people depend on prompt orders, it signifies very little how barbarous and ungrammatical the language of such instructions may be. Indeed we have a very popular lesson in our own speech, in matters of this kind, in the story of "Extinguish that nocturnal illumination aloft." "No such rope, an please your honour, in the whole top." "Douce the glim, Jack!" "Aye, aye, Sir." After these few preliminary observations, we shall leave the praise-worthy "mpiler to speak for his self.

A

Aback Abaft, Able-bodied, Bl ... Aboard-ship, Ju. ---- main-tack, Bo do bura moora. Pher, pherke, ghoomke About, Ara. Aburton. Acorn, Kalsur kee topee. Adrift, Chhoota. Agil Afore. Peechhil. Peechhil ka.

374	HINDOOSTANEE
Aground,	Chheeta, luga, sookhe pur churha.
Ahead,	Agil.
A-lee,	Bordoo.
Allowance,	Resum, from ration.
Aloft,	copur, dol pur.
Along-side,	Bordoo men, bhirke.
shore,	Kinare kinare.
lying,	Kurwut hoke.
Aloof,	Door, tufawut.
Amain, .	Ek dum, sub milke.
Amid ships,	Beecha beech, beech
	. men.
Ammin (for the	lead) Proom kee churbee.
Anchor,	Lungur.
shank,	// kee dundee.
eye,	ke anile ka chhed.
ring,	ka anila.
nut,	. ka kan.
crown,	ka nok.
stock,	· — ka danga.
bill,	ke soopre ka nok.
sheet,	Sheet lungur.
best bo	wer, Bura lungur.
small b	ower, Chhota lungur.
- kedge,	Kedge lungur.
— stream	Stream lungur.

Anchor, to cast,	Lungur-dalna or chhor-d.
at,	· pur.
comes home, drags,	kusar kurta.
—— is foul,	men bolta · ·
a-trip,	• otha.
an end,	khura.
Anchorage,	baree of lungur
	kurne keé juguh.
A-peek.	Peek.
Astern,	Peechhil.
Ashore,	Kinare.
Athwart-hause, ·	Samne ara pura,
Avast,	Bu,

* In my passage home I commerced a regular vocabulary myself, and would have finished it completely, had not the requisite application and study menaced by constitution with a relapse to the very complaint in my head that drove me from India. This unpleasant sensation, during the voyage, deterred me from prosecuting the work farther than a few of the first letters, which have all been lost since, but the first, or A, above, and even it on board is capable of still greater extension, and that improvement which cannot be obtained on shore. A task of this nature may yet serve to begaile the tedium of a long passage, and furnish the nautical world with a work of great utility, something on the plan of the Awning,

Chhuturec.

В.

Backstay, (breast)

(after)

Ballast.

Belaying pin,

Bell.

Bentick shrouds,

Between decks.

Bill boards, *

To broach to

Bight,

To bale,

Bends.

Birth,

Barnacle.

Boarding-netri

Bay, .

Pet fruedee.

Peechhil fruedee.

Neelum.

Folit.

Ghuree.

Falta arvil.

Tootuk ke beech.

Phir-jana.

Goobba.

Panee-nikalna.

Kumur bund.

Juguh, mukan.

Kaloo lona keera. Bordoo kee jalee.

Ghop.

only part to which I real-stapable of devoting my time and ' attention, now published in the expectation of thereby stimulating some other period facty to finish what I had just begun, when bad health arrested my career in the outset.

* Those which have no Hindoostanee, occur here in Italics, to show they are used by the natives, as it would be unnecessary to epeat the same word. These and other blanks, every person car fill up, when he finds better expressions than the mere English for them.

Beacon,	Buota.
To Bilge,	tootna, torna.
To belay,	Bandhna.
Bank or shoal,	Chur, khurabu.
To break bulk,	Khan kholna.
Binnacle,
lamps,	Sheeshee.
• •	Directice.
Bitts,	Bit ka borsa.
— stopper,
Block,	Koopee.
shelve,"	Koopee ka rada.
—— pin, ·	Koopee kee chabee.
Boat,	Muchwar.
long,	Bura muchwar.
hook,
Boatswain, &c.	Surhung, tundel.
Bobstay, Bolt,
Boom,	•
Bowline, cringle,
bridle,	Bowlihe ka mat.
Bow,	Agil.
Bowsprit,	Subdura.
cap,	ka took.
shrouds,	labran.
gammoning,
	B 3

Brace,
Brail,	Stringee.
Broken backed,	Kumree.
Break-water,	Poshtu.
Bucket,	Baltee.
Bull's eye,	Lada.
Bunt, Buntline, Buoy,
C	•
Cabin,	Kumra.
Cable,	Umar. '
sheet,	Sheet umar.
best bower,	Bura umar.
stream	Stream umar.
——— bits,	Umar ka bit.
Camboose,	Chooldan.
Canvas,	Seer ka kupra (lit. sail's cloth)
Carpenter,	Mistree, sootar.
- s mast,	ka mate.
Cap,	Tœk.
Cape,	Sees, tek.
Cargo,	Bhurtee.
Carronade;	Tumboora top:
Capstern,	Duoŗ.
bar,	ka bar.

Capstern pall,	Duor ka pall.
Cat block,	Cat koopee.
Cat block fall,	ka fall.
harpings,	Arvil.
head,	Cat.
stopper,	— ka boorsa.
hook,
Caulker,	Kalputce.
Caulking mallet,	ka moogra.
iron,	ka loha.
Chain board,	Mez or Mej.
plate, '	ka loha or puṭṭa.
Charnel,	Mej.
Chissel,	•
Cleet,
Clew,	Korhya.
Clewgarnet,	Stringee.
Clewline,	Stringee.
Coil, (of rope, &c.)	Sankly.
Coir, (ditto)
Compass,	[and galley.
Cooking place or galley,
	Bura handee.
Coop, (for stock)	Moorghee ka kapera.
Colours,	Nishan.
Creeper,	Chhota grapline, v. grapline.

- hook,

Cross-jack, Shag-seer. Korsee. Cross-trees, Crow, D. Davit, Deadeye, Mutam. Deep sea lead, Bura proom, v. hand tead. ---- line, ----- kee russee. Totuk. Deck, ---- Orlop, Neeche ka tootuk. ---- Gun, Beech ka tootuk. Agil ka boorsa. Dog-stopper, Dolphin-striker, Downhall, otara. Driver, Goosee. —— boom ____ boom. Godee. Dock, E. Earing, Mutwur. Ensign, Nishan, v. colours. Eye-bolt, Eye-let-hit. Fall, Fidd.

Fish-pendant,	Fish ka mat.
Foot-brails,	Neeche ka stringee.
Fore (mast, &c.)	Trinkut.
Foreward	Agil.
Funnel,	·
Ġ	r,
Gaff,	Goosee purwan.
- top sail,	gavee.
Galley,	Chooldan.
Gasket,
Glass,	Sheeshee, v. log, half-
•	hour glass.
Grapline,	Bura grapline, v. creeper.
Grapnel,
Gun-room,	Gunner khanu.
Gunwale,	•
Guy,
•	?
Half-hour glass,	Fix whee kee sheeshee.
Haulyards,	Ringes.
Hammer,	Mart.
Hammock,	Joo! .c.
stauncheon,	- stauncheon.
netting,	——— kee jalee.
Hand-lead,	Hathka or chhota proom.
line,	Chhota proom kee russec.
pump,	Chhota bumba.

Handpike,

Hanks, Kura.

Hatchet, Kralee.

Hatch-bar, Falka ka loha.

Hatchway, Falka.

Hawser,

Hawse-hole,

Heart, Mutam.

Helm, Sookkan, putwar.

----'s man, Sookkanee, a seacunnie!

K.

Hold, Khanu, khan.

Hook,

Horse, or Thana.

Hose, Kebee.

,J.

Jack,

Jeer,

Jib,

Keel, Ural.

Kelson, Falta ural.

Kentledge,

Knee, Kurva.

Knight-head, Moot.

L.

Landyards, Goola.

Larboard, Duwa.

Leasling,	Seezador.
Lee-side,	Barugee turuf.
Lift,	Muntel.
Log,	Top.
—— line,	kee russee.
reel,	kee churkhee.
glass,	kee sheeshee.
Lower,	Neeche.
Lower trussel trees,	Korsee.
$\mathbf{N}$	[ ,
Magazine,	Baroot khanu.
Main (as mast, &c.)	Bura. *
Mallet,	Moogra.
serving,	Fral ka moogra.
Man-rope,	Boordoo kee russee.
Marlin-spike,	Pasad.
Mast,	Dol.
top,	Kavee dol.
top-gallant,	Subur dol.
royal,	Tubar dol.
Mast-stopper,	Dol ka boorsa.
Middle-stay-sail, *	Falta suvo ee.
Mizen,	Kulmee.

* By placing the native words for mast, sail, stay, &c. &c. after fore or mizen, in this way, many compound words may be left entirely to the reader's own ingenuity.

Mizen vangs,	Turnal.
—— peak,	Kulmee peeka.
N	•
Netting,	Jalee.
C	).
Oakum is called stop,
but mangled to	Estop.
Oar,	Hesa.
·	) <sub>.</sub>
Pasline,	,
Peak-brails,	Pulung.
Pendant,	Lumba ma ee.
Pirate,	Dukueţ.
Pinnace,
Pitch,	Damur.
Point,	Reef ka soo ee.
Port,	Khirkee.
Pump, .	Bumba.
stauncheon,	ka stauncheon.
bolt,	, ka keble.
——brake,	ka lath.
spear,	ka lumba jooj.
box,	ka chhota jooj.
leather,	— ka chumra.
tacks,	ka preg.
hook,	ka hook.
sounding-rod,	ka seekh.

Pump hose,	Bumba ka kebee.
Puttock shrouds,	Puttock labran.
——— plates,	ka loha.
	R. , Rail,
Ratline,	Eesket.
Reef-band,
cringle,	[robin.
point,	Mutwur kee seekee, v.
Ridge-rope,
Rigging,	Labran, v. shrouds.
Ring-bolt,	Khura.
Ring-rope,
Robin,	Mutwur kee seekee.
Rope yarn,	•
Royal,	Tubur.
Rudder,	Sookkan, v. helm.
pendants,	ka mat.
	S.
Sail, corrupted to	Seer.
—— fore,	Trinkut.
— main,	Bura seer.
mizen,	Kulmee.
top,	Gavee.
top-gallant,	Subur.
royal,	Tubur.
sky-scraper,	Bubur.
3	$\mathbf{C}_{ullet}$

Sailors plates (for eating off) Toopra. Scupper-hole, Burnul.

Scuttle, Chhor khirkee.

Service, Fral.

Shank painter chain, Zunjeer bosu.

Sheet, Duman.

Side-rope, Boordoo kee russee. Shrouds, Labran, v. rigging.

Slabline, Pulung.

Slings,

Snatch-block, Gul kuṭa koopee. Spring, (stay, &c.) Falta (suvo ee).

Sprit-sail, Subdura, v. bowsprit.

Spunyarn,

Standards, &c. Kurva.
Starboard, Jimnee.
Stay, (the rope) Tie.

Stay, (the sail) Suvo, ee, or suva, ee.

Stay-tackle, Suva ee ka eree.
Stopper-bolt, Boorse ka loha.

Studding-sail, Dustur.

lower,&c. Neeche dustur, &c.

T.

Tack, Mora.
Tackle, Eree.
Truck, topee,

Truck fore,	Trunkut-eree.
yard,	Purwan ka eree.
stay,	Suva ee ka eree.
block,	Eree ka koopee.
pendant,	ka mat.
Taffrail,	•
Tail block,	Sat wala koopee.
Tar,	•
Thimble,
Throat-brails,	Gulle kee stringee.
Tie,
Tiller, ·	Sookkan ka lath or bukra.
rope,	——— kee russee.
wheel,	kee churkhee.
Timber-head,	Mot.
Top,	Panjra (perhaps pinjra,
•	as it is something like a cage).
Top-maul,
Top-rope,
Tow-boat,
Tow-line,
Trusses,	Sar.
——— fall,	— ka fall .
Try-sail,	Goosee (and I believe) kulmee.
Twine,	Scotlee.

•	V.
Vessel,	Juliaz.
	W.
Waist-cloth,	Boordoo ka purdu.
Wales,	Kumurmund.
Water-cask,	Pance ka pipe (misnamed peep).
hose,	Kebee.
scoop,	Scoop (mistermed koop).
Weather-side,	Bapur turuf.
Windlass,	Duor, v. capstern.
Windsail,	•
	Y
Yard,	Purwan.*
arm,	ka lash.

The following are a few necessary words of command in working a ship, without any regard to their order, as every sailor understands that perfectly well.

Ready about, Tueyar ja ega ja ega.
Helm's a lee, Gos bordoo.
Main-sail haul, Phira bura seer.

* By placing the words for main, fore, mizen; main-top, &c. &c. all the yards will be found, which it would have been superfluous to insert here.

Haul forward,
Haul aboard the foretack,
Brace up and haul aft.

Brace up and haul aft, Haul the main top bowline,

Haul aft the fore sheet,

Hoist the jib,
Back the main top sail,
Fill the main top sail,
Square the yards,
Flat in foreward,
Let go the top sail
haul-yards,
Clew up the main-sail,
Let go the top-gallant braces,

Furl the mizen top sail, Reef the fore top sail, Phira o agil.

Tan neeche trinkut mora...

Lag* brace, tan duman.

Tan agil bura gavee howline.

Tan peechhil trinkut duman.

Hoonkar jib.

Booksee † bura gavee.

Bhur bura gavee.

Purwan yuham burabur.

Haleloo agil.

Chardoo gavee hunjes.

Stringee bura seer.

Chhordo subur brace.

Bandh kulmee gavee.

Reef bandh trinkut gavee.

I am apt to think, this should be lug or luga, from lugana, and meaning that people should fix upon the brace; however, this is mere conjecture.

† This word (hooksee) may be from our own word back.

Let go the anchor, Chhordo lungur.

Heave, or hoist,
Hoist away, ·

Hoonkar.

Moor under fours, Char lungur kuro.

Lower, Aniyo.
Avast, Hoho.
Belay, Bandh.

Heave the lead, Proom dal.

------ log, Top dal.

Our ship does not an- Humara juhaz sookkan swer the helm, ko nuheen manta.

The following Officers Names could not with propriety come into the body of the Vocabulary.

Ship's owner, Juhaz ka malik.

Captain, and if a Native, Na-khooda.

Pilot, Urkațee.*

Mate, Malum.

Boátswain,

Purser, . Steward,

* It is supposed they got this name from the only pilots, formerly, in this part of the world, being in the service of the Nuwwab of Urkat (Arcot) which, I think, seems very probable.

· The foregoing sheets of this useful Work, were kept in type for several months, in the fruitless hope of receiving some little assistance from the seafaring gentlemen in India, among whom the Editor distributed a number of copies for correction and enlagement. Want of leisure, or a dread of appearing in print, has probably been the cause of failure on this occasion. among those who were invited to aid the dertaking. Now that it is before the Public, we may be more fortunate, by the time a second edition is called for, and every intermediate communication will be printed, with or without acknowledgment, as the parties concerned may desire. The orders which appeared most essential in a work of this kind, were such as might tend, when promptly obeyed, to save the lives of people who fall overboard, or to prevent the loss of a vessel and crew, perhaps, in particular emergencies. I could not with propriety venture to give these in the grammatical language of Hindoostan, lest men long accustomed to a corrupt dialect might not instantly comprehend what may be communicated in that way, by people still more ignorant of the language than those they address, amidst dangers which admit of no delay. Were a Lushkuree (Lascar) in a dark night to say, Muen muoje ko nuzdeek phootte sconta hoon, I hear the breakers not far off, a vessel might be upon the rocks, merely because the officer did not understand the poor fellow's lingo, time enough to put about and preserve the lives and ship under his charge from instant destruction. Dead men tell no tales; if they could, we would probably learn, that many fatal accidents, by sea and land, originated in ignorance of the popular speech of India, which is every day becoming more important to those at all connected with the British interests in that part of the Empire. In this point of view, I cannot help recommending the completion of a Naval Vocabulary to the serious attention of good Orientalists, either on the passage from or to the East Indies, as they only can then accomplish so desireable a Work.

Before we close this Volume, it is my wish fairly to try the learner's real progress in the syntax and etymology of the Hindoostanee; for, without some share of etymological acumen, and no small adroitness in the application of general principles in grammar to any one language, he never can become a great proficient in Oriental tongues. That no excuse for ignorance may now remain, it seems just, before we proceed to the intended ordeal, that I should indulge the reader with the following digression.

The derivation and composition of words in this language cannot well be very difficult to those who have studied the significant particles and words, from page 62 to 103, in the beginning of the present Work; I shall nevertheless resume the subject here, that as little as possible of this momentous portion of the Hindoostance, may be omitted by me or neglected by the diligent student. Much will depend on the interchangeable letters being well recollected, with a facility of accounting for the suppression or addition of certain letters, either to prevent a disagreeable hiatus or monotonous repetition, of which instances in abundance have been produced, when treating of the Orthoepigraphical Hindee-Roman Alphabet.

Ee is the most common final significant particle, and applicable to so great a variety of meanings, often contradictory in themselves, that practice alone can enable the scholar to handle it with much dexterity in the ninety-nine instances of a hundred, where it occurs etymologically in this tongue. Be-eeman, faithless, udhurmee, dishonest; be-eemanee, faithlessness, udhurm, dishonesty,—is one proof of a thousand, being in fact an inconsistency which must pervade every language derived from several such opposite sources as the Hindoostance, viz. the Sunskrit, Arabic, and Persian.

Tee, nee, gee, o.ee, a.ee, on some occasions, usurp the place of ee: Kum, deficient, kum-tee, deficiency; chand-nee, moon-light, lachar-ges, helpless-ness, nek-o.ee, good-ness, udhik-a.ee, over-plus; gurm-a.ee, heat, toorsh-a.ee, sour-ness, acul fruits, &c.

Gee is the ordinary adjunct of Persian participles in du, or adjectives in u, nu: Zindugee, life, living, murdanu-gee, manli-ness, and in some words it is applied adjectively, whence khan-gee, domestic, pesh-gee, money advanced. Lest the reader might still miscall this particle as jee, let him now learn that deewan-gee, from deewanu, mad, signifies mad-ness, while deewan-jee, denotes a respectful address to a factor, steward, &c. equivalent to our Master Factor! &c.

Anu, applies to adjectives, places, and things: murd-anu, manly, or the men's apartments, dust-anu, gloves, or hand-covering, ungosht-anu, a finger-ring, tulub-anu, dunage, muh-eenu, a month, moon-course. Consult page 95.

U seems to bring khan-u, a house, anus, from khan, dominus, a lord,—pesh-u, a trade, from pesh, before,—and hurkar-u, a inessenger, &c. from hurkar, every business; but, on the whole, little can be added on this head to pages 64, 65, &c.

The imperative plural of many causal verbs is used as an abstract noun; thus, buna o, management, duba o, influence, churha o, ascent, mila o, concord, bika o, sale, muna o, persuasion, from bunna, to do, be made, &c. bunana, to make, manage, dubna, to be squeezed, dubana, to squeeze, press down, churhan, to climb, churhana, to raise, mount, milna, to meet, milana, to conciliate, join, unite, manna, to mind, munana, to advise, &c.

Buchu, may now and then be met with for chu, &c. of page 89, chuh-buchu, a trough, &c. from chah, a well, Mooghul-buchu, or Mooghbuchu, a young Mooghul.

The old infinitives which terminated in un or wun, are still used as verbal nouns: Julun, heat or burning, dhowun, washing, kuturun, pa-ring, munjun, scouring, or tooth-powder; so are the ancient present tenses, lugut, expence, burhut, increase, &c.

Wa, a, woo, ya, &c. are diminutives, &c. in murd-wa, a mannikin, Peera, Peerwa or Pirwoo, a, for peerun of page 82, and yaroo, from yar, friend, khet-iya, a little field, bhoom-iya, a land-lord, mukhun-iya, a butter man.

Loo, ora, eroo, iyara, ora, are mere deviations of wal, war, in page 96: Pankh-eroo, a feather'd animal or fowl, jhugra-loo, a wrangler, dunt-aloo, a biter, oo-loo, an owl, from its cry, oo oo, i.e. the oo oo wala, or howlet, ghus-iyara, a grass-cutter, bhutiyara, a cook, hunsora; a laugher, lurkora, lurkoree, a parent, &c.

In khul-ree, the foreskin, pug-ree, a turban, dum-ree, half a farthing, guth-ree, mot-ree, a bundle, ree marks them as diminutives of khal, skin, pug, a large turban, dam, a piece of money, ganth, and mot, a bale.

Uwul, implies frequency or excess of any action: Lur-uwul, mutual blows, pil-uwul, copious and social potation, khel-uwul, romping, &c.

A, applies to weights, numbers, &c. so,—udh sera, ek sera, doo sera, by which they weigh things of half a ser, equivalent to our, pound, as the ser is nearly two of our pounds, sometimes more. Ekka, the ace, doo a, the deuce, &c. Hath, the hand, sur, the head, monh, the face, mouth, ankh, the eye, &c. thus express handed, hutha, headed, sura, faced, monha, unkha, eyed, applicable to a great many words in this way. See page 63, &c.

Wala, besides its meaning formerly noticed, expresses both the present and future participle: Jane wala, a man going, jane walee, a woman going, bhagne wala, fugiens, fugiturus, bhagne walee, fugitura. It also means able, in words like khane walee rotee, eatable bread, likhne walee bat, a speech proper, or fit to be written. Kuonsee ghoree la oon, which of the mares shall I bring? kalee walee la o, bring the black one.

Ala, and war, are local particles in sew-ala, the temple of Jupiter, hurwar, a burial place. The last, as war or bar, denotes a day, as in page 207.

Ar and r, are evident in chum-ar, a currier, sona-r, a goldsmith, loha-r, an iron smith, lon-ar, a salt pit, deed-ar, sight, vision, gooft-ar, speech, from cham, hide, sona, gold, loha, iron, lon, salt, &c.

Uet, ueta, ueta: dukuet, a robber, bhuluet, a spearman, kurkuet, a bard, churhueta, a rider, bughueta, a young tiger,—respectively from daka, robbery, bhala, a spear, kurka, a war song, churhna, to mount or ride, bagh, a tiger.

Ukur, wukur, a particle of agency in the following examples: kood-ukur, a leaper, peewukur, a drunkard.

Ban, mihr-ban, friendly, &c. from mihr, friendship, bad-ban, a wind-catcher, or sail, decd-ban, the sight of a gun.

Dost, friend, and doshmun, foe, are thus used; wutun dost, a patriot, zun dost, fond of women, zun doshmun, averse to women,—resembling our words philo and anti, in composition.

Yab, and ran, obtaining, found; whence kumyab, scarce, kam-yab, or -ran, obtaining one's wishes, fortunate.

Gozar, rendering, shockr-gozar, grateful; mal-gozar, paying taxes.

Postur, distributing, udl-gostur, administer ing justice.

Shikun, breaking, uhd-shikun, breaking a promise.

Bar, shedding, &c. ushk-bar, shedding tears, ghur-bar, household, dur-bar, levee, court, guran-bar, heavy laden.

Put, suena-put, commander of an army.

'Dookhtu, *pierced, stitched, jigur-dookhtu, heart-pierced, chushm-dookhtu, hood-winked.

Rus, rusan, joz-rus, penetrating, parsimonious, fuez-rusan, generous.

Pizeer, affecting, able, &c. dil-pizeer, touching the heart, turbiyut-pizeer, tractable, murummut-pizeer, repair-able.

Mal, trodden, beat down, &c. pae-mal, ruined, roo-mal, dust-mal, a handkerohief, towel, &c.

Bundee, jumuu-bundee, a rent-roll, zubanbundee, an affidavit, danu-bundee, an appraisement of grain.

The adjunctive and prepositive form of composition may even give an opposite meaning to the compounds, as sal-khord, stricken in years, khord-sal, of tender years.

Roo, rookh, face, &c. puree-roo, fairy-faced, gool-rookh, rose-cheeked.

*Ha, at, gan, an, jat, present themselves as Persian plural signs in the Hindoostanee: bar-ha, times, murdan, men, buch-gan, children, bagh-at, gardens, zilu-jat, provinces.

Kuha kuhee, altercation, mara maree, mutual blows, is a form occasionally thus used.

Many verbs are formed by adding na or ana to adjectives or nouns, whence mota, fat, motana, to fatten, kulee, a bud, kuliyana, to bud.

unglee, the finger, ungliyana, the finger, hura, green, huriyana, to grow green, kuchcha, raw, timid, kuchchiyana, to flinch, &c.

Besides the verbs enumerated in page 195, there are several others used in the same way: marna, to beat, strike, crack, bore, try, &c. with other verbs, it means to fill, moot-marna, to be-. piss, bhur-marna, to bedaub.

Muchna, muchana, onthna, onthana, to rise, raise, excite, &c.; ghool-muchana, to kick up a dust, make a noise.

Bandhna, to form, invent.

Dourana, to exert, &c. to which a great many others may be added, with meanings obvious enough from their own signification, in the Vocabularly.

Some causals are formed, by la or al instead of a: khana, to eat, khilana, to feed, peena, to drink, pilana, to cause drink, buethna, to sit, buethalna, to set, dena, to give, dilana, to cause give.

Bikna, to be sold, has bechna, to sell, chhootna, to get loose, chhorna, to let loose, and phutna, to crack, has pharna, to burst, tear, &a; but such irregulars are comparatively very few, and all the others are readily discriminated and acquired from practice. 'A reduplication of the neuter or active preterite, with the causal, denotes any thing ready done, as buna bunaya, ready made, seekha sikhaya, ready taught, pukka pukkaya, ready cooked.

A few infinitives spring, as Hindoostanee verbs, regularly from the Arabic or Persian; they are chiefly the following, and subject to the same formation as other verbs in the causal.

Azmana, to try.*
Buhusna, to argue.
Budulna, to change.

Khuruchna, to expend. Kufunana, to shroud. Luruzna, to shake.

* Several of these may be arranged under the classes they appertain to, being so far assimilated with the rest, as to possess their various neuter, active, and causal forms. Besides these in the text, there are some others, in which the coincidence with the Persian verbs is very great; kurna, kurdun, to do, churna, chureedun, to graze, tupna, tupeedun, to heat, or grow hot, mulna, maleedun, to rub, murna, moordun, to die, dena, dadun, to give,—all of which probably spring from the same origin with the Sunskrit, as the list might be easily increased, had we leisure to select more.

Bukhshna, to grant. Daghna, to mark. * Dumna, to spring. Dufunana, to bury. Furmana, to order. Furrana, to snort. Gozurna, to pass. Gurdanna, to inflect. Khumna, to bend. Khureedna, to purchase. Ungezna, to bear. Khurkhurana, to snore. Khurashna, to scrape. Khuradna, to polish.

Nuwazna, to present, to offer. Nuzuranna, to give. Quboolna, to agree. Qurzna, to borrow. Runjana, to vex. Rungna, to colour. Tuhșeelna, to collect. Turashna, to pare. Wurghulanna, to wheedle. zidna, to wrangie.

An extensive class of attributes results from the junction of adjectives (participles included) and nouns, or adjectives with adjectives; as another also does from two nouns repeated or conjoined, thus:

Koshadu-dil, open-hearted. Shikustu-khatir, broken-hearted, &c. Mun-muleen, Dhun-mudhee, purse-proud, &c. }empty-handed, &c Tihee-dust, Chhoochha-hath,

```
Tun-dorost, healthy, well.
Kul-jeebha, I foul-mouthed.
Sivah-kam,
Pust-boolund,
Nushcb-furaz, / rough, rugged, uneven, &c.
Ooncha-neccha,
Bhula-chunga, sound, safe and sound.
suhech-salim,
Dobla-putla, slender.
Mota-tazu, plump.
Door-duraz, distant.
Chuora-zhukla, spacious.
Kdrarab-khustu, ruined.
olta-polta, topsy-turvy.
Zer-zubur,
Gao-dom, taper, sloping, a cow tail.
Moonh-zor, headstrong, hard-mouthed, un-Seenu-zor, I ruly, obstinate, &c.
Ahoo-chushm, I fawn-eyed, timorous, bashful, Mirg-nuen,
Goolab-chushm, meek-eyed, &c.
Mahee-posht, convex, tish-backed.
Sug-sifut, currish.
Bun-manoos, savage.
Murd-mizaj, manly.
Poombu-duhn, mealy-mouthed.
```

Nouns of reciprocation, &c. are formed in this manner:

```
Kuha-kuhee, altercation.
 Chooma-chatee, dalliance.
- Mara-maree, scuffle.
 Dekha-dekhee, emulation.
 Duora duoree, hurry, flurry.
 Mokka mokkee, Ghosum ghosa, fisty cuffs.
 Bat cheet,
 Goft o goo,
Quel o qal,
Gun shup

Chit chat, conversation,
tittle tattle.
 Gup shup,
 Galee giluoj, a brawl.
 Ghool ghupara,
Shor shur,
Dhoom dham,

Juproar, hubbub, noise,
hurly-burly.
 Pecch-panee, wish-wash.
 Saz baz,
 Cheez-bust.
                   } furniture, baggage, gear.
 Kul kanta, Deru dunda,
 tunt ghunt,
 Ugur bugur,
Bula e boghma, } stuff, trash, trumpery.
 Ugur bugur,
```

Chur bar,
Khan o man,
Mukur-chukur, deceit.
Khoord-boord, embezzlement.
Jhooth mooth, a lie, fiction.
Pech pach, evasion.
Heelu-huwalu,
tal mutol,

prevarication.

and generally by a kind of alliteration that seems quite congenial with a Hindoostanee ear, there being few motions or accidents connected with sound, hurry, &c. which are not accurately discriminated by a large class of imitative verbs for this purpose that may properly be styled reiterative; whence jhun jhun, jingle; thun thun, clink; bhin bhin, buzzing; sun sun, simmering; phos phos, whispering; khul khul, undulation; kilbil, a peristaltic motion; dhuk dhuk, palpitation: Besides these, we often meet with the colloquial repetitions which prove at first so disgusting to strangers, viz. rotee-otee, chhooreeooree, chuokee-uokee, basun-wasun, rusee-wusee, whose reiterated syllables are not always, in my opinion, wholly useless; on the contrary, they may occasionally possess a very comprehensive meaning; such as bread, or any thing of the kind to eat; a knife, or any cutting instrument, wanted in a hurry to cut with; a chair, stool, bench, seat; a plate, dish, vessel, ason, &c. and rusee-wusec, probably means a ope, cord, string, or in short any thing to tie rith, when in great haste. To the foregoing hay be added, lurke-purke, lurke-bale, kuchsuch, the young ones, brats, &c. with many more, which cannot be enume

Personal and other those already inserted, the viscous across the by the present and person arrived to the following all spring fr speak, dhurna, to place, Bukta, eloquent, &c. Dhurta, a debtor. Kurta, doer. Rumta, a pilgrim. Khata, a granary. Chhata, an umbrella. Purta, average. Manta, sway, influence. Multa, worn coin. Phirta, rejected, &c.

ANTEN SARRES 14, , But it is the second Data, a giver, &c. Mungta, a beggar. Chuheeta, darling. Khoolta, open, &c.

Janta, knowledge. Soókha, drought.

Pooja, worship.

Ghera, a circle.

Many are also the same as the infinitive: rona, weeping, tearful, sona, sleepy, mootna, a pisser, nuchna, a dancer, sikh, a scholar, jan, a conjuror; especially in composition, burbol, a boaster, dil-chul, brave, unkhmond, inexperienced; and to this form by adding ee, we have bolee, speech, murce, mortality, pheree, a circui khojee, a searcher, joree, a pair.

For words numerically compounded, consupages 203, &c. observing that several names of places, &c. are thus formed, viz. chihil-sitoon, *bara durce, puch-muhla, tirpuoliya, tirsoolee, chihil-pae, char-pae, which are so obvious, that the least-attention will make the learner master of this mode of composition.

The following proper names (with many more that cannot be enumerated here) are much used among the Mosulmans:

Buhador Ulee, the Warrior of Ulee.
Khooda bukhsh, the Gift of God.
Ubdollah, the Slave of God.
Ghoolam Mohummud, the Slave of Mohummud.

Kulb Husun, the Dag of Husun.

* Forty pillars, a palace at Ghazeepoor, so called, which our countrymen, who attend little to true pronunciation, very easily convert to Chelsea-tomb!

Uzeez collah, Dear to God.

Moueyon od deen, Defender of the Faith.

Usud Ulee, the Lion of Ulee.

Sher Mohummud, the Tiger of Mohummud.

nd as few names in this language are lerivatives compounded, the Hindoos also man their Krishoon-due al, Gunesh-das, Ramsingh, &c. though it must be admitted, that the natives of every description are apt to give their children, on particular occasions, the most humiliating appellations, from a superstitious notion, that this will appease, or propitiate an offended diety: Whence-Koorkoot, sweepings, Phenkoo, outcast, Koela, charcoal, Kookur, dog, Kale, blackey, Chhekuoree, six cowries, Chirkit, dregs. Some names have their origin in the time or place of the person's birth: thus Mungulce, Boodhoo, Etwaree, Ramzanee, Jungulee, Lushkuree, Muedanee; while others are in fact a kind of titular compellation assumed by or conferred on individuals or particular classes of men; such are-

Khoodawund, huzrut, ap, junabi alee, qiblui alum, monee, and some others are used for worship, highness, saint, &c. but they are best acquired by practice; yet we must not omit here those conciliatory appellations that are so commonly used in Hindoostan for people in humble stations, since it clearly shows to what lengths the natives carry their flattery and politeness to each other.

Mihtur, a prince,

a succeper, (called also hulalkhor) weaver, vintner. &c.

Khuleefu, a caliph,

a tailor, cook, shoemaker. tradesman, &c. a barber. . .

Josta, q master,
Chuodhuree, Iuhto, Muhra,
his<sup>1</sup>

various people, such as buniyas, dealers in grain, kojerees, gardeners and bearers.

Bihishtee,* divine,

a waterman.

The names of places may in general be traced by attentively considering what I have already said in page 102 on this subject; and the learner will recollect, that besides their founders, the Indians also use the names of the different divinities, prophets, saints, &c. compounded with abad, poor, nugur, &c. formerly enumerated, (and sometimes with ganw, whence Chut-ganw, Bura-ganw, Kuhlganw, more familiarly Chittigong, Buragong, and Colgong) When any occur, without one or other of these particles, they may in general be considered as primitives, or compounds involved in impenetrable obscurity, to those who are not well versed in the Sunskrit language.

* Too often degraded, by bad pronouncers among us, to beastu!

A sort of mechanical table of the A forms, most common in the Hindoostanee, be now sub-citted to the learner, who will after reap advantages from it, proportione the pains he may bestow on the whole of examples below, as they all apply to the Persian and Arabic languages, both of which he may yet find it his duty and interest to acquire, as well as the Hindoostance.

There are certain letters termed servile, viz. u h y ee n w oo m t l s, because they alone assist in all the changes and inflexions to which words are subject in Arabic; the rest, including also the serviles, are all found as radicals, or such letters as must always remain in the vocable under discussion, in whatever state it may be found.

To distinguish the serviles in each example, they and their short vowels will appear in Italics, but the intermediate discritical points, or short vowels of the roots, u i  $\infty$ , though constantly changing their position, may be generally retained as Roman, since one or other of them must exist in every word, which is not the case with respect to the serviles, whose relative position and peculiar effect, however, will best appear from inspection.

Fuul, act, and its bran bear fail, agent, muool, object, &c. are the sta rammars, but from the service and the service rere so troublesome to t below, as a much easier model than fuul. I have therefore followed their example in this respect, though, in syllabling words, they generally call the first, fa kulimu, the second, uen kulimu, and the third, lam kulimu, from the component letters of fuul, viz. fa f, uen u, and lam I, the u being merely a short letter, not counted as a radical, but so essential to the pronunciation of each root, that I have marked those vowels only in Italics, whose appearance depends entirely on the serviles in each, as in zurbut, the t being a mere servile letter, whereas the radicals z r b, will be traced in the remotest branches, mozaribut, &c. In some of the various inflexions, the learner will discover a reduplication of the radical letter, and should recollect this circumstance, along with the different positions of the shorts u i co, the long a ee oo, and the serviles t m, &c. these being,

In fact, the grand pivots whereon the whole scheme of the Arabic conjugation, declension, &c. hinges, the general mechanism of which will appear perfectly simple and evident in the annexed Hindec-Arabic Prospectus. This tabular view vill answer almost every useful purpose of the practical Hindoostanee, Persian, and Turkish scholar, while it will, at the same time, greatly promote the study and knowledge of Arabic, so essential for the profound Orientalist, that it ought, sooner or later, to be acquired by every person who wishes to cut a capital figure in the Mosulman department of Eastern learning.

Hindee-Arabic Mirror, or Prospectus.

zurb zirb zurub zirub zorub zurib zurab zirab zorab

These are termed simple triliteral roots, or infinitives, which serve as a model for the inflexions of all such Arabic words, whose active participles become like zarib, and the passives muzroob; the local nouns muzrub; instrumentals mizrub; incrementals uzrub; hyperbolicals zurrab; the concretes often are the same as some of the roots or radi-zurbut zirbut zorbut zurubut zuribut _ urabut zirabut zorabut zurba zirba zorba zurban zirban zoorban zurub*an* zurocb zoroob zcoroobut Zurech zurecbut zurboobut zurabiyut muzrub muzrib muzrubut muzribut muzrobut cals here, viz. zurub, zcorab, &c. or resemble the incrementals uzrub; but the most common in the Hindown bear de doostanee ar From any one in the state of th Company of the Company margin, simil produced, an house the state page of the T..... and Persian tongues, but two or three only must suffice as a specimen of the whole: Qutl, slaughter, gatil, a slayer or slaughterer; mugtool, slain; muqtul, place of execution; migtul, instrument of death; uqtul, not in use; quttal, murderous; qutecl, &c. not in use. For the two forms of this word not used, we may produce uksur, general, from kusrut, frequency, of the form zurbut, and uzlum, tyrannical, from zolm, oppression, like zorb; ghurecb, humble; ghostbut, (zorbut) humility; and as few radicals in Arabic are ramified through every form in that language, the scholar therefore must not wonder at roots occasionally being defective in some one or other of their branches, or at his being now and then puzzled with certain changes, until, as an accomplished Orientalist, he can acquire the information respecting the tuuleelat from Arabic grammars, that will ultimately obviete every Chiculty.

We have now reached the augmented triliteral infinitives, whose active and passive participles occur thus:

mozrub The quaizrab mozrib mozurrub driliterals, *tuzree*b mozurrib mozarubut mozarib mozarub as they are mozturib mozturub called, from *izt*irab inzirab *moonz*urib monzurub zurbubut to motuzurrib motuzurrub tuzuorob, tuzurrob tuzarob motuzarib motuzarub make their *iz*rib*ab* mozribb appearance istizrab mostuzrub so rarely in mostuzrib either the *izrec*bab mozrabb zurbubut Persian or mozurbib mozurbub motuzurbib motuzurbub Hindoostatuzurbob mo unbib nec, that *izrinbab i*zrib*bab* have easily dispensed we \ night with their insertion, had I not zurnubut wished to ex ibit a general view zuorubut zuræubut of these curious forms, many of *zue*rub*ut* which will aid the scholar in the zurueubut derivation and co zurb*at* numerable vocab tuzurboob grand languages .tuzurnoob mans, by a slight tumuzrob mechanism of zurl *tuz*urb*ot* every stage of its va tuzuoroob. ations in the presum

Plurals in Arabic are divided into regulars, duals, paucals, and multitudinous, thus: The duals are all known at once by the addition of uen to any form, whence zidduen, opposites, waliduen, parents, and turufuen, both parties.

mozrib mozribat These are termed permozurrub mozurrubat fect plurals; at is the mozrib tuzurrobat most common of them mozrib { mozrib-een in Hindoostanee.*}

* When the noun ends in ut, this at once becomes at, as halut, a condition, halat, afut, calamity, afat, &c. Een is more used than oon, though neither are very frequently met with in the Hindoostanee.

zurub 🕽		turuf, side, utraf, shu-
	uzrab	reef, well-born, ushraf,
	u,nub,	•
św.p		gentry, is the only form
zur a b	·	of these very familiar
zi rub	1.4.35	in the Hindoostanee,*
XO343	χ$,	though not, as in Ara-:
bic, as a mouns of paucity; ghoolam,
a slar 🖖	24 17 12 22 22	in the plural, like zirbut,
ulso giberrae and a ey seldom occur.
z urb	West of the	thus khootoot, letters, hoo-
	1	qooq, rights.
zureeb	zoruba	shœrufa, gentry , ḥœkuma,
•		physicians, &c.
za rib u	zuwarib
zir a bu	zura ib	risalu, troop, rusa il, troops.
i zreeb	uzareeb	uqaleem, climates.
zirb	zirab
zurb	uzriba	nubee, a prophet, umbiya.
mu zrub	muzarib	munsub, a post, munasib.

* Plurals of the form uzrab, may belong to radicals like zorb, zurub, and some others, as well as zureeb; an observation that may be extended to the rest, kumal, kumalat, perfections; and some have two plurals depending upon one or different singulars, though their signification be the same.

muzioop	muzareeb mushhoor,	notable,	musha-heer.

		neer.
z urb	z urabee	uhl, a person, uhalee.
z urb a	zurab a	futwa, a decree, futawa.
z corb an	z urabe e n	scoltan, a kirg, sulateen.
u zrub	uzarib	ukbur, great, ukabir. 🕟
tuzreeb	tuzareeb	tuşweer, api ia, c, mşaweer.
u zrub ee	uzaribut	•
zirb ub	zurabib	dirhum, a drachm, durahin.
zirbut	zorub
zœrb	zoorb
zirab	zorob	kitab, a book, kotob, books.
za rib	zurubut
za rib	zœrrab	jahil, ignorant, joh-hal.
zir a b	zirban	ghizal, a fawn, ghizlan.
muzreeb	zurba
uzrceb	zoraba
tuz ribu	tuzarib	tujribu, experiment, tujarib.
zirbeb	zurabeeb	qirtas, parchment, quratees.
zurbeeb	zurabibu
•	•

Some of the forms, especially those left blank, are of no great use in the Hindoostanee. Words having medial a or uo in the singular, are often thus formed in the plural, like uzrab, hal, state, uhwal; bab, chapter, ubwab; malswealth, umwal; fuoj, army, ufwaj; muoj, responding with r of uzrab, is converted, by a process peculiar to the Arabic, to w, as in the foregoing examples, and in yuom, a day, ueyam, in the meantime, as a

Titles of the state of the onants were formerly enient and uncouth; yet, as their mere appearance can do no harm, but rather some good, in the Arabic department of the Hindoostanee, I have endeavoured to preserve them in the Roman character also; whence hugg, right, khutt, epistle, hudd, boundary, hiss, sense, rudd, rejected, diqq, vered, especially as these now prepare us to meet with khootoot, epistles, hooqooq, rights, hoodood, boundaries, muhdood, bounded, mochuqqiq, having a right, muhsoos, sensible, murdood, condemned, mudgoog, hectic, agreeably to the standand for each respectively, viz. zurb, zirb, zooroob, muzroob, mozurrib, to which the reader may refer, contrasting the three radicals of zurb with those of huga, hudd; of zirb with hiss, digg, and so on with all the rest, as they may yet catch his eye in the Hindoostanee, Persian, Turkish, and Arabic languages; to the whole of which my present ne plus ultra scheme of Hindee-Roman Alphabet, will apply with the greatest ease and perspicuity; nay, with two or three slight additions, it may be extended as a universal character to every tongue under the sun. By way of exercise, let us suppose Ethe existence of a word, such as nuld, varied through all the radical forms, at 1.212, hoold, hulud, &c. as far as tuhuolood, corresponding with tuzuorob, we have nothing more to do than to frame from these in rotation thus: halid, muhlood, muhlud, mihlud, uhlud, hullad, huleed, mohlid, mohlud, mohullid, mohullud, mohalid, mohalud, mohtulid, mohtulud, monhulid, monhulud, motuhullid, motuhullud, motuhalid, motuhalud, mohlidd, &c. &c.

It may be said, that many of these forms, in any given word, are not in use; be it so, but they may all occur in half a dozen of examples, and it signifies nothing to the expert scholar whether insaf, justice, monsif, just, tusneef, composition, mossunnif, an author, be the examples under inspection, or their prototypes, izrab, ihlad, mozrib, moshlid, tuzreeb, tuhleed, mozurrib, moshullid, or any other conformous vocables. Some instances like ilm, knowledge, who wing, muulom, known, &c. uql, reason, aqil, wise, muuqool, reasonable, &c. may, at first sight, seem more intricate than they will prove in reality, as the knack of forming them also in the walling acquired by the attentive student.

Ir described diligent reader will recollect to the erved on the transposition of processing; for his sake, therefore, we shall be the exercise in that easy prosaic dress that he exercise in that easy prosaic dress that easy prosaic dress

1.

Jub tuk juwanee ke ueyam (huen tub tuk) buhar hue,

Jo peeree a ee (hue) to khizan phir ashkachue.

Ugur (too) hoshyar hue goshi jan se pund soon! Ghuflut khoob nuheen hue, yih wuqt (too) ghuneemut jan!

3.

Ikhtiyar ubhee hue, jub moo e scofued ujul ka puegham

Lawega, tub koochh (toom se) nu hosukega

4.

Yar gur (toojhe) tumeez hue, kur (too) furqosofued o siyuh men Gurdishi luel o nuhar eksan nu hue.

5.

Too uch-chhe umul kur, ilm kec tuḥṣeel kurke, Isee se admee ka wuqar alum mcn huc.

6.

(Too) pueda kur kumal ugur chahe ho uzeez (hone ko)

Uor be kumal chushmi khula iq men khwar hue.

7.

Na murd jo keene kee zoban duraz kurte huen onhon kee tegh o qulum ka shiur tohmut hue.

8. ** ' \

Hur ek con men ghatee hue uor nabukar hue Nek namee ko husud ke dum se qutl kurte huen.

9.

Ub kuon hue, Nuosheerwan o Hatim o Roostum se?

(Tahum) conhon ka nami neko suda yadgar hue!

10.

(Too) ikhtiyar kur udl o sukhawut uor shuja ut. Ek ek kee bina juhan men pa edar hue.

11.

Tera dil bequrar hue hosni arizee pur uhwe jumal ho oska, jisko zuwal nuheen, 12.

Mue ghoroor peekur budmust nu hoojiyo Uor koochh ooska khomar nu hue jooz durdi sur.

13.

(Ue) just the state lil, a eene kee numut be gho-Jisko beste beste version of the second second beste b

A: may readily find the meanrd above in page 323, he shal is own industry to collect them at leisure, if now necessary, to enable him, without consulting mine, to give a good idiomatical English version of this admired poem, previous to the perusal of a still more celebrated moral ode, by Qoodrut, which I shall translate as literally as possible, and at the same time analyse agreeably to the rules of construction, in order to instruct the reader effectually how to do so himself with any piece of writing in this dialect, that he may hereafter wish to attend to, as a student, translator, or Oriental linguist. As such, however, should he aim at a very distinguished place, he will find it advisable to dip also occasionally in the sources themselves, viz. the Arabic, Persian, and Hinduwee tongues.

Is turuh se kul huwus turgheeb detee thee moojhe Kya-hee moolk e Room, kya-hee surzumeen e Roos hue.

In this manner, ambition was yesterday giving me encouragement, how very charming the country of Greece! and how traly grand the empire of Russia!

Is, the proximate demonstrative pronoun, yih, he, this, &c. in its singular oblique, and governed by the postposition se, with, of, and here meaning in; turuh, manner, way, modus; a feminine noun from the Arabic, and like the Latin word, or the Hinduwee kur, dhub, duol, very useful in the composition of many pronominals or adverbials, kyoon-kur, kisturuh, how, already explained in page 111. Is turnh se, therefore means, in this manner, thus, so; turuh, though ending in uh, is little subject to inflection in the singular, and belonging as it does to some nouns noticed in the declension, we may now venture to assert, that those of this class terminating in h, called hae hoottee, seldom or never admit of such a change in as altogether to warrant the pronun· Gur mæyussur ho to kis ushrut se keejiye zindugee costurur awaz i tubl eedhur sudae koos hue.

If he acquired, then with what delight account enjoy life; on that side the, melody and the way account.

ciation : . . . . red in speaking them; for instance, is turch se, seems too full, and is turih se, even is not just the thing required. Kul, (or, according to the Hindoos, kulh) yesterday, is here an adverbe though with our own word likewise a noun, but, unlike it, signifies to-morrow also. Huwus, ambition, desire, is an Arabic word of the feminine gender, as is turgheeb, instigation, encouragement to evil; it here forms with dena, (and hona, as the auxiliary sign, was) a compound verb, to instigate, in the imperfect of the indicative and feminine gender, detee thee, was giving, from the nominative huwus, being, as above observed, feminine. Turgheeb, is an Arabic infinitive or verbal noun, and feminine by page 159, q. v. It comes from rughbut, desire, which forms raghing deSonte-hee ibrut yih bolee yek tumasha mucu toojhe

Chul dekha c no jo qued c az ka muhboos huc.

Hearing which, wisdom thus addressed me, come along that I may show thee a spectacle, O thou who art a captive in the bends of desire.

sirous, murghoob, desirable, like several of the Arabic vocables, enumerated in pages 414, &c. Monihe is the inflexion of the personal pronoun muen, I, with its affixed postposition e, and in this state it greatly resembles the Latin dative mihi, while mojh ko bears a similer relation to ad me, being the oblique of muen, with the postposition ko, but used indiscriminately as a dative with month above. Kya-hee is a sort of neuter pronoun of kuon quis, who, like quid, quod, what, with the energetic adjunct hee: it is on the whole a curious, but very useful little vocable; in the oblique it seems to have at times kahe, but this in general is so blended with or lost in the masculine and feminine inflexion kis, that it is not an easy task to discri-221/24te the one from the other. Kya-hee apLegu ee yek bargee gor e ghureeban kee turuf Jis juguh jan e tumunna suo turuh mayoos hue.

She conducted me at once towards the graves of the lowly dead, in which place the restless spirit of avarice is every way frustrated.

pears to be used as an interjection of praise, kya-hee moolk, what a charming country! the hee conferring an energy on the expression, that I have tried to preserve in, how very charming! and how truly grand! for, in fact, we shall frequently be obliged to translate this word kya, by how, in many parts of our progress through the language. Moolk e, a coun-'ry, an Arabic noun, with the Persian genitive sign, called izafut, attached to it, that here exactly corresponds with our of, and is long Room, the name which the by page 52. Asiatics confer on Greece, whence, Sikundur Roomee, Alexander the Grecian, though they certainly extend it beyond the limits of that empire. Kya-hee surzumeen e Roos hue, the first, and the e of the second, have been before explained: this is a Persian feminine word, compounded of sur the head, surface,

Murquden do teen dekhlakur lugee kuline moojhe

Yih Sikundur hue yih Dara hue vih Vuekaoos' hue.

Having pointed out began to tell me, this e Great, here lies Darius, and the Mede:

or here, probably, the anoa, and zumeen, land, ground, &c. Sur, in composition, perhaps confers some kind of precedence or superiority on the compound; whence I would consider zumeen, as the object of tillage, culture, &c. sur-zumeen, that of government or philosophy, as a kingdom, climate, &c. 'Roos, the Oriental name of Russia, which though till · lately little known in Europe as a great empire, has long held an elevated rank in the annals of Asia; for indeed this Roos, Roosce, must be the country or people we now call Russia, &c. Hue is the irregular auxiliary in the present tense of the indicative, and answering to the Latin est, is, ' the infinitive of which, hona, greatly resembles esse, to be. Gur, if, contracted from the Persian conjenction ugur. Mooyussur is an Arabic Poochh to in se ki jah o muknut e doniya se aj Kochh bhec onke sath ghuer uz husrut o ufsoos hue.

Well, ask of these, whether at present even any part of the magnificence and splendour of their worldly possessions be left with them, excepting their sad repentance and lasting regret.

My friend, Colonel D. T. Richardson, (whose extensive knowledge of the Oriental languages and poetic talents are far surpassed by the goodness of his heart) obliged me with the above word, much used to express attainable, procurable, &c.; with hona, it forms the very useful verb, to be got, procured, had, found, &c. Ho, the contracted agrist of hona, in the third person singular, and governed by gur; the nominative of which must either be each of the countries taken separately, or a wish to get them may be understood to ho, as a sort of optative mode: thus,—Gur (yih arzoo) mongussur ho, could this (wish) be accomplished; and, what is equally probable, the singular agrist is compatible enough with two nominatives.

translation freely versified, which I have now the pleasure of submitting to the public in his own words.

Once on a time Ambition fir'd my mind, And to its grasp the realms around consign'd. Behold! she urg'd, there Grees displays her charms; sort of expletive indeclinable particle, but may be here rendered by then, well, truly, &c. See page 85. Kis, the inflexion of kuon or kya,* what? governed by se, with, mentioned * Kya, what, has, like our word, various applications that use only can demonstrate. Kya is se kya os se akhir humara dil oodas hoguya, what with this, and what with that, my spirits became dejected; but for which, if we substitute koochh, partly, something, the meaning is considerably altered. Muot kisee ko nuheen chhortee kya ghureeb kya comde pur kis kis husrut se ye murte huen bu nisbut ghureebon kee, death spares no one, neither (and whether they be) the low (and or) nor the high, but with mow much) anguish these die, compared

Here Russia great, amid the clang of arms.

• There the sweet music of the lyre is found;
And here the warlike drum's inspiring sound.

usbrut, delight, pleasure, an Arabic noun of frequent occurrence in the Hindoostanec, uesh-ushrut-generally expressing the luxury, dissipation, enjoyed by the rich, the idle, and the gay, while they freely gratify their several passions for wine, women, &c. Keejiye, is one of the irregularities of the active verb kurna, to do, which ought properly to be kurive. This form may be called its impersonal, potential, precative, or optative mode, and seems, in some respects, analogous to the Latin subjunctive tenses in em and sem, which we express by might, could, would, should, &c.; but it appears to agree with the third person only, and is, on the whole, one of those peculiarities, of a language which experience alone can make the learner fully master of. Consult pages 282, &c. recollecting that this strange impersonal tense, (to which ap, koee, or some other agent must be understood) in all regular verbs, is formed by adding iye to the contracted infinitive: suk-iye, la-iye, rola-iye, ho-iye, ja-iye, mar-iye, chul-iye, kuh-iye: The whole as me

Regions like these the conq'ring sword invite, And such, subdued, would every toil requite,— ga, with little or no alteration in their meaning; whence keejiye, in the present quotation, might have been kee-jiyoga, and furma-iyoga, a-iyega, though this ga, like o, perhaps at times confers a future signification, maniyo, ruheiyo. Zindugce, is a Persian word expressive of life, as a state or condition, connected with the means thereof; thus, zindugce-kurna, to live well, enjoy life, is very different in its application from zindugee-katna, to spend one's days. The irregular Persian verb zeestun, to live, gives zeest, life, mere existence, the participle zindu, alive, living, assumes the gee, noted in page 394, to form the noun in question, zindu-gee. os, is the oblique case of the remote demonstrative, wosh, he, that, &c. which must be governed by one or other of the postpositions, pur, men, &c. understood; cos, in its remote capacity, applies to Room, and stands contrasted with eedhur, is turuf, as applicable to Roos. turuf, is an Arabic feminine noun, (pl. utraf) meaning & side, right or left, party, &c. whence turn Edar partial; few vocables are of greater

With that she ceas'd.—Then Wisdom forward came,

1, Oh! captive in the bonds of fame,

the Hindoostance than this, as may by referring to the adverbs of place, vere, those ending in ward, and so on; g, at the same time, to the reason just for its pronominal component parts appearing inflected; kis-turuf, is-turuf, &c. supply ko, pur, men, se, &c. Awaz-i, voice, sound, melody, a Persian feminine noun, with the izafut i, standing in construction with the next word tubl, a small drum, but which I termed a lyre, in contradistinction to the next instrument, and as more characteristic of Greece. The word is Arabic, and better known here by tublu, which seems the Persian mode of pronouncing and writing it, for they call the performer upon it, tublu-nuwaz: the diminutive tubluk is also in use among the poets. Idhur, (for the measure's sake, eedhur) isturuf, on this side, is an adverb of place, pronominally compounded with dhur, some old word like the Saxon and our ther, in hither, idhur; codhur, thither, kidhur, whither, jidhur, whithers vgr.

Ah! quit Ambition's call, and with me tread The cypress grove, where lie the lowly dead!

tidhur, thithersoever, which I have now exhibited in their relative and correlative relation. to each other, and the pronouns vih, wooh, kya, jo, to. See pages 76 and 107. suda-e, a Persi-Arabic noun, feminine, which means, sound, echo, the affixed e, is the izafut i, (under the form it acquires, when attached to words ending in a vowel) that here joins sudae with koos, the large kettle-drum, a word from the Persian, which the learner must pronounce very long, that he may not confound it with kos. Hue, having been noticed already, we come next to Sonte-hee, the inflected present participle of the verb sonna, to hear, resembling the case called absolute in Latin, and which signifies, on hearing, having heard, to which the hee gives the force of, the very moment she heard. ibrut, an Arabic feminine, signifying terror, example, &c. which I have personified also as a female, under the name of wisdom,

We court fair wisdom, that celestial maid. Young.

the consistency of the feminine

There all the restless passions of mankind Quiescent sleep, "nor leave one trace behind."

í _____

follow, which would have had an pearance with ibrut, translated death, g of terfore as it certainly might done, and perhaps with more prout ke waste, occurs very often for and I think may occasionally stand for conscience, virtue, religion, death, &c. as monitors to mankind; for I do not yet know one good common word to express what we mean by conscience, so little are the natives apparently acquainted with this monitory guard on their actions. Yih, this, and though rendered thus in the translation, we need not enlarge on it Bolee, is the preterite feminine from bolna, to speak, say, tell, agreeing with brut, as. the subject, and englished by thus addressed me, that is, said what follows. Yek, ek, the Persian numeral one, representing our indefinite an, a, preceding the noun tumasha, a sight, scene, sport, show, spectacle, from the Persian, whence tumashabeen, a spectator, idler, &c. Muen, I, the first personal, and applicable to the agrist a little farther on. Toojhe, has the very same relation

See Philip's son, Darius, or the Mede, And ask, that now, from life's vain bustle freed-to too, tuen, that moojhe, formerly explained, has to much, and cannot therefore require any farther illustration; it is governed by the following active verb. Chul, the imp. singular of chulna, to go, come, walk, &c. in the second person, expressed by too, thou, which is just at hand. Dekha,oon, the present of the subjunctive, first person, (agreeing with the foregoing muen) from the causal verb dekhana, to show, from dekhna, to see, though this generally has dekhlana. Jo, who, is the relative after its antecedent too, neither of which can possibly be difficult in the present sentence, since the nearest verb hue, takes the relative as its nomina-Live. 'Qued e, an Arabic feminine vocable, with its izafut c, to express captivity, bondage, bonds, prison; whence quedee, a prisoner, qued-khanu, a prison-house; it is now and then in use, with its original plural, thus, qued qoodood-kurna, to imprison, throw into gaol. Az, a Persian word for desire, passion, but little used, except in with the sposition; it has the genitive or posa ka after it, agreeing in gender and number with the masculine singular. Muhboos, an Arabic participle, signifying imprisoned, a captive, &c. from hubs, imprisonment, prison, and from this also hubs-khanu. Hue, the substantive verb art, to which jo is one nominative, and muhboos the other; because the line could run thus, too chul jo hue muhboos, &c. come thou who art a prisoner. Leguec, the preterite feminine of lejana, to transport, carry, with its inherent pronoun she: this verb is compounded of lena, to take, and jana, to go; the conjugation of which last it very naturally follows. *Yek bargee, instantly, a hersian adverb, * These compound verbs in poets, as wel as in conversation, have their component parts sometimes transposed and disjoined, and might puzzle the learner where he is not put on his guard as to this circumstance, in such cases as,

If aught, except remembrance sad remain, Of former greatness and its faithless train?

Le deedu i tur jidhur gu e hum Dubre jo the khooshk bhurgu e hum.

SUODA.

Wherever I carried these gushing eyes of mine, I filled the puddles, that were drying up, with my tears.

resembling our at once, all at once, being composed of the numeral yek and bar, a time, turn, with its affixed particle gce, men ior extended 95 and 394. Gor e, is the Persian : and of the feminine gender; the e. with the following word, gor e which last seems applied much in we do poor to a deceased friend, on extended sense, and generally to the pressed here by the humble, lowly, p. ban being the Persian plural of ghurceb, an Arabic word that means a traveller, stranger; but in India it is mostly applied to express harmless, inoffensive, quiet, humble, meek, poor, wretched; thence ghureeb-purwur-nuwaz, kind to the poor, cherishing strangers, and on the contrary, ghureeb-mar, oppressing or oppression of the poor. yieeb ghureeb, and their plurals uja ib-ghara b, apply to any thing wonderful, rare, strange, rarities, &c. Ghorbut, is the noun, and signifies humility, meekness, indigence, like the abstract ghureebee. Gor-istan, is a burial place, gor-kun, a grave-digger. Keeturuf, to-wards: this has been in a great measure pointed out above under turuf, and as it is noun, the reader will recollect why hat gender also. Jis, the inflexion of the relative jo, which, with a postposition understood to it, and juguh, a place, a word that like turnff turnh, and some more, is very useful in the composition of adverbs, and on the same principles. Jan-e, is a Persian word, and generally feminine, it means life, soul, betoved, and I have here expressed it by a restless spirit, as the best calculated for the subject, since the author means to say, that a life spent in ambitious pursuits is every way frustrated in the grave. Tumuna, a feminine Arabic noun for avarice, covetousness, whence mostumunnee, covetous. Suo, a hundred, but used here, with turuh, to express every way, many ways, the numerals often occurring indefinitely and hyperbolically. Mayoos, Arabic participle, signifying disappointed, from yas, despar, disappointment, which may also be rendered by mayoosee. Hue, is, to which jan is the nonhective, and mayoos its participial adjective. Murquden, is the Hindoostanee nominative plural of a feminine Arabic noun of place, murgud, a tomb, monument, a place of rest, from ruqd, rest, not used in this language. Do teen, numerals, expressing two, three, a few; with which murquden stands in concord plurally, but from the want of a postposition not in the oblique, though governed by the following active verb in the preterperfect participle. Dekhlakur, having shown, after showing, when she had shown, from dekhlana, noticed already under dekhaoon: No part of the verb seems so useful as this participle, which, like the other sounte. above, resembles the absolute case, and produces, in many sentences, a conciseness and force that we cannot always imitate; besides elegantly suspending the meaning, through several members of a period, till it is finally closed by some other tense. Lugee, the feminine perfect of lugna, to begin, commence, get, have recourse to, fall, set about; &c. which has its inherent pronoun, lugee, she began. Kuhne, the inflected infinitive kuhna, to say, tell, governed by lugee, or the postposition ko, understood, as we sometimes hear, rone ko luga, he began to cry, or fire h-crying; though rone luga be more common, as all the infinitives here can more easily dispense with ko, in that mode, than ours can with to; but this may be partly owing to ko being synonymous with for, and na with to. Lugee kuhne, is probably an idiomatical expression, peculiar to the Oriental tongues; whence we may account for the Scriptural I the Lord spake unto Moses sayng, i. e. The Lord began to say. Monjhe, me, o me, governed by kuhne, in the dative, which has been treafed at large in the foregoing bages. Yill, this, agreeing with the verb hue, s, and Sikundur a proper name. Yih Dara hue, exactly as the last member, but, for the take of variety, I have translated it, here lies Darius, i. e. Codomanus, who was conquered by Alexander. Yih Kueka oos hue, Kueka oos being another Darius, the son of Hystaspes, I have changed this part of the sentence also, thus, "and there the mighty Mede." As objects of analysis, they both correspond with Yih Sicundur hue. * Poochh, is the imp. singular of boochhna, to ask, enquire; to, well, the exple-

* From the obscurity and confusion that have now shrouded the names of those once illustrious kings, it is very difficult indeed to discriminate one potentate from another, whence we shall find, that this same Kueka oos is called also Nimrod, and Pharaoh, in other works; but whether with more propriety, than by the name of Darius above, I cannot determine; a circumstance, however, that so far coincides with the moral of the text, and the words of the wisest of men, "Vanity of vanities, all is vanity and vexation of spirit."

tive; in se, the plural oblique of yih, this, with its governing postposition se, from, of. Ki, is a troublesome equivocal particlé, that is at one time a conjunction like ut, at another it becomes a relative pronoun like qui, and, as in this place, it often appears almost to be a mere expletive to us. I imagine that it is intended to fill up the vacuity left, when the speaker pauses at the words he is about putting into another person's mouth; whence it is called the (kaf bue aniyu) explanatory ki, and may be englished by that, or whether, &c. according to circumstances, as in the following examples. Jao malee se kuhdo ki wuqt bone ka apuhoncha, go tell the gardener that the season for sowing is set in: Poochho to cos se ki too ne ule tug beej kyoon nuheen bo a uor poochho to kh beej aj bo ega ki nuheen, also ask him why has not yet sown the seeds, and enquire whether he will sow the seeds to-day or not. Jah, a Persian noun; it means grandeur, pomp, dignity, and is much joined with other similar words, jah o julal, pomp and splendour; jah o hushinut, grandeur and state; aleejah, of exalted dignity; sahib jah, præditus dignitate; sahib muknut, præditus potestate. O, is *hard inction et, and; it occurs two times in these lines as a copulative of similar words, but requires no farther elucidation here. Muknut i, an Arabik word, power, potency, puissance, &c. see jah, above. Doniya, Arabic, the world, universe; it is feminine, and indeclinable, as this will account for its not being inflected, though ending in a, by the postposition se that immediately follows it. This word is of the most frequent occurrence in Hindoostance, with the same signification nearly that world has in our language, and its various derivatives preserve similar affinity. Doniyawee, worldly; doniya-dar, doniya-purust, a layman, worldly, wedded to the world. Se, of from, it may be understood to all the three singular aptotes preceding it, as the Moralist wishes to inculcate, that not even the shadow of glory, nor a single vestige of all these heroes' wealth remained, except the bitter reflection, that their former power and, riches were now no more, or that these were not applied to nobler purposes. Aj, hodie, jam, nunc, to-day, at present. Aj rat, and aj kee rat, to night, are, by the Hindoos, used like our word, meaning, this night; while the Mosulmans generally understand by these very words last night, and express to-night, this night, by rat ko, i. e. at night, indefinitely, vide page 207. Koochh, a pronoun like quodquam, which has apparently the same relation to ko,ee, qui, quisquam, that kya bears to kuon, quis, it means any, some, &c.; there are many compounds from it and ko ce, that greatly resemble those formed from quis, qui, in La-Bhee, is a sort of conjunctive syllabical adjection, which means also, even, very common in the Hindoostanee, but at times, perhaps, it may seem to us a superfluous, though convenient expletive, like to, hee. on, is the oblique plural of woh, that, governed by the compound postposition ke sath, with, along with. Ghuer uz, a Persian preposition, preceding the aptotes, husrut and ufsoos, which signifies, besides, except, save, &c. husrut, sorrow, regret, anguish, an Arabic noun, and agreeing in most respects with the Persian word ufsoos, repentance, &c. which in some places may be met with as an interjection. Huc, the singular auxiliary est, to which koochh is the nominative, and conke sath the governed case, like the Latin, apud illos quidnam sit, cum illis quodquam est, or perhaps, illis quicquid sit. And with this hue closes our analysis, which has been considerably amplified, not only to give the scholar an opportunity of seeing how fully this can be th any portion of the language he may yet analyse himself, but also to allow of the insertion of several useful particulars, that were not before sufficiently discussed.

In page 393 were some observations about an ordeal, which the thoughtless pupil has probably forgotten, and may therefore refresh his memory now with a little retrospection, before we proceed one step farther.

The prosaic exercise, mentioned in page 420, will form as good a theme as any for our ctymological essay; the reader will therefore commence, and go regularly through the whole, before he attempts to compare it with my efforts below, which have been confined, as his must be, rather to a deduction of derivatives and compounds, than to a regular grammatical analysis, as we have already had enough of mere construction, in various parts of this Work.

Juwan-ee, youth, from juwan, young, juvenis, giovanee, yeong, jong, iong, in several tongues; ueyam, season, days, the plural of yuom, a day; peer-ee, old-age; a ee, the fem. of aya, came, hath come; khizan, seems a participial word to express falling, fall, viz. autumn; ugur, gur, if, probably from gurdeedun, to revolve, pass, and formed as our if is from give, gif, according to the ingenious reasoning of Horne Tooke in his philological works, which deserve the serious attention of every scholar; hosh yar, attentive, from hosh, senses, and yar, for which mund is also used, and ee may be added to both, hoshvar-ce, mind-ful-ness; gosh, car, whence gosh-u, a corner, khur-gosh, a hare, ass-eared, gosh-goszar, whispering, and many others; gosh-bu-gosh, cheek-by-jowl; goshi-jan, the car of the soul, sayours too much of materialism for our ears, though we do not scruple to talk of the mind's eye, perhaps from this organ being deemed the spy-glass or mirror of the soul, whence she looks abroad, or may be reflected with more animation than by any other medium, for one glance of the eye will often express unutterable things, and shed ligh! on a countenance, in other respects, of a deary complexion; pund, counsel, -whence num.-namu, ethics; ghuflut, inattention, an Arabic word of the form zurbut, whence ghafil (zarib), inattentive, tughafool (tuzarob), affecting indifference, and any others with which the reader may meet in his studies, having the radical letters gh f and l, such as ghuffal, ghufeel, motughafil, &c.; yih wuqt, this time, in the nominative, instead of is wunt ko, the ace of the verb jan, consider; uoqat, times, life, is the Arabic plural of wuqt, like those in page 418, and wulud, offspring, uolad, race, with many more of this form; ghuneemut (zureebut), plunder, gain, blessing, from ghuncem (zureeb), enemy, foe; *ikhtiyar (iztirab) choice, power, from the root khar (zurb), he was well, whence khuer (zurib), well, khueriyut (zureebut), welfare, and mokhtar (mozturub), free, absolute, &c.; mooe scofued, the inverted form requiring the izafut e, which sorfued moo, white hair, would not, by page 68; moo-miyan, hair or slender-waisted, moo-shigaf-ee, hair spliter, -ing, may yet appear, also soofued-u, white lead, and sorfued-ee, whiteness, &c.; puegham, message, pueghum-bur, messenger, prophet; hosukega, the third person singular masculine of the compound verb hosukna, A be able to be, to can be, in which there can now be little intricacy to the reader; yar-ee, friend ship in the vocative, ue, O! being understood, yaran, friends, * This being one of the tuuleelat, stated in page 415, is given here rather as an imperfect key to the rest, than an accurate account of it even, and the same difficulty will occur where-ever a ee oo w uo y are met with, as in the root khar above.

in common use for my lads! &c.; yawur-ee, likewise means friend-ship, help-er, aid, &c.; tumeez (tuzreeb), discrimination, distinction, from maz,* he separated, whence imtivaz (iztirab), respect, and momtaz (mozturub), distinguished, illustrious; motumueyiz (motuzurrib), sagucious, discerning; furq (zurb), difference, firaq (zirab), separation, absence, mofarugut (mozarubut), distance, &c.; tufreeq (tuzreeb), discrimination; tufaroq (tuzarob), difference, motufurruq (motuzurrub), different; siyuh, siyah, black, dark, siyah-ee, blackness, ink; gurd-ish, turning, revolution; gird, gurd, gurdee, gurdan, all denote something rotary, like gird-ab, a whirlpool or water, gird-bad, a whirteind, sur-gurdan, a vertigo, shub-gurd a night-watch or patrole; luel o nuhar, night and day, Arabic words often introduced in Hendoostanee poetry; ek-san, uniform; unv. (zurb), act, amil (zarib), actor, muumool (muzroob), habit, mogamulut (mozarubut), transaction; the plural monamulat, is used, though in the singular; this, and many others in this form, drop the final t entirely, whence monamulu, &c.; ilm (zirb), knowledge, alim (zarib), knowing, muuloom (muzroob), known, uleem (zureeb), omniscient, tuuleem (tuzreeb), teaching, moullim (mozurrib), teacher, moullum (mozurrub), taught, motuullim (motuzurrib), a pupil, tuhseel (tuzreeb), acquisition, from hosool (zoroob), gain, hasil (zarib), advantage, muhsool (muzroob), collection, tax, mohussil (mozurrib), collector, dunner; admee, properly adum-ee, a man, from Adum, Adam; murdi adumee, a gentleman, is in great use among the Hindoostanees, though the derivation be a little obscure; isee, is yihee, this very, inflected; wuqar (zurab), honeur, from wuqr (zurb), the root also meaning weight, dignity, &c. whence tuoqeer (tuzreeb), honouring, mowuqqur (mozurrub), honoured, and till sugger (tuzurrob), &c. should they appear; alum, world, universe, whence alum-geer, epidemic, also a conqueror; pueda, created, made, and pueda-k. to create, pueda ish, creation, produce, &c.; kumal (zurab), perfection, kamil (zarib), perfect, ukmul (uzrub), very perfect; chahe ho, the aorist or subjunctive of chahna, to choose, which comes nearer our verb than the reader suspects, unless he recollects that h and s are sometimes interchangeable, ho is the auxiliary sign, which the agrist can take as well as the indicative; uzeez (zurceb), dear, esteemed, from izzut (zirbut), honour, iuzaz (izrab), honouring, mojuzzuz (mozurrub), honoured, honourable; uor in this place implies, I think, for, because, since; chushm, eye, chushm-u, fountain, spectacles; khula iq (zura ib), plural of khulq (zurb), created being, &c. khaliq (zarib), creator, mukhloog (muzroob), creature, plural, mukhlooqat; khwar-ee, despicable-ness, &c. perhaps connected with khar, a thorn; na-murd, unmanly (people); keene, the infl. of keenu, spite, whence keenu-kush-wur-ee, spite-ful-ness, shootoor-keenu, rancorous, maying the spite of a camel, which generally bites the piece out; zoban, zuban, tongue, speech, language; zoban-ee, verbal; zonbar (uraz, long or foul-tongued, abusive; tohmut (zorbut), calumny, ittiham (iztirab), slandering, mosttulim (mozturib), slanderous; ghat-ee, wily, from ghat, a snare, ambush; a very different word from ghat, a narrow pass or defile, which, by a bad military linguist, might be mistaken for each other, and thereby occasion, in critical situations, a great deal of ef to our arms; na-bu-kar, not for use, worthless, good for nothing, also expressed by nukaru, nikumma, useless, waste, &c.; nek-namee, good-name, reputation; husud (zurub) envy, hasid, envious, muhsood, envied; dum, breath, dumu, asthma, dum-bund, speechless; dum is much used in composition for moment. &c. dumi murg, at the point of death, dum bu dum, constantly; qutl was explaned in page 414; mogatulut (mozarubut), carmge, is likewise in use. Nuosheerwan, &c. the names of a king, a generous man, and a hero enowned in Persian history; ta hum, or tuobhee, nevertheless, still; nami neko, good name, the cis redundant; yad-gar, memorial, assisting the memory; udl (zurb), udalut (zurabut), justice, aci just, iutidal (iztirab), moderation, moutudit (mozturib), moderate; sukhawut (zurabut), generosity, sukhee (zureeb) generals, but one of the most difficult tuulcelat, not easily explained here; shuja ut (zurabut) courage, slitojau (zorab), brave; bina (zirb) foundation, bance (zarib), founder, another of the tuulcelat; juhan, the world; pae-dar, stable, from pae the foot, and dar, holder; be-qurar, restless, qurar, (zurab) rest, stability; igrar (izrab), promise, mogurrur (mozurrub),, certain, tuqurror (tuzurrob), certainty; tuqreer (tuzreeb), declaration, mogir (mozrib) declaring, affirming; hosn (zorb), beauty, husun, huseen, (zurub, zureeb), beautiful, uhsun (uzrub), very beautiful; tuhseen (tuzreeb), praising, beautifying, melioration; whence tuhseeni tuluffcoz, the euphony of speech; arizee, fleeting, from arz, representation, &c.; muurooz (muzroob), represented; ariz, accident, &c.; muhw, muhe, absorbed in; jumal (zurab), beauty, iumeel (zurech), beautiful; tujummol (tuzurrob), listre; zuwal, decay, be zuwal, inviolate; mue, wine, mue furosh, a wine merchant, ghoroor zoroob), pride, mughroor (muzroob), proud; bud-must, intoxicated; zur-must, purseprous as must means drunk, lascivious, proud, &; hoojiyo is the future or precative of hojana, to become, resembling those noted in page 122; khomar (voorab), crop-sickness, from khumr (zurb), leaven, ferment, khumeer (zureeb), fermenting so makhmoor (muzroob), drunk, and some others not much used; joz, except, but, a sheet of paper, whence probably jozwee, a little, few, and joozrus-ec, penetrating, parsimonious, attentive to minutiæ; durdi sur, headache, dil, heart, mind, breast, &c. whence dil-dar, a beloved object, and a vast quantity of other such compounds; a eene, inflected by kee from a eenu, "; numut, manner, used here as a fem, postposition; ghobar, dust, gloom, ghobar-aloodu, dusty, gloomy, dismal, dreary; jis ko, jo, or juon, who, in the dative singular; kudoorut, impurity; kisce se, the ablative of ko,ce, any person.

* Another of the tuuleelat, discussed in the fast page, to aid the student mechanically through such forms, as they cannot be properly explained within the compass of a Hindoonance grammar.

The scholar has no doubt by this time acquired a tolerable notion of Arabic roots and their derivatives, which will help him forwards with all the rest, whether he may yet study the Arabic regularly or not, since, as a military officer merely, he never may find it so very essential as the Persian and Turkish must prove to those in civil and diplomatic situations in Asia. I hope the learner can give an English version of Hadley's Hindoostanee story from the Arabic, which was introduced in the preface merely to be contrasted with his jargonic farrago, under that title, at lelsure, if the reader still preserve patience enough to look at so curious a production, ungrammatical and absurd in the extreme, but one that continues, some how or other, to be palmed on unexperienced youths annually, to a considerable amount, by men interested in keeping up the deception as long as possible. The only tolerable part of Hadley's Grammar of Jargon, as he calls it, having been purloined from my labours, I have a better right than any man to speak out and expose the imposition in the Preface to public notice, which will, I trust, at last prove effectual.

Though the materials of the present Volume be not perhaps arranged in the best possible manner, I believe they will be found so full and distinct, that any man, with adequate talents for such an office, may form from the whole a very complete course of lectures on *the Hindoostanee language. If every word, with its meaning, in the foregoing pages, be diligently collected and formed into a regular vocabulary, to be reversed also at leisure, the be in possession of a most usehis first outset, without the Figure 1 ery of conning the whole by arning the languages of the I nciple stated in page 62, will b the best effects, the practice quently inculcated.

ding up this Volume, I shall flow present the student with a wild plaintive ode from Yuqeen, which has always been adas the most happy of that poet's effu-